U. S. Insists On Returning Ruhr Plants To Germans

Marshall Issues Polite But Firm Rejection of French Protest

Post Reporter

In spite of French outcries, Secretary Marshall made it clear yesterday that the United States and Britain would go ahead with their decision to return Ruhr industries to German ownership.

The decision was made public November 10 by the American and British military governors in Germany, although the French protested bitterly against it.

The Secretary announced only two concessions, apparently intended to allay French fears of a revived Germany.

One was the promise, already given privately to Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, that the United States was willing to consider "further measures which may need to be taken to insure security against possible future German aggression." He did not specify what such "further measures" might be and said they had not been discussed with the French.

The second was the assurance that the United States was "ready now to welcome French participation" in the Anglo-American control groups set up to supervise the transfer of the Ruhr coal and steel industries. The Secretary said the French could join these control groups immediately, without waiting for the final fusion of the French zone with the American and British zones in Germany.

Secretary Marshall made his

Civil Rights 'Compromise' Talk Starts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Two Southern feelers on a civil rights "compromise" were put out yesterday but only one real break occurred in the solid Dixie phalanx against the Democratic civil rights plank.

The compromise proposals came from Senators John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) and J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.).

The lone Southern break to full indorsement of the President's civil rights program was made by Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.).

Senator Sparkman, who has a 90 per cent batting average on Administration measures, led off the compromise talk.

The former House whip, who directed the Democratic speakers' bureau in the 1946 campaign, predicted the Democratic Party "will work out its differences" and said one way to do this is:

Hold up action on civil rights legislation at least until Congress can make an "unbiased" study of discriminatory practices against racial minorities, regardless of where they occur.

The Alabaman said he is considering presenting a resolution to this effect, and plans talks with leaders on both sides of the issue. He said he would link with it a study of economic conditions in areas where discrimination occurs "because I am convinced that the

Ching Sent By Truman To Mediate Dock Strike

Top Conciliator In New York With Plan to Settle 15-Day Walkout

BULLETIN

New York, Nov. 25 (Thursday (HTNS.).—As negotiations in the dock strike continued past 1 a. m. this morning, the union and the employers were attempting to reach a quick settlement.

The union made the first move to obtain agreement, offering to settle for 15 cents more an hour for day work and 22½ cents for night and weekend work. The employers countered with an offer of 13 cents more an hour for day work and 19½ cents more for night and weekend work, and made some concessions on the vacation request. The union sent the mediators back at 12:30 a. m. for the other 2 cents.

HALIFAX ACTS

Halifax, Nov. 24 (AP).—Halifax longshoremen decided at a closed meeting tonight to handle all ships entering this port pending a decision on their status by a federal arbitration board, it was learned from usually reliable sources.

New York, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The Nation's top mediator, on direct orders from the White House, stepped into the stalemated 15-day-old strike of East Coast dock workers today.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, flew from Washington, and announced that he would offer tonight a plan to end the costly strike if a settlement is not in sight by that time.

Ching made his announcement after meeting with Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL, and John V. Lyon, chairman of the New York Shipping Association.

Meeting Scheduled

The mediator scheduled a joint meeting with both sides for 7 p. m. and said he would put forth his settlement plan at that time. He would not reveal his program, but said it would be made public as soon as it is offered to the union and the shipowners.

However, up until shortly before midnight there had been no statement from Ching and the meeting was still in session.

Ryan told reporters that a new wage proposal had been submitted to the shipowners by the union, but he refused to say what it was.

The last known union demand was for a 25-cent hourly raise. The company had countered with an offer of 10 cents.

Ching originally had planned to address a labor-management round table session at Columbia University this afternoon on the Government's role in labor relations but he canceled the speech because of "the urgency of the situation."

Ryan, before meeting with Ching at noon, refused to comment on Lyon's statement that the shipowners would make no further offers to the union. The dock workers are seeking a 25-cent-an-hour pay boost and other contract improvements.

The employers have offered benefits including a 10-cent boost in the day-shift straight-time pay from $1.75 to $1.85 an hour and a 15-cent rise in the night and weekend overtime rate from $2.62½ to $2.77½ an hour. The union is demanding increases of 25 and 37½ cents, respectively, along with other benefits.

The strike has taken a 30-million-dollar slice out of the Nation's commerce receipts, choked off Marshall Plan shipments and Christmas mail bound for Europe, and idled some 65,000 longshoremen and almost 700 ships along the 700-mile strip of the Atlantic seaboard.

In New York harbor alone nearly 500,000 tons of cargo, includin

Negro Killed By Robed Men In Georgia

Lyons, Ga., Nov. 24 (AP).—A Negro was shot to death by a group of white men, white-robed and unmasked, at a road block Saturday night.

Sheriff R. E. Gray said today he had not been able to determine the motive for the killing.

According to the sheriff, the Negro, Robert Mallard, and his family and others were returning from a church program about 11 p. m., when their road was blocked by three cars filled with robed men. One shot was fired from a blockading car. The pistol bullet penetrated Mallard's breast, and he died shortly.

Gray said there was no racial feeling in the county. He said he expected to "break" the case shortly.

Gov. Herman Talmadge ordered an investigation of the slaying. Dr. Samuel Green of Atlanta, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan also said he was investigating.

1 Dead, 4 Injured As Andrews Field Plane Hits Another

One person was killed and four others reported injured about 1:30 a. m. today when one Air Force plane apparently landed on top of another at Andrews Field.

An Air Force spokesman said the planes involved a twin-engine Mitchell B-25 bomber from Bolling Air Base, which had just landed, and a twin-engine Beechcraft C-45 transport from Craig Field, Ala., which was landing.

The spokesman said the dead and injured were all occupants of the C-45. Their names and identity were not immediately announced. Also details of how the accident happened were not immediately determined.

The spokesman said he did not know if the B-25 was in motion on the ground or had stopped when the other plane set down on top of it.

Local Officials Set 10-Year Goal, Want $185 Million by '50

Richmond, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—Virginia localities have estimated they need $396,014,204 for school building needs in the next 10 years, State Superintendent of Public Instruction G. Tyler Miller reported today.

This figure, called "staggering" by Miller himself, was reached after an analysis of construction needs reports submitted by county and city school officials. The report was laid before the State Board of Education and Governor Tuck yesterday.

It came at a time when the matter of a special session of the General Assembly to adopt a sales tax for State aid to school construction is Virginia's hottest political issue of the day.

[Speculation in Richmond had it that pressure from local officials on members of the General Assembly may bring about a special session to consider financing the school program.

[Since a majority of counties have indicated they favor a sales tax, it is believed that a petition to call a special session may develop if Governor Tuck fails to issue the order.

[Two thirds of the members of each house may call themselves into session. Such was the action in 1933 under Gov. John G. Pollard, when Virginia enacted its ABC law and a public works program.]

"Although the total estimated cost of school building needs of $396,014,204 is a staggering figure," Miller said, "it should be borne in mind that this amount really represents the needs for a 28-year period."

He explained this 28-year period

Eisenhower Takes Full Blame For Allowing Battle of Bulge; Explains Strategic Backdrop

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

XIX

Our ground forces, while not yet at peak strength, continued constantly to increase. On August 1 our divisional strength on the Continent was 35, with four American and two British divisions in the United Kingdom. By October 1 our aggregate strength on the Continent, including the Sixth Army Group, which had advanced through the south of France, was 54 divisions, with six still staging through the United Kingdom.

In view of all conditions there was much to be said for an early assumption of the defensive in order to conserve all our strength for building up the logistic system and to avoid the suffering of a winter campaign. I declined to adopt such a course, and all principal commanders agreed with me that it was to our advantage to push the fighting.

We were certain that by continuing an unremitting offensive we would, in spite of hardship and privation, gain additional advantages over the enemy. Specifically we were convinced that this policy would result in shortening the war and therefore in the saving of thousands of Allied lives.

Consequently the fall period was to become a memorable one because of a series of bitterly contested battles, usually conducted under the most trying conditions of weather and terrain. Walcheren Island, Aachen, the Hurtgen Forest, the Roer dams, the Saar Basin and the Vosges Mountains were all to give their names during the fall months of 1944 to battles that, in the sum of their results, greatly hastened the end of the war in Europe.

Capture of the approaches to Antwerp was a difficult operation. The Scheldt Estuary was heavily mined, and the German forces on Walcheren Island and South Beveland Island completely dominated the water routes leading to the city. It was unfortunate that we had not been successful in seizing the area during our great northeastward reach in the early days of September.

Final German resistance on Walcheren Island was eliminated by November 9, by which time some 10,000 enemy troops had been captured, including a division commander. The cost was high. For the entire series of operations in the area our own casualties, almost entirely Canadian and British, numbered 27,633. This compared to less than 25,000 in the capture of Sicily, where we defeated a garrison of 350,000.

The first ships to begin unloading in Antwerp arrived there November 26. The Germans had begun launching V-1 and V-2 weapons against the city in mid-October. While the bombs were frequently erratic, as they had been in London, the V-2s caused considerable damage in the district. Numbers of civilians and soldiers were killed and communications and supply work were often interrupted, although usually only for brief periods.

The enemy also employed large numbers of E-boats (a small, speedy type of surface torpedo boat) and tiny submarines to interfere with our use of Antwerp. These weapons we countered by energetic naval and air action. In spite of all difficulties, Antwerp quickly became the northern bulwark of our entire logistical system.

Immediately south of the British area Bradley, on October 22, brought into line the United States Ninth Army under General Simpson. On November 16 Bradley renewed his offensive toward the Rhine in the northern part of his sector. The attack was carried out by the Ninth and First Armies and was preceded by a heavy bombing of the enemy and by artillery bombardment.

These attacks initially employed 14 divisions, and the number was soon increased to 17. Nevertheless progress was slow and the fighting intense. On the right flank of this attack the First Army got involved in Hurtgen Forest, the scene of one of the most bitterly

Passengers Stage Strike On Liner

900 Refuse to Leave 'Elizabeth,' Stranded By U. S. Dock Dispute

Southampton, England, Nov. 24 (AP).—Passengers aboard the strike-bound luxury liner Queen Elizabeth today were ordered to get off by Friday but approximately 900 said no and voted for a "sit-in" strike.

Capt. C. M. Ford, the ship's commander, told the passengers the strike would not be tolerated and that water and lights would be cut off.

Cabin and tourist-class passengers voted for the sit-in strike at separate meetings and expressed hope the 600 first-class passengers would join them.

The Cunard White Star Line, owners of the ship, had given notice this afternoon to all 1500 passengers that they must disembark by Friday.

The line said there seemed to be no immediate prospect of settlement of the American longshoremen's strike, which has prevented the ship from sailing.

The passengers came aboard last Friday expecting to sail the next day.

The notice from the line today was the signal for the protest meetings.

Spokesmen for the striking passengers stressed that many were in "precarious" financial condition.

The U. S. consul at Southampton told the American passengers he had sent a cable to the American State Department asking whether financial aid is possible for those who need it.

The passengers have been getting their meals free aboard the ship for the past five days. The cost of their tickets included food—and the eating aboard the luxury vessel has been the very best.

Dr. Henry H. Crane, minister of the Central Methodist Church of Detroit, chairman of the cabin-class committee, said:

"We are unanimous in our desire to remain on board because of the precarious condition, financial and otherwise, of many of the passengers.

"There are some very real cases of hardship aboard. We are not making any demands but are appealing to Cunard White Star for all the help and consideration they can give. We are deeply grateful for all they've done so far . . . We want to get legal opinion on our

Under Discussion, Barrett Declares; Many Seek Posts

(See People in the News, Pg. 2)

First application for the new civilian police reserve corps yesterday went to a former auxiliary policeman, as inquiries about the corps poured into police headquarters.

New details about the emergency reserve, authorized by the District Commissioners Tuesday, showed members will have to swear they do not belong to or will not join "any political party or organization that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence."

One question on the application form for the volunteer reserve group, expected to start with a nucleus of 200 men, asks if applicants will agree to purchase "the prescribed uniform, arms and equipment?"

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett said late yesterday that the plan "as approved by the Commissioners provides for the use of firearms."

But he added, when asked specifically if the unpaid members of the corps will carry weapons:

"We don't know whether they will provide firearms, whether we will provide them with firearms, or whether we will allow them to have firearms at all. The thing is still in a stage of discussion and

150,000 Leave D. C. for Home Turkey Dinner

Markets Report Early Sellout of Light Birds; Truman Asks Wisdom

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

An estimated 150,000 persons left town yesterday, airlines had waiting lists, President Truman issued a proclamation, and there was hardly a Thanksgiving turkey under 20 pounds to be had here after 5 p. m.

On a day promised by the weatherman to be partly cloudy but rain-free, Washingtonians from Mr. Truman on down will gather with their families at the festive board to partake of turkey and the trimmings.

With the Chief Executive, they will be mindful of "the richness of our blessings," and will resolve "to render generous assistance to the hungry and homeless in other lands."

"We pray this year," his proclamation said, "not only in the spirit of Thanksgiving but also as supplicants for wisdom in our approach to the problems confronting this Nation."

To handle the 150,000 Washingtonians who decided to go home for that turkey dinner, the railroads added 10 sections and were prepared to use more if necessary. Business out of Union Station was estimated at between 30 and 50 per cent higher than usual. Incoming traffic was only slightly above normal.

The same crowded picture occurred at National Airport, where one airline reported business was up 100 per cent, and at bus terminals, which "rolled plenty of extra sections."

Most travelers bought tickets to eastern cities—Philadelphia, New York, Boston—transportation officials announced. The day's peak business came between 4 and 8 p. m.

All set for a four-day vacation were from 10,000 to 15,000 Federal Government employes, the Civil Service Commission estimated. They are workers who will take Friday off against their annual

D. C. Orders Speed Limit Cut On Sections of 14 Streets

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered the speed limit on sections of 14 important District arteries, including 16th st. nw., reduced from 30 miles an hour to 25 miles an hour, effective January 1.

The changes affect many areas that have undergone a sharp increase in housing construction and number of street intersections.

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp recommended the speed limit change because of a greater increase in traffic volume, accidents and complaints by residents along the streets.

The 25-mile-an-hour limit will be effective on:

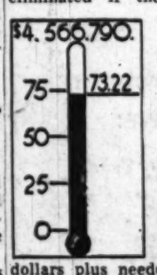
Red Feather leaders yesterday prepared to estimate essential community services which will be eliminated if the lagging 1949 drive fails.



General Campaign Chairman Chauncey Parker ordered the drive extended for a third time—to December 3—when what was booked as the "final" report luncheon failed to produce the million dollars plus needed to reach the goal. The campaign originally was scheduled to end November 4.

Some 250 volunteer solicitors, at Hotel Washington, turned in receipts bringing the total to $3,343,762.41—or 73.22 per cent of the $4,566,790 goal.

Inspector Kelly, War and Police Veteran, Almost a Reserve Corps All by Himself

So Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly has been named commander of the Police Department's new civilian reserve corps! A natural, that. He's something of a one-man reserve corps himself.

Here's a cop who spends his nights running the force as an assistant superintendent of police, and many of his days drilling the shoeleather off the war veterans who make up the department's special civil disturbance unit—riot squad. He's spent weeks drawing up the plans for the auxiliary police.

The Washington Post
INSPECTOR KELLY
Heads "Operation CDU"

Despite his arduous stint, the 50-year-old inspector appears never to lack enthusiasm or energy. There seems to be an alertness on his bony-sharp face, an awareness in his steel-blue eyes, a tautness to his trim, straightbacked body. There's still a spring to his feet—after all the hundreds of blocks he's patroled.

Stern Disciplinarian

Sandy-haired Kelly is a disciplinarian. When he barks a command in that husky voice of his, he expects full attention to all the details. He takes his work seriously, and demands the same of his men.

The inspector developed this stern trait even before he joined the force nearly 30 years ago. He enlisted in the Army in his teens, and at 19 was already a sergeant in the field, chasing Pancho Villa, the Mexican bandit, across the border.

The pursuit was hardly over when the United States got into World War I. "Pat" Kelly was commissioned a second looey and sent to France with a machine-gun platoon. There he participated in three major offense actions, and was wounded by gas shell fragments in the Meuse-Argonne.

Joined Police in 1919

Kelly would have liked to remain in the Army after the war, but he lacked the educational requirements for a commission as a regular. Instead, he returned to Washington, married June 19, 1919, and enlisted in the Police Department.

Born in Fenton, Mich., Lloyd Kelly was brought to the District at the age of 6, when his father came here to work for the Government Printing Office. He attended Langdon, later McKinley Tech, but never was graduate. He first missed the diploma when he tried for a Regular Army commission. To make up the loss, he went to night school after joining the force, and this time he studied hard.

Inspector Kelly started out as a footman in No. 9 Precinct. His first arrest was a drunk. Seven years later he arrested another drunk in the slums of Goat Alley. Answering a trouble call, Kelly shoulder-crashed through a locked door to find himself confronted by a drink-maddened ax wielder. Kelly disarmed the maniac with a flying tackle.

Off to War Again

Early in '41, the Army called up Reservist Kelly—then a police captain in charge of Precinct No. 8—for active duty. Kelly served for five years, including duty in Africa, Italy and Austria.

Lieut. Col. Kelly exchanged his khaki for the blues of a police captain in the spring of '46. Since, he has been raised to inspector and assistant police superintendent.

On his infrequent hours of relaxation, Inspector Kelly is an amateur photographer. With his hobby, as with his work, he's a perfectionist.

He and Mrs. Kelly live at 405 N. Norwood st., Arlington. Their two sons, both veterans, are married. Son Lloyd is a member of the Falls Church police force.

Inspector Kelly used to be one of the best sharpshooters in the Police Department and has three cups to prove it. His eyes are admittedly failing a little now, but Kelly's reputation as a square-shooter is undimmed.

President Invites Russia to Join FAO

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday urged that Russia join the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, adding:

"I think that if we could discuss with the Russians our mutual interest in agriculture, it would not be so difficult to discuss our differences in other fields.

"It is most heartening," he continued, "that several eastern European nations are members of FAO. I hope this will continue to be true.

Mr. Truman's invitation to the Soviet Union to take part in the 58-nation study of world food problems was extended at a plenary session of FAO at the Shoreham that not only brought out a full turnout of the visiting staffs but crowded the foyer and lobbies of the hotel with visitors. After his address, the President and Mrs. Truman had a reception for FAO delegates at the hotel.

All Nations Invited

Not only was Russia invited—although that was the climax of his short address—but he also extended an invitation to "every country, old or new" to become a part of FAO.

That was interpreted in many circles as an urge that FAO reconsider its action in putting off the application of the Government of Israel for a year—an action taken Tuesday.

He also offered an open-handed invitation to Argentina to join FAO.

Mr. Truman then mentioned a subject that apparently will be a part of his domestic policies. He referred to the International Wheat Agreement tha the Eightieth Congress turned down.

"I regret," he said, "that this agreement was not ratified, but I pledge that if another one is negotiated, I will send it to the new Congress, which convenes in January, for approval."

Predicts Pact Will Pass

At this point the President departed from his prepared talk to predict that the "new Congress" would approve it. That brief side-remark brought an outburst of applause.

The President prepared for his invitation to Russia in the early moments of his speech, in describing American Thanksgiving Day traditions. He pointed out that Thanksgiving Day is a day when "differences are forgotten, and enemies become friends.

"There could be no more appropriate time for the United States to be host to a United Nations meeting," Mr. Truman said, "than during our cherished Thanksgiving holiday.

"Those of you of FAO know the importance to nearly all nations of the harvest-time celebration.

"Other peoples have been celebrating in their own way since ancient times. But there is one feature of our Thanksgiving celebration to which I should like to call your attention.

Bespeaks Spirit of Sharing

"Our Thanksgiving traditions were begun by some of the earliest settlers of this country. They thought of the Thanksgiving holiday as much more than an occasion for a big dinner and for thanks to God that the earth had produced an abundant harvest. There was another spirit behind the first Thanksgiving dinner.

"The colonists invited the Indians to join with them in their celebration. Around that first Thanksgiving table, differences were forgotten and enemies became friends."

He referred to the record-breaking harvest, but said that thanks for it is only the beginning of our thanksgiving—"just as it was only a part of Thanksgiving more than 200 years ago."

"The real spirit," he said, "of our holiday is in the sharing of this harvest and in a feeling of warm friendship and good will for others less fortunate.

Praises Extension Service

"That is the same spirit in which FAO has brought many nations together."

Mr. Truman then mentioned the work of the Agriculture Extension Service in this country, which, he said, is "essential to a high level of farm production."

"I know that FAO is already interested in an extension service," he said, "but I wish to emphasize that the United States stands ready to help in developing such systems in other countries.

"Here in the United States," he continued, "we have learned that financial credit is as much a tool of farm production as is a plow or a bushel of seed.

"Our system for making agricultural credit available to farmers is one of the keystones of our great farm program. It protects every farmer in the ownership of his land and in the planting of his crops.

Cites Role of World Bank

"That is why we have such hopes for the role that another international agency can play in building up the agricultural resources of under-developed countries. I refer to the International Bank. The credit needs of underdeveloped countries are great, however, and there is room for all kinds of help. This is a job for private lenders and cooperatives, as well as for government institutions."

Mr. Truman then declared that he saw "our world goal of abundant food" as meaning "an enlarged flow of commerce in all directions."

"An abundant food supply," he said, "will tear down many artificial trade barriers. Some of these barriers have been erected by those who hoped for protection against low commodity prices elsewhere, but this shortsighted move had led to a slow form of trade strangulation.

"We must look to food as a common tool for lowering such barriers. We must look to it as a sort of international language for modifying some of the shortsighted policies which have been hampering the commerce of the world."

He concluded this portion of his talk with the comment, "One of the ways o restore stability to the world is to produce plenty of food and see that it is distributed fairly.

"Hunger," he said, "has no nationality.

"Abundance should have no nationality either."

The President was applauded frequently, particularly when he made his invitation to Russia. He drew laughter when in commenting on a new international wheat agreement he hoped to send to Congress he remarked: "And I rather believe we'll get it approved this time!"

Shortly after his speech, plans were set in motion to draw up another wheat agreement. Charles F. Wilson of Canada, who took the leading part in preparing the old agreement, arrived for the FAO conference this week. He told reporters he will poll his nine-nation preparatory committee to see if January 25 is a satisfactory date to meet.

Laborites Ask To Extend Draft, Raise Service Pay

London, Nov. 24 (NYHT).—Minister of Defense A. V. Alexander announced today (1) an amendment to lengthen conscription service periods from 12 to 18 months and (2) increases in pay scales for Britain's armed forces.

Both announcements were received with strong reservations among members of the House of Commons for one reason or another. Conservatives began jumping up immediately to tell Alexander the pay increases "were quite inadequate," and at a meeting of Labor members of the House the defense minister found himself under fire from his own supporters for the extension of conscription.

Pay increases ranged from three shillings six pence a day (72 cents) to 10 shillings 6 pence ($2.10), and amounted to about 50 million dollars a year for all three services. Primarily the raises benefit married servicemen and officers.

March on Brazil Senate By Sailors Dispersed

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Army and police forces were alerted today following an unsuccessful demonstration yesterday by 700 navy sailors who attempted to enter the Senate to demand higher pay.

Marines using tear gas and bullets dispersed the sailors.

Reds' Prisoner No Spy, Says U. S. in Vienna

Vienna, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The U. S. Army charged today that the Russian "Gestapo-style" arrest of an Austrian official as a spy for the United States was an "insidious attempt" to undermine the Vienna government.

The "U. S. element (Army) takes a serious view" of the Russian charges, made yesterday by the official Soviet news agency, that the United States has hired Austrians for espionage work, the Army statement said.

The statement, issued at occupation headquarters here, "categorically" denied that "any Austrian official is working for U. S. interests."

The unusual Army pronouncement was made in reply to a report yesterday by the Russian news agency Tass that Margarethe Ottilinger, 30, Austrian section chief of the ministry of economic planning, had been held for a month "as a spy for American authorities." Tass said she had admitted working for the American Secret Service" since March, 1947.

Tass named Edward Kretzmann of Providence, R. I., a former lieutenant colonel in the intelligence branch here, as the man who hired Miss Ottilinger. He is now with the State Department in Washington.

Ceylon Ambassador Presents Credentials

G. C. S. Corea, Ceylon's first Ambassador to the United States, presented his credentials to President Truman yesterday.

The Ambassador said it was his country's "honest hope for the continued happiness and prosperity of the United States."

Mr. Truman assured him that "officials of this Government will work with him in closest collaboration." He added that the two countries and all other democratic nations must strive together to maintain freedom and peace.

France to Investigate Charge That Reds Called for Mutiny

Paris, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The government of Premier Henri Queuille, sustained in three Assembly votes, decided today to take action against Communist leaders accused of urging troops to mutiny.

The National Assembly expressed its support of Queuille by taking his side on three motions. Both the Communists and the conservatives led by Gen. Charles de Gaulle were rebuffed.

The first vote defeated a Communist motion, 316 to 164, with 43 abstentions. On the second vote, a De Gaullist motion was downed, 379 to 180.

The third motion, a positive expression of confidence introduced by middle-of-the-road parties, was passed 351 to 215.

The Assembly met after the cabinet had ordered an investigation of alleged attempts to undermine army loyalty and defame the government.

Judicial authorities were ordered to start procedings against "the person or persons unknown" who performed the subversive acts. Under French legal procedure, specific charges against individuals may be made later if warranted by the investigation.

Paris newspapers early this week charged that Andre Marty, a member of the Communist Party politbureau, urged French soldiers to disobey the orders of their officers in a speech at Rouen last Sunday.

The party formally denied the report, claiming Marty was not even in Rouen on that date.

U. S. Factory Worker Declared Better Producer Than Briton

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 24 (AP).—The American factory worker produces more than twice as much for his labor as the factory worker in the United Kingdom, a study made public by the International Labor Office showed today.

The survey, conducted over five years, showed that productivity in agriculture and transportation was about even in the two countries, and that the American output in mining was higher, due largely to natural conditions.

The comparative figures, compiled by L. Rostas, a British statistician, were based on the 1935-1939 average in 32 industries.

"If allowance is made for the shorter working week in the United States, output per manhour was perhaps 2.8 times as high," Rostas said in the section devoted to factory production.

Using the United Kingdom output between 1935 and 1939 as an index of 100, Rostas placed the United States figures as follows: Manufacturing, 215; mining, 415; public utilities and communications, 235; building and construction, 115; agriculture and fisheries, 103; transport, allowing for distances, 270-300 (not allowing for distances 100-110); distribution, 150, and finance, 170.

According to the survey, output per worker in the United States is highest in relation to United Kingdom output in the tin can, radio, motor car, biscuit, soap, rubber tire, glass container and paper industries.

Harvard Astronomers Discover Another Comet

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 24 (U.P.).—A new comet was discovered today by the Harvard University station in South Africa but it is considerably smaller than the "bright" comet discovered a fortnight ago. It is not visible without the aid of a telescope.

The new comet is in magnitude 7½ as compared with the so-called "bright" comet in the second magnitude.

It is 15 degrees from the southern pole of the heavens and is not visible in the Northern Hemisphere.

Sophoulis Stricken With Heart Attack

Patriot Fights Battle for Life

THEMISTOKLES SOPHOULIS
Suffers heart attack

Athens (Thursday), Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Aged Premier Themistokles Sophoulis collapsed in his office last night from a heart attack.

Physicians at first despaired for the life of the 88-year-old statesman. But it was announced at 9:30 p. m. that his pulse had returned to normal and that he was completely conscious. At 2 a. m. today, a bulletin said that the immediate danger had passed.

After a general examination later today it will be decided whether Sophoulis will continue as Premier, the bulletin said. Earlier, there were fears that the attack would bring an end to Sophoulis' long public career.

Sophoulis, veteran leader of the Liberal Party, resigned last week in the face of a political rebellion within his own party and wide dissatisfaction with his government's conduct of the civil war.

Vice Premier and Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris, leader of the Populist (Royalist) Party, was recalled from Paris to try to form a new government, but he was unable to do so.

Sophoulis agreed to try again, and eventually formed a cabinet which was approved by Parliament last Sunday by a two-vote margin.

King's Illness Hits Brokers

London, Nov. 24 (AP).—King George's illness which caused cancellation of the royal visit to Australia and New Zealand next year may cost insurance firms from a million to three million dollars.

Brokers and underwriters connected with Lloyds estimated the probable claims at 250,000 pounds (one million dollars). The Daily Express said the claims likely would total 750,000 pounds (three million dollars).

The policies were held by catering firms, amusement companies, flag-makers and others who stood to benefit from the royal visit but had to invest heavily in advance.

Premiums ran about 10 pounds 10 shillings ($42) per 100 pounds ($400) until recently when most brokers raised the rates to 15 pounds 15 shillings ($63) on the grounds the international situation might result in cancellation of the King's visit.

President Repeats Early Morning Walk

For the second day in a row, Mr. Truman left Blair House, his temporary residence, at 7 a. m. (EST). He was back 20 minutes later.

His Government Lost in Coup

PRESIDENT GALLEGOS

Venezuelan Army Overthrows Gallegos Rule, Takes Over Country Without Firing a Shot

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 24 (AP).—The army overthrew the government of President Romulo Gallegos without firing a shot today and announced it was in general control of the nation.

Troops occupied all public buildings at noon.

Lieut. Col. Marcos Perez Jimenez, chief of staff of the army, said the army carried out the coup because of the "incapacity" of the administration of the Democratic Action Party headed by Gallegos, and because "extremist" labor elements were threatening a general strike to support the President.

The army apparently acted when Lieut. Col. Mario Vargas, inspector general of the armed forces, returned from a recuperation of several months at Saranac Lake, New York, and threw in his lot with the military. Vargas, one of the leaders of the 1945 revolution, which overthrew President Isaias Mendina Angarita, had been counted in the Democratic Action camp.

Gallegos, who took office in February as the nations first President elected by a direct vote of the people, was at his home under protection of the army.

[Last July Gallegos came to the United States as the official guest of President Truman. The two Presidents went to Bolivar, Mo., where they dedicated a statue of Simon Bolivar, the South American liberator. The statue was a gift of the Venezuelan government to the town.—Editor's Note.]

(Private reports from Maracaibo in western Venezuela, center of the oil industry, where American capital has a stake of about two billion dollars, said oil workers had called a general strike throughout the state of Zulia, the region around Lake Maracaibo. The Creole Oil Co. (Standard of New Jersey) shut down, these reports said. There are about 8000 Americans working in Venezuela.

(Dispatches from Willemstad, Curacao, said the Army was broadcasting from Coro Station, an oil center west of Caracas, apparently after driving out the union workers who had been in control.)

Warns People by Radio

Lieut. Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud, Minister of Defense in the Gallegos cabinet, broadcast the first communique to the people after Gallegos' overthrow.

He asked everybody to stay home, warned foreigners not to interfere, said no meetings of more than three persons would be allowed, and gave orders to troop patrols to shoot immediately any looters or disturbers of the peace.

Delgado Chalbaud said the army had the full backing of the air force and navy.

In a broadcast announcing the army action, Perez Jimenez attacked the Democratic Action Party, which had been accused of monopolizing power under Gallegos. He said the army would not allow any group to use power to the detriment of the nation. He promised a new government that would follow a course of dignity.

The army acted suddenly in taking over the public buildings, including the presidential palace, radio stations and other centers of communications. Rifles and machine guns made their appearance everywhere.

City Caught by Surprise

The sudden development caught the city by surprise.

Only last night official quarters indicated a solution had been found to the week-long crisis by agreement of Gallegos with moderate army leaders to shelve his old Democratic Action cabinet and substitute a coalition.

Jap Hangings To Be Secret; Date Not Told

Tokyo, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker announced today that Gen. Hideki Tojo and six other condemned Japanese war criminals would be hanged in secret on an undisclosed date.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur early today rejected the appeals of the condemned men and 18 other major offenders. He directed Walker, as commanding general of the United States Eighth Army, to "execute the sentences as pronounced by the tribunal."

Walker said nobody but official Army witnesses would be present at the hangings.

Col. M. P. Echols, MacArthur's official spokesman, said the witnesses would number about five, including the Eighth Army's military police commander, the commanding officer of Sugamo Prison and "two or three" Army doctors.

Despite warnings that a secret execution would stimulate rumors that the men had not really been hanged, Walker said he lacked the authority to permit newspapermen to witness the hangings.

Correspondents have prepared a petition asking that newspapermen be admitted.

Chinese Strike By Air Again At Suchow Foe

Nanking, Nov. 24 (AP).—Government warplanes flew back into the battle of Suchow today, and press accounts asserted the new Communist offensive was thrown back on both the east and south.

Newspapers reported recapture of the anchor city of Suhsien, 50 miles south of Suchow.

Despite this and a rash of other optimistic dispatches, many observers believed the government still was losing ground in the battle for the Suchow-Nanking nerve center of China.

[The Communist radio reported no new gains but dismissed government claims of victory "during the past few days" as "hallucinations."]

Progovernment press reports said the units that captured Suhsien had linked with other Nationalist forces moving south from Suchow.

The official Central News Agency said three government columns had joined holdout forces around Nienchuang, 33 miles east of Suchow.

If true, the remnants of Gen. Huang Po-tao's Seventh Army Group—which took the main blow and was believed all but wiped out—have escaped a Red ring at Nienchuang.

Adventist Missionaries In China Evacuated

The General Conference of Adventists disclosed last night that all Seventh-Day Adventist missionaries in north and central China are being evacuated at once.

Officials said 27 of the missionary families are being sent to south China and three are being returned to this country.

A cable from W. H. Branson of Shanghai, president of the Adventists' China division, said plans are being made to close the Far Eastern Academy, an Adventist-run high school in Shanghai.

Red Atom Writers Scolded

Moscow, Nov. 24 (NYHT).—The Soviet campaign against bourgeois thinking in music, art, literature, architecture and biology was carried today into the field of atomic physics.

Vladimir Lvov, writing in the Literary Gazette, called on Russian scientists to spurn the Western bourgeois approach and apply the Marxist-Leninist technique to the atom. He said they were expected to fix the party line on a Marxist-Leninist basis in waging the struggle between Soviet and bourgeois theories of physics.

Lvov denounced four Soviet scientific writers for accepting what he described as the reactionary, idealistic, formalistic theories of foreign physics.

He recalled that a "ruthless struggle against reactionary idealism and formalism is being carried out today in our country on all sectors of the cultural front," and demanded that they also be smashed in the field of physics.

Yacov I. Frankel was attacked for his book, "Wave Mechanics," which Lvov said transplanted physics to the "world of mysticism." Another Soviet university textbook, by Prof. E. Shpolsky, was criticized for asserting that there is a limit to ability to localize the electron. A third Soviet scientist, Prof. M. Markov, was found to have engaged in a "theoretical somersault" in a magazine article he wrote last year.

The fourth, Prof. V. Svidesky, was taken to task for an article which appeared in a Leningrad University publication.

Markov and Svidersky were accused of "groveling before leaders of the Copenhagen bourgeois school of physics," of being "enemies of materialism" and of camouflaging their ideas by "draping their conceptions in Marxist and dialectical robes."

New Bars Are Seen To Mark's Control

By Walter Kerr

Paris, Nov. 24 (NYHT).—The three Western powers, in replies to a questionnaire on the Berlin problem, have pointed out that the situation has deteriorated sharply in recent weeks.

For this reason, they said, it would be extremely difficult to work out effective four-power control of the Russian mark as the city's sole currency, but they promised to study the matter further and pledged themselves to assist the Security Council in its attempt to find a solution.

The answers were sent to Dr. Juan A. Bramuglia, Argentine foreign minister and president of the Council, who last week submitted five questions to the four governments involved in the dispute. His efforts are based on the theory that the obstacles are technical rather than political.

All the answers are now in and Dr. Bramuglia has communicated them to the other five members of the Council who are not involved in the case.

They show:

1. That the Russians adhere to the position that they have maintained for many months.

2. That the United States, Britain and France adhere to the position they have maintained for many months.

3. That the barriers to agreement are increasing as the political situation in Berlin grows worse and worse.

The Russian reply, delivered Saturday, is a short, two-page document that carefully avoids detailed answers to the specific questions. The Western reply is six pages long and slightly more specific, but it leaves much to be worked out in subsequent negotiation.

Another document is being submitted by the British and French delegations for the study of Security Council experts. It is a paper drafted last September 7 by Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor in Germany, and approved by Gen. Pierre Koenig, French military governor. It attempts to define exactly what is meant by control and how the control would function.

The American Government had nothing to do with the preparation of this paper and it is not being submitted in its name, a fact that led some observers here today to think there was a strong difference of opinion in the Western camp. If there is one, it does not show in the reply to Dr. Bramuglia.

This reply called for a quadripartite financial commission that would control all Berlin credit and banking institutions, the bank of issue in the Soviet zone insofar as the city is concerned, export and import licenses and the city's budgetary affairs.

The Russians also ask for a four-power financial commission, but its powers would be limited.

Britain Eases Its Position on Palestine

By John G. Rogers

Paris, Nov. 24 (NYHT.).—In an effort to win American support, Britain has decided to amend its Palestine resolution in slight degree, it was disclosed tonight.

The British are accepting the American version of the powers of a proposed new Palestine conciliation commission, and also American emphasis on the desirability of bringing Jews and Arabs into direct negotiation with United Nations assistance.

Also, while they still support the Bernadotte plan which takes the Negev away from the Jews, the British now are willing to have the proposed commission give at least some weight to the original partition boundaries, in which the Negev was awarded to the Jews.

Apparently, however, the British are refusing to eliminate from their resolution an "instruction" to the proposed commission to fix Palestine boundaries generally on the basis of the Bernadotte report.

The British accepted several other amendments put forward by the United States U. N. delegation yesterday, but they also rejected several. They refused to abandon indorsement of the Bernadotte report as a "basis" for a Palestine settlement.

And they stuck to their stand that the U. N. General Assembly should make major decisions setting forth an outline for the conciliation commission to follow in its search for a settlement.

The Americans wanted the Assembly to decide but little detail and to leave many details up to the discretion of the conciliation commission in negotiation with the Jews and Arabs.

As the Palestine debate continued today before the Political Committee of the General Assembly, Syria made an implied Arab threat that Marshall Plan countries might be deprived of Middle Eastern oil if they persisted in following the United States lead on Palestine.

Reds Open Campaign to Free Germany of Occupation Troops

Berlin, Nov. 24 (AP).—A Communist drive to get all occupation troops out of Germany was launched tonight.

The German Peoples' Council, a Communist front organization and possible forerunner of an East German Parliament, apparently was voicing the Kremlin's policy when it demanded:

1. An immediate parley by the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Council to set up machinery to write a final peace treaty for Germany.

2. Removal of all occupation troops within a year after the treaty is signed.

Widely heralded as an important announcement a day in advance by the Soviet-licensed news agency ADN, the demand apparently had the full approval of the Russians. In effect it confirmed that the Soviets want everyone to pull out of Germany, as the Russians did in Korea, once they have Communist police state machinery set up in the eastern zone.

The campaign for a Foreign Ministers' Council meeting, in any event, appeared headed for a stumble. The Western powers have refused repeatedly to convene with Russia on that level to negotiate on German questions as long as the Soviet blockade of Berlin continues.

The Western powers have laid the blockade before the United Nations Security Council while feeding Berlin by air. Illustrating the determination of that position, their airlift today brought 5932 tons of supplies into the city.

Russian Target Practice Announcement Protested

Berlin, Nov. 24 (NYHT).—Representatives of the British military government lodged a verbal protest today after the Russians announced that target practice would be held in a portion of the British air corridor over Kremmel, just outside Berlin.

The Russian announcement said the practice would be held this morning and early afternoon. British pilots reported they saw no gunfire or other activities, and the period passed without incident.

Labor Democracies' Hope, Says Douglas

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 24 (AP).—Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court today named labor as the democracies' chief hope for survival in "a world fraught with fear."

He spoke at the national CIO convention.

Delegates gave the longest ovation of the convention to the jurist, who traced the growth of the world's ills, and the rise of labor.

Justice Douglas concluded his talk with:

"Today labor, better than any other element in our society, can weld the democrats of the world into a group within its power to guide western civilization, neither to the right nor to the left, but down the broad middle highway to soundance, to security and to peace."

Douglas told the delegates, "These are fateful days for all peoples of the world. Powerful ideological forces are pitted against each other. There is an increasing polarization to the left and to the right. But the great middle group in all nations are the Democrats.

Labor's rise in the last two generations saved workers from "industrial serfdom," he said, and added, "the human welfare state is the great political invention of the twentieth century."

He said, "but while labor was the prime promoter of the new human welfare state, all groups in society—farmers, business and the professions—were its beneficiaries." He asserted that while American labor became free, European labor was persecuted and became suspicious of all outside their own class.

"Out of this arises the importance of the fact that American labor carries good credentials to western Europe. Doors tightly closed to all others may open at its knock. Words from American labor promise to find quick acceptance," Douglas continued.

"The Communists miss the point of history when they make class warfare the challenge of this age. That is not the challenge. The challenge is more subtle and demanding. The challenge is to make the modern industrial plant operate smoothly and productively for the benefit of all."

CIO Votes Backing Of PAC Decisions

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 24 (AP).—The CIO convention voted 572 to 49 today for a resolution calling on all CIO unions to give "unstinting support" to the CIO Political Action Committee decisions.

The vote followed another attack on Communists by President Philip Murray.

Murray said bluntly that the men who spoke against the resolution did so because the Communist Party's "line has changed."

Mentioning three of the speakers by name, Murray said they were uttering "violent tripe" and showing "weakness."

Murray said the three were Reid Robinson, former president of the Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers; Ben Gold, president of the Fur Workers; and Joseph Selly, president of the American Communications Association.

1944 Support Cited

Murray said all three supported a similar resolution on political action at the 1944 CIO convention. He said the speakers changed because "the line has changed."

Murray declared that when he speaks of the "reprehensible practices" of Communists in the labor movement, he also is addressing himself to every saboteur who aligns himself with the Communist Party anywhere in the world."

The resolution reiterates the CIO's position against any third party.

It also pledges cooperation with President Truman in carrying out campaign pledges.

Reid, Robinson, opposing the measure, argued that CIO union leaders should have the right to follow their own convictions. Ben Gold denied that Henry Wallace adherents attempted to divide the CIO movement.

Justice Douglas Speaks

The left and right wing argument broke into fury this afternoon, following a brief truce to hear Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas call upon labor to lead the way to future peace.

President Murray termed Douglas' speech an "historic" address whose "effect will be felt throughout the land."

In the debate over a third party, the right began implying that those on the left were Communist-dominated.

Then arose Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the United Electrical Workers, in roaring mood.

"You are smearing us with a red brush," shouted the man who was chairman of the Progressive Party convention in Philadelphia last July.

"We are told to toe the line or get out. I don't think you really mean that. I won't sacrifice my rights. No man is ever going to prevent me from exercising my rights as a citizen," Fitzgerald continued.

Later Fitzgerald shouted:

"I don't give a damn for Russia. I think Vishinsky and Molotov have engaged in saber-rattling."

Follows Murray Challenge

This followed by a day Murray's challenge to the Wallace supporters to criticize Russia "for once" and become accepted as "free thinkers."

Fitzgerald also asserted that "if President Truman makes a sincere effort to carry out the promises of the Democratic platform, I will tell the Progressive Party to go to hell and I'll be on President Truman's bandwagon."

Business Prepares Profits Case

New York, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Nation's business is facing a congressional probe of profits in a highly vulnerable position but with some powerful defense arguments.

Corporate profits are aimed beyond 20 billion dollars for all of 1948, a record figure. The phrase "new high" has become a commonplace in company reports.

Senator Flanders, a Vermont Republican, has announced that Congress wants to know what business and industry are going to do with their earnings.

Businessmen admit that profits are big, almost fantastic, when compared to some lean years. But, they argue, big profits are essential to run a company in these days of inflated prices.

Industry is collecting more money, businessmen say, but they spend more, too—wages are higher, raw materials are higher, replacement costs are higher, taxes are higher.

Stockholders are getting more money in the form of dividends, they say, but they are being paid in inflated dollars—and besides they point to the years in which the stockholders got little or nothing in return for their investment.

Labor contends that it is forced to fight for higher wages because business forces prices up, or takes advantage of scarcity, in order to make more money. Business says that it is forced to raise prices because of the demands of labor.

Ruling Extends NLRB Power

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that it has power to stop a strike in a wholly local business if the purpose of the strike is to make the firm stop doing business with an interstate concern.

The NLRB's jurisdiction is confined to labor troubles affecting interstate commerce and the decision is important because of an apparent extension of board power.

The 4-to-1 ruling was made in a case involving a strike of four members of the AFL carpenters' union who were engaged in remodeling a private home at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Ruled Secondary Boycott

The board found that the only reason for the strike was to stop installation at the home of floor coverings sold by Watson's Specialty Store, Chattanooga. The store is one of a chain of more than 2 dozen selling floor materials in seven States.

The carpenters union was trying to get the Watson firm's employes to join the union. The board ruled that the strike at the private home to prevent use of materials sold by Watson was a secondary boycott barred by the Taft-Hartley Law.

It was the board's first ruling on secondary boycotts in the building trades industry.

The union had argued that the NLRB lacked jurisdiction because the home remodeling job was strictly local—and outside interstate commerce.

But the board said such union "pressure could well result in a substantial decrease in Watson's business and in material purchased from points outside the State of Tennessee."

The sole dissent was cast by Board Member John M. Houston who said the controversy was too "remote," "insubstantial" and "local in character" to warrant exercise of Federal power.

Ching Tackles Dock Strike

56,000 cases of Scotch whisky, 29,000 stems of bananas, nuts, dates, figs and other perishable Chrimstmas delicacies, were tied up in 121 ships.

Meanwhile two other strikes and one threatened walkout further snarled New York City's tangled transportation at the height of the pre-Christmas rush.

The railway express agency's embargo on virtually all shipments in and out of the city affected an estimated one-fourth of the Nation's express shipments. The company blamed the embargo on a union slowdown to protest the firing of 13 employes, and predicted that as many as 8000 workers might be put out of work.

The city's second truck strike in two months affected about one-third of the city's trucking industry. John J. O'Rourke, president of AFL Teamsters Local 282, announced that 105 of some 300 companies involved had settled on the union's terms of a 22½ cents an hour wage increase. But he estimated that 2650 of the local's 4000 members still were out.

Passengers Stage 'Sit-in'

position but so far have found no lawyer aboard."

Captain Ford told Dr. Crane the company would try to take care of people whose wallets are thin, the latter reported.

The captain said the decision to disembark the passengers was necessary because the long stay in port with a full load of passengers was creating "an impossible sanitary condition."

Dr. Crane said the captain reported the ship was running out of food.

"We suggested rationing the food but the captain said that was not possible," Dr. Crane added.

The cabin class meeting took up a collection for money to send cables to the American Federation of Labor officials informing them of the "serious plight" of some passengers, particularly mothers with children. The AFL is involved in the East Coast strike.

The Cunard line has promised the crew not to sail the Elizabeth to New York until the East Coast dock tieup is ended.

The Elizabeth originally had taken on 1600 passengers at Southampton and was due to pick up another 700 at Cherbourg.

Leaders Will Urge Printers to Reject $5 Wage Boost

An official of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101 (AFL), said yesterday the latest contract offer of Washington newspaper publishers is "not adequate" and should be rejected.

James J. O'Connor, union president, said union officers, the scale committee and E. S. Sinnig, an international representative of the union, have agreed to urge members to turn down the proposal at a meeting Sunday at 2 p. m. in Pythian Temple.

The latest proposal would give workers on all shifts a $5 weekly boost and employes with five years' service would get a third week of vacation. The union has asked higher wages—from $85 to $100 for the day shift, $90 to $110 for the night shift and $95 to $110 for the third shift. Other demands include a reduction in hours for third-shift workers, sick leave and a pension plan.

NLRB Makes Grievance Rule

By The Associated Press

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that a labor contract agreement to settle disputes by an established grievance procedure is no waiver of a union's legal right to strike.

The five-man board ruled in a 4-to-1 decision that a union can bypass the grievance machinery and call a strike to win its point.

The far-reaching ruling brought a sharp dissent from one board member, J. Copeland Gray. He said failure to submit a dispute to an agreed grievance procedure is an illegal breach of contract.

A complicated case brought by the CIO United Auto Workers' Union against Dorsey Trailers, Inc., Elba, Ala., prompted the ruling. The case involved a hectic period of company-union relations in 1945 and 1946.

History of Dispute

In May, 1946, the company fired a worker for smoking in violation of a plant rule. The workers walked out in protest, but voluntarily offered within a few hours to return to work.

The company, however, ordered a two-week shutdown as penalty against the workers for their defiance, but later agreed with the union to end the lay-off after four days.

The NLRB ruled that the four-day shutdown was an illegal discrimination punishing the workers for concerted union activity. It ordered the company to pay the workers for their four-day wage loss.

In reasoning that the workers had a legal right to strike despite the agreed grievance machinery the NLRB said:

"It is well recognized that the right to strike may be waived through a no-strike clause in the collective bargain. We have no reluctance in denying the protection of the act to employes who strike in the face of such a commitment.

"But we are unwilling to visit this extreme penalty upon employes in the absence of a clear showing of such a waiver by them. Admittedly, the contract (then in force) did not contain a no-strike clause; no showing was made that the employes agreed or intended that disputes would be resolved only through the grievance procedure.

"To suggest that a grievance procedure in a contract also constitutes a no-strike commitment is to ignore the real and practical aspects of collective bargaining as developed over the years.

"Traditionally, grievance clauses are demanded by the bargaining agent (the union) for the benefit of employes, and no-strike provisions by the employer for its own protection."

In dissenting, Gray said the strike was the very thing the contract was intended to avoid and "the strikers deprived the respondent (the company) of the substantial contract right of having disputes peacefully resolved."

Another phase of the case involved a second strike a few months later. In the interim a new contract had been negotiated containing a no-strike pledge. Because of the pledge the NLRB ruled the second strike was illegal.

Ike Explains Battle of Bulge

contested battles of the entire campaign.

Meanwhile, south of the Ardennes Forest, the Third Army launched an attack on November 8. Its offensive was aimed generally at the Saar region and made excellent initial progress. North of Metz, bridgeheads were established across the Moselle, and shortly after the middle of November the leading troops crossed the German frontier. Metz was surrounded and cut off. The city surrendered November 22.

Still farther south there was much fighting in Devers' Sixth Army Group. During September it advanced northward through the Rhone Valley and came in abreast of the Third Army line, facing eastward in the difficult Vosges

NAZI HANDS OVER SIDEARMS—At the surrender of the Metz garrison in November, 1944, the German colonel (right) turned his pistol over to Maj. John T. Russell of Chillicothe, Ill. The ceremony was at Fort San Quentin, commanded by the Wehrmacht officer

Mountain area. Devers attacked that formidable barrier on November 14, in an attempt to penetrate into the plains of Alsace.

The French First Army led the attack on Devers' front and breached the Belfort Gap within a week. Its leading troops quickly reached the Rhine. This turned the flank of the German position in the Vosges and forced a general withdrawal in front of the United States Seventh Army under General Patch.

The fighting throughout the front from Switzerland to the mouth of the Rhine descended during the late fall months to the dirtiest kind of infantry slugging. Advances were slow and laborious. Gains were ordinarily measured in terms of yards rather than miles. Operations became mainly a matter of artillery and ammunition and, on the part of the infantry, endurance, stamina and courage.

In the late fall, as we approached the borders of Germany, we studied the desirability of committing our Air Force to the destruction of the Rhine bridges, on which the existence of the German forces west of the river depended. If all of them could be destroyed, it was certain that with our great Air Force we could so limit the usefulness of floating bridges that the enemy would soon have to withdraw. We entertained no hope of saving these bridges for our own later use.

Our reasons for declining to commit the Air Force against the bridges were based upon considerations of priority and effectiveness. To destroy merely a few was of little use. A total of 26 major bridges, it was reported to me at that time, spanned the river; some 20 of them would have to be rendered useless or the effort would be only partially effective. Even with the best of flying conditions the task would require a prolonged and heavy bombing effort. The Air Staff cauculated that destruction of the bulk of the bridges would require vastly more time and bomb tonnage than we could afford to divert from other vitally important purposes.

One of the greatest of these other purposes was to deplete Germany's reserve of fuel oil. By this time the enemy was getting into precarious position with respect to this vital item of supply. The orders to the heavy bombers were to keep pounding all sources of oil, refineries, and distribution systems to the limit of their ability. This tactic had a great effect not only generally upon the entire war-making power of Germany, but also directly upon the front.

Through late November and early December the badly stretched condition of our troops caused constant concern, particularly on Bradley's front. In order to maintain the two attacks that we then considered important, we had to concentrate available forces in the vicinity of the Roer dams on the north and bordering the Saar on the south. This weakened the static, or protective, force in the Ardennes region.

The responsibility for maintaining only four divisions on the Ardennes front and for running the risk of a large German penetration in that area was mine. At any moment from November 1 onward I could have passed to the defensive along the whole front and made our lines absolutely secure from attack while we awaited reinforcements.

Ardennes Weakness Wrongly Discounted

The German Sixth Panzer Army, which had appeared on our front, was the strongest and most efficient mobile reserve remaining to the enemy within his whole country. At that time some Intelligence reports indicated a growing anxiety about our weakness in the Ardennes, where we knew that the enemy was increasing his infantry formations. Previously he had, like ourselves, been using that portion of the front in which to rest tired divisions.

This type of report, however, is always coming from one portion or another of a front. The commander who took counsel only of all the gloomy Intelligence estimates would never win a battle; he would forever be sitting, fearfully waiting for the predicted catastrophes.

In any event the fighting during the autumn followed the pattern I had personally prescribed. We remained on the offensive and weakened ourselves where necessary to maintain those offensives. This plan gave the German opportunity to launch his attack against a weak portion of our lines. If giving him that chance is to be condemned by historians, their condemnation should be directed at me alone.

The Battle of the Ardennes, sometimes called the Battle of the Bulge, was Hitler's last bid for victory in the war. Von Rundstedt was in command of the German forces on December 16, 1944, when a staff officer reported to General Eisenhower and General Bradley, at the former's headquarters, a few slight penetrations of the American lines in the Ardennes. Eisenhower knew at once that this was no local attack, but both he and Bradley knew also that it set the stage for the "calculated risk" which both men took and which finally marked the end of Germany as a fighting power.

The beginning of this battle will be described in tomorrow's installment of "Crusade in Europe," to be published here.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book published by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

Patent Agreement Stops Trust Suit

Attorney General Clark yesterday announced the Eastman Kodak Co. has made an agreement which he said will "open the color motion picture industry to competition." The agreement was a consent judgment ending an antitrust suit against the company.

The Attorney General said the judgment was entered yesterday afternoon by Judge William C. Mathes in the Federal District Court of Los Angeles.

It grows out of the Justice Department suit filed last year charging Eastman, Technicolor Inc., and Technicolor Moton Picture Corp. with conspiring to monopolize the making of professional color movies.

Many Women Seek New Police Posts

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

The Police Department yesterday got a hearty response from Washington women interested in becoming members of the uniformed forces.

Scores called at headquarters and the Women's Bureau to ask: "What kind of work is it? What's the salary? What are the hours?"

Many of them were Government employes, like Mrs. Stanlie Barton, 23, of 300 Division ave. ne., a typist, who believes the job would be "very interesting."

"I've always enjoyed doing civic work. At one time I helped register men for the draft," Mrs. Barton explained. She said her husband, Louis Barton, who drives a taxicab, has taken the examinations to be a policeman and is awaiting word on whether he will be accepted on the regular force.

What Women Will Do

As an answer to inquiries, officials sketched the plan under which it is hoped to enroll 80 uniformed policewomen as assistant precinct station clerks, to relieve policemen for other duty.

As station clerks, the women will assist in recording arrests, and preparing reports, requisitions and property returns. They will receive, send and record telephone and teletype messages, and take complaints from citizens.

They will be bonded, so that as station clerks they may handle money received as collateral, property taken from prisoners, either as evidence of crime or for safekeeping, and any other money or valuables turned over to them.

Hours Around Clock

Like the men, the women will be on duty around the clock, working in three 8-hour shifts, starting at 8 a. m., 4 p. m. and midnight. They will work 6 days a week.

Beginning salary for the job, comparable to a high Government clerical rating, will be $2720 annually, the same as a rookie policemen. Police officials have not yet decided if women will follow the same pay raise scale as uniformed policemen. The men start as Class 1 privates, and are given automatic raises, contingent on satisfactory service and conduct, up to Class 6, with an annual salary of $3398.

Qualifications for Job

Women applicants must be between 21 and 33 years old and at least 5 feet 4 inches tall, with a minimum weight of 114 pounds. They may be married and may have children, but must convince police officials that taking the job will not interefere with or upset family life.

The department is looking for alert, well-balanced women, who have an aptitude for public relations as well as clerical work. They will have to serve as "buffers," taking the brunt of complaints, officials pointed out.

The women will attend the police rookie school, getting the same training as the men, including how to shoot. They will also be given special courses in clerical work and the keeping of records.

Uniforms for the women probably will be patterned after the Wave uniforms, which are comfortable and stylish, officials said. The women will be issued guns when they qualify as marksmen. Members of the Women's Bureau are not uniformed but are issued weapons.

Applicants Must Wait

Women callers yesterday were referred to the Civil Service Commission, where they learned that applications for the job will not be accepted until the date of examinations is announced. The date will not be set until an official request for the examinations is received from the Police Department, a commission spokesman said.

In the meantime, police officials suggested that any woman who wants to get her name on record notify the department by letter.

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, who commands the Women's Bureau, said yesterday she hopes that after their probationary period as station clerks some of the women will seek additional training, particularly in social work, so that they can do the same type of work now being done by the Women's Bureau.

She said the bureau at present is 7 women short of its quota of 35, with few applications.

'1-Man Crime Wave'

Ex-Officer Gets 5 Years For Holdups

Joseph H. Sullivan, 30, a former Army lieutenant who was called a "one-man crime wave" when arrested last spring, was sentenced yesterday to serve from 5 to 15 years' imprisonment for armed robbery.

The sentence was imposed by District Court Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Sullivan had pleaded guilty to holdups of the Western Union office, 1728 Connecticut ave. nw., where $40 was taken last April; High's Ice Cream store, 4431 Wisconsin ave., where $48 was taken; and the Mutual Credit Co., where $96 was taken.

Sullivan was trapped by a policeman in an alley a few blocks from the Mutual Credit Co. after he tried to make a wild getaway in a hearse, a taxi and on foot last July.

At the time of the holdups, Sullivan's victims told police he had approached them politely but firmly and demanded whatever money they had.

In other sentences imposed by the court, Lubbie D. Harris, 28, of Baltimore, received two to six years and John M. Steele, 29, of Norfolk, Va., 20 months to five years for their part in the $70 holdup of the Little Tavern, 7th and H sts. ne. Two others are yet to be tried in the case.

James E. Harris, 30, of 1215 Stevens rd. se., was sentenced to three to nine years in prison by Judge Henry M. Schweinhaut for rape of a 47-year-old woman in her home. According to police, Harris was at a party at the woman's residence and after the guests left, he attacked her.

John Jones, 27, and Julius W. Avont, 33, no known addresses, were each sentenced to 20 months to five years for burglary of a tailor shop at 643 Florida ave. nw. Twenty-five suits, valued at $500, were taken, police said.

1 Out of 10 D. C. Births Illegitimate

Washington's illegitimacy rate—especially among teen-agers—is on the upgrade again.

Joseph Irvine, District vital statistician, said yesterday that the rate of one illegitimate birth to every 10 live births for the first 10 months of this year "probably" sets an all-time record for illegitimacy.

Statistically, Washington has had 97 illegitimate births for every 1000 live births so far this year. Of the total number of births, 29 of every 1000 white births were illegitimate, and 238 of every 1000 Negro births were illegitimate.

For the same period last year, 79 of every 1000 live births in Washington were illegitimate, with 26 of every 1000 white births and 209 of every 1000 Negro births.

In the last prewar year, 1941, the first 10 months showed 84 of every 1000 live births to be illegitimate, with 21 of every 1000 white births and 236 of every 1000 Negro births in this category.

Police Question Hit-Run Suspect In Montgomery

Montgomery County police last night were questioning a suspect in the hit-run accident which fatally injured a 49-year-old man last Saturday on the Norbeck-Norwood rd.

The suspect was picked up yesterday afternoon when an automobile was found in the vicinity of the accident, its windshield and windows smashed out.

The investigation is being handled by Sergt. Gassaway Linthicum, Detective Corpl. Jesse B. Day and Corpl. John Higdon of the Rockville station.

Injured in the accident was Clarence Wilkerson, a laborer of Gaithersburg, Md. He died Tuesday in Montgomery General Hospital.

O'Conor Says Truman To Weigh Hoover Plan

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) said yesterday he is confident that President Truman will "weigh carefully" recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Government.

The Maryland Senator said after a White House call that he had discussed the study with Mr. Truman.

The commission, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, was set up by the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress.

O'Conor is a member of the Senate Expenditures Committee which approved legislation creating the commission.

OUT TO SERVE—First to apply for duty on the new Volunteer Police Force was J. F. Taylor, sr., of 4725 12th st. ne., a former member of the wartime Auxiliary Police. He turned in his letter of application yesterday to Police Inspector Walter T. Storm at police headquarters

Civilian Police Guns to Wait

we're going to have to wait until the first batch of men is trained before we decide this question."

Plans for the reserves call for them to be ordered into action by the District Commissioners "during any emergency of riot, pestilence, invasion, insurrection, or during any day of public election, ceremony, or celebration."

The men will be trained in groups of 70, and the Police Department hopes the first group will have completed a 30 hours' basic training course in time for President Truman's inauguration in January. The basic training does not include pistol practice.

Asked if any compensation plan will be available for reservists injured on duty, Major Barrett said: "We talked about compensation, but have not made any plans as yet." He would not say whether he believes this will require legislation.

Three men in the office of Inspector Walter Storm were answering telephone inquiries about the reserve corps all day, with inquiries coming in at the rate of about one every five minutes. Callers were told to write or appear in person for an application, although the forms were not available in quantity yesterday.

The first application was handed to Joseph F. Taylor, sr., 46, of 4725 12th st. ne., a superintendent in the sales department of the Hecht Co. Taylor, an auxiliary policemen during the war with 2000 hours to his credit, reached the rank of auxiliary lieutenant—highest rank to be given in the current corps—and helped train others.

Asked yesterday if he believes the reserve plan will conflict with other police departments and jurisdictions in the metropolitan area, Major Barrett said: "Our relationships with other police departments in the past have been very good and we expect to continue our close cooperation."

The reserve plan is modeled on one in effect in Los Angeles. Several months ago, the police chief of Los Angeles described his program to local police.

It was announced when the plan was proposed to the Commissioners that Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly would command the corps, if approved, and Inspector Storm would be in charge of training.

Members of the reserve must satisfactorily complete the following courses: General police duties and responsibilities; discipline, conduct, appearance and courtesy; powers and duties of reserve police; traffic control; patrol methods; arrest procedures; use of firearms and practical training in handling of firearms; law of arrests; law of evidence; law of crimes.

Corps members will be empowered to make arrests for felonies and serious misdemeanors. If permitted to have weapons, they could carry them from their homes to places of duty.

2 Hurt When Truck And 3 Autos Collide

Two persons were injured yesterday in a collision involving a truck and three automobiles at Greenbelt rd. and Rhose Island ave., near Branchville, in Prince Georges County, Md.

The injured were Mrs. Susan McCall, 33, of 9021 48th pl., Branchville, Md., who suffered a broken ankle, and her 16-month-old daughter, Mary Jane, whose collarbone was broken. Both were treated at Leland Memorial Hospital.

The truck, driven by Charles Ward Houlihan, 22, of 5812 Quebec st., Berwyn, Md., according to Prince Georges County police, struck the McCall car and forced it into two parked cars.

Both drivers were charged with reckless driving by colliding and are scheduled to appear November 29 at Hyattsville Police Court. Houlihan was not injured.

In Arlington County, Va., Andrew B. Knight, 33, of 816 Arlington Mill dr., Arlington, was charged with driving while drunk yesterday after his car hit a telephone pole, injuring his wife and another passenger.

The accident occurred at 4:45 a. m. yesterday in front of 3519 Pershing dr., Arlington.

Knight, picture editor of The Washington Times-Herald, was not injured. His wife, a reporter on the same paper, required 17 stitches at Arlington Hospital.

Knight was released in custody of his attorney, Oren R. Lewis. Hearing in Arlington County Court was set for next Tuesday.

M. W. Ball Quits Interior Post As Oil, Gas Chief

J. A. Krug, Secretary of Interior, said yesterday he has accepted the resignation of Max W. Ball, director of the oil and gas division, effective December 1.

Ball

Ball resigned to return to private business as a geologist and pertroleum engineer.

Robert Friedman recently was appointed associate director of the division.

Krug wrote Ball:

"In spearheading the development of the National Petroleum Council as a two-way street for Government-industry cooperation, you have done a job of lasting benefit to the Government, industry and the public."

Ball, who is from Denver, plans to establish an office in Washington.

Prisoner Admits Throwing Coed's Body From Bridge

Boulder, Colo., Nov. 23 (U.P.).—Joseph S. Walker, 31, Boulder metalworker, admitted in a dictated statement tonight that he had carried Theresa Foster's body in his car trunk and hurled it from a bridge, but he denied that he had raped or killed the 18-year-old coed.

Walker told authorities that the girl was killed by a "chubby young man, about 21 to 25." Walker said the man was with the girl when he picked her up on a main street in Boulder.

In a secluded lane, District Attorney Hatfield Chilson quoted Walker, the young man with the coed demanded that he be allowed to drive Walker's coupe. Walker said the man grabbed a .45 caliber pistol and a struggle ensued. Walker told Chilson:

"When I awoke, there was blood all over me and my bones were stiff. The man was gone. Part of the girl's body was dangling from the trunk of the car."

Walker said he pushed the coed's body into the trunk, drove to Coal Creek Canyon and heaved the body into the creek, tossing her clothes beside the body.

'Where Do We Go From Here, Boys . . .?'

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

$396 Million in New Schools Sought in Va.

involves he atccumulaed need over the past 18 years, in which there was a lag in the necessary construction, as well as the present and future needs for the projected 10-ye r pe.iod.

The figure includes the cost of building projects now under construction, Miller said. The total figure also was broken down to show that $301,186,680 represented the reported needs of the 100 counties, while the balance of $94,827,524 represented the reported needs of the 25 cities.

The superintendent said that immediate needs—for the 1948-50 period—amounted to $185,904,093, of which $144,940,750 was for needed county construction.

In the two to five-year range, 1951-53, the needs were put at $104,397,859 additional and in the five to 10-year range, 1954-58, the analysis calls for another $83,762,756.

The State superintendent also released a resolution adopted by the State Board of Education after it had examined the report.

"The board believes that the problem presented in this report is one which should have careful consideration by the educational agencies of the State, the school boards and governing bodies of the counties and cities and the State Legislature as well as the people of the State," it said.

"It is the conviction of the board that these needs represent definitely an emergency, the solution of which calls for prompt consideration and action on the part of both the State and the localities."

Thus, the State Board of Education gave a push to the drive now on in some quarters for a sales session of the General Assembly.

Governor Tuck, who received the report at a luncheon session with the board at the Mansion here yesterday, had no comment to make on the matter, taking the view that the report was a child of the education department and that it was up to the State board to release it.

The Governor has declined to explore publicly the possibilities of his calling a special sales tax session although more than half the counties in the State have called upon him to take such action.

The superintendent's analysis showed there was a close relation in the needs between Negro and white schools in both the counties and cities in relation to proposed expenditures and comparative enrollments.

29 Per Cent for Negro Schools

Twenty-nine per cent of the 10-year total or $114,830,553 is listed as needed for Negro schools whose enrollment was 26.8 per cent of the total school population.

The analysis said further that information collected concerning taxation records of the localities showed that every county and city in the State had increased local funds for schools in 1947 over the year 1940 through one means or another. These means, it said, included increases in school tax rates, increased cash appropriations and increased assessments. The report added:

"It is significant to note that even though 73 of the 125 counties and cities show increases in their total net tax rates for 1947 as compared with 1940, over this period of time the assessed valuation of property has been increased in 121 of the 125 counties and cities.

Miller said in his report, however, that because of changing price levels of labor and materials it was "hazardous" to estimate construction costs accurately.

Northern Virginia Needs $37 Million

Arlington and Fairfax Counties and the City of Alexandria have reported to the Virginia State Board of Education they need approximately 37 million dollars to cover school construction costs, it was revealed yesterday.

Arlington County's figure covered only immediate needs during the next five years, amounting to $11,870,000. Of this, $6,526,000 has already been authorized in bond issues. The total would cover 284 classrooms, 40 kindergarten rooms—of which there is none at present—and two gymnasiums.

In Fairfax County, Superintendent W. T. Woodson said the total was "more than 19 million dollars" for the next 10 years. The County School Emergency Committee is currently pressing for a $7,500,000 bond issue for schools. Both the school board and board of supervisors have supported a special sales tax session of the General Assembly.

Superintendent T. C. Williams of Alexandria said approximately six million dollars is needed for construction during the next four years. Less than one million dollars more was requested in the over-all total for 10 years, he said. Voters passed a $2,800,000 bond issue last summer to cover immediate needs in Alexandria.

White House Staff Has Luncheon for Trumans

The White House staff entertained at luncheon yesterday for President Truman, his wife and daughter, members of the Cabinet and their wives and other top Government figures.

Luncheon was served in the staff dining room in the Executive Wing of the White House.

In addition to the Cabinet, the guests included Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson and his wife and Leslie Biffle, director of the Democratic policy committee in the Senate and Mrs. Biffle.

Sawyer to Ask Truman for 'Club' On Materials

By the United Press

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer will ask President Truman for "club-in-the-closet" powers to ration scarce materials for use by industry, it was reported reliably last night.

His proposal calls for Congress to give the Government stand-by authority to ration scarce materials on a "selective" basis if that is found necessary.

It would not be consumer rationing, but a strengthened form of the voluntary allocation law passed by the GOP-controlled 80th Congress. That law permits voluntary agreements to channel scarce materials to industries needing them badly.

Commerce Department officials said Sawyer's proposal is in reply to the President's request for legislative suggestions from all Government bureaus for use in his state-of-the-Union message to Congress in January.

More Reserve Corps Activated

Fort Meade, Md., Nov. 24 (AP).—Second Army headquarters said today it is activating 46 more Organized Reserve Corps units in its seven-State area, including four units in Maryland.

Maryland is expected to make ready 20 reserve companies and battalions for service with a planned 18-division national striking force.

To supply this increase in reserve forces, the Reserve Officers Association said it is conducting a campaign to recruit about 7000 veterans to fill out the skeleton reserve outfits.

12 Appointed To New Dental Health Council

Appointment of 12 members to serve as the National Advisory Dental Research Council was made public yesterday by Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator.

They will serve as the chief consultative group in the national attack on dental diseases and related diseases of the mouth. The council was authorized by Congress under the law establishing the National Institute of Dental Health.

Appointed were Dr. Paul C. Kitchin, Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Maynard K. Hine, Indianapolis, Ind.; Dr. Robert A. Downs, Denver, Col.; Dr. Harold Hillenbrand, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Harold J. Noyes, Portland, Oreg.; Dr. Wendell Harrison, Chicago, Ill.

Also Dr. Harold C. Hodge, Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Mabel W. Hughes, Arlington, Tenn.; Dr. Harry F. Vaughan, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Miss Harriet M. Bartlett, Boston, Mass.; Dr. Theophilus S. Painter, Austin, Tex., and Arnold Nicholson, Philadelphia, Pa.

The council will serve with Dr. H. Trendley Dean, director of the National Institute of Dental Health.

Strict Regulation Of Bank Holding Companies Urged

Strict Federal regulation of bank holding companies was recommended yesterday to the House Small Business Committee.

Frank W. Wozencraft, of Washington, D. C., representing independent bankers of the Twelth Federal Reserve District, told the committee that bank holding companies are engaging in all sorts of business enterprises, although banks themselves are prevented by law from doing so.

Wozencraft said 11 bank holding companies now own or control 330 banks, with more than 800 banking offices, in 20 States. The total resources of the 11 corporations and their banks are more than $13,500,000,00, he said. He did not name the corporations.

Green to Withhold Braun's Pay Checks

Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green said yesterday he will refuse to honor monthly pay checks due Dr. Edward J. Braun, newly appointed associate superintendent of Arlington Schools.

He said he based his decision on the opinion of Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker that the creation of Braun's post by the Arlington School Board is illegal.

Rucker recently sent a letter to School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, declaring it would be "appropriate" to withhold Braun's $700 monthly pay check "until such time as the State Board of Education has had an opportunity to clarify the matter."

The controversy over Braun's job arose two weeks ago, when the board created the post over Kemp's objections.

Duties assigne' Braun stripped Kemp of immediate supervision of the board's current $6,500,000 school-building program.

The board said Kemp still would have "final say" in the program, although it criticized his past "delays" in putting the construction program into effect.

Kemp has been school superintendent for the past 28 years. Dr. Braun was hired early this year as school consultant in setting up the building program.

Commonwealth's Attorney Rucker, in objecting to the new post, said the board "cannot assign these duties to an associate superintendent of schools."

School Board Chairman Barnard Joy said last night he had not heard of Green's determination to withhold Braun's pay checks and added that he was unable to say what action the board might take in the matter.

Zone Board Authorizes 4 Schools

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday cleared the way for establishment of four Washington schools, one a Catholic high school.

Site of the Catholic school is Taylor and 1st sts. and Fort dr. ne. Renewed authority for construction was granted by the board to the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington.

Catholic officials said yesterday plans for the school have not been completed, and no date has been set for starting construction.

Schools Authorized

The board authorized J. Rowland and Nell H. Snyder to open a preschool institution for 20 children at 1840 47th pl. nw.

Leonard M. and Jessie M. Randolph were permitted to establish a preschool insitution for 10 children living within a 10-block radius of 7 61st st. se., the school location. Mary M. Morgan was authorized to establish a nursery school for 43 children at 690 47th st. ne. for youngsters within a 10-block radius.

The Marjorie Webster Junior College was permitted to enlarge the area of the Marjorie Webster School, but the nearest buildings must be 200 feet from the lot line of the closest dwelling. The area is on the east side of 17th st. north of and contiguous to 7717 17th st. nw.

Permission was granted Lawence I. Peak to use a two-story building at the rear of 3316 P st. nw. as a commercial art studio.

Peak had appealed to the board for permission to use adjoining one-story buildings for storage purposes, and to use the two-story structure for an office as well as a studio. The board denied these requests.

Twelve residents objected to what they termed proposed "commercialization" of the area by Peak, but had little opposition to use of one building as a studio.

M. Dolores Burns was granted permission to change a present wagon storage building to a dance studio at 2130 Florida ave. nw. for one year with no more than 20 persons using the structure at one time.

The board authorized George Washington University to establish a temporary auto parking lot on the site of the abandoned St. Ann's Asylum at Washington Circle for a period of one year.

The Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution was permitted to erect a private garage at 17th and C sts. nw.

Thousands to Offer Thanks in Churches

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Thousands will take time out today from the traditional Thanksgiving Day feast to give thanks in the churches for the benefits which have been theirs during the past year.

Some Washington churches held services last evening. The majority, however, will hold them today. Neighborhood union services, with the congregations of several churches and denominations joining, have been planned by several groups.

Members of Congress, the judiciary and the Diplomatic Corps will attend the annual Pan American Mass at St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw., at 10:30 a. m. The service will be preceded by a procession from Carroll Hall into the church.

Bishop O'Boyle to Be Celebrant

Celebrant of the solemn pontifical mass will be the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington. The sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral and the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, will preside.

In the downtown area five churches will join in a union service at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., at 11 a. m. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation will preach on "The American Tradition."

Also participating in the service will be Dr. John W. Rustin of Mount Vernon Place Church, Dr. J. Warren Hastings of National City Christian Church, Dr. Carl Heath Kopf of First Congregational Church, and Carl E. Bogardus, a layman of Calvary Baptist Church.

Jewish Community Service

The Washington Jewish community will join in a Thanksgiving Day service at Ohev Sholom Congregation, 500 I st. nw. at 11 a. m. The service is sponsored by the Rabbinical Council of Washington and the Jewish Community Council. Rabbi Zemach Green of Ohev Sholom will preach and rabbis from other congregations in the city will participate.

Union services will also be held at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, Shepherd Park Christian Church, Tabor Presbyterian Church, Ryland Methodist Church, Takoma Park Baptist Church, West Washington Baptist Church, Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Union Methodist Church, Shiloh Baptist Church, and Marvin Memorial Methodist Church.

Executives of Jelleff's Honor Store President

Buyers and executives of Jelleff's, Inc., honored the organization's president, Frank R. Jelleff, at a dinner Tuesday night at Hotel Statler, in connection with the opening of a new Jelleff store Saturday at 4473 Connecticut ave. Among the guests was Miss Libby Meyers, who will manage the new store.

leave. Also ready for the four-day vacation were the District's public and parochial school students, with no school open on Friday.

Today will be partly cloudy, with fog likely in the early morning, the weatherman predicted. He said District residents could expect "some sunshine and no rain." The temperature will hit a high of about 54 in the afternoon, he said.

At least one poultry store was "fresh out" of gobblers under 20 pounds as early as 4 p. m. yesterday. Another reported that "a few" birds were left, but said that "steady business" would soon clean them out.

President Truman and his family, together with a few close friends, will enjoy a turkey dinner at Blair House, the temporary Executive Mansion. Among those expected to be present is Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace.

Besides the turkey, the presidential family will have consomme, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes and giblet gravy, broccoli, tossed green salad, mince pie with hard sauce, pumpkin pie, coffee, candy and nuts.

The same meal will grace the chow halls of the armed forces here. Most Navy personnel will be given today off, but for those who remain, the dinner will be followed by holiday dances. Bethesda Naval Medical Center plans to serve a full course Thanksgiving meal to 2000 persons, with 110 turkeys the basis.

For the city's needy and underprivileged, the Community Chest and other organizations have planned numerous Thanksgiving Day celebrations, with turkey dinners the feature.

Liquor Stores Open

In line with the holiday, department stores and banks will be closed, along with most grocery stores. Most liquor stores will remain open.

Public schools in Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria will be closed today and Friday, as will parochial schools throughout the Washington archdiocese. In Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, schools shut down yesterday after the morning session, to reopen Monday.

Town Gets Gas Scare

Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 24 (U.P.).—This eastern Pennsylvania town of 27,000 persons was stricken by panic today when a truck split open an ammonia tank at an ice plant and the white fumes drifted slowly through the streets.

Fearful of another Donora smog tragedy, scores of persons ran to hospitals for treatment. The local radio station tried to calm the populace. Two taxicabs, their drivers choking from the fumes, crashed into houses. The 30-man police force and hundreds of volunteer firemen were ordered into action.

But by midday, when calm was restored, it was found that only the truck driver had been injured seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Soviet Radio Paints Grim U. S. Picture

By The Associated Press

Moscow told the rest of the world on the eve of Thanksgiving that Americans have little to be thankful for.

Radio broadcasts recorded yesterday by Government monitors pictured life in the United States as pretty grim—especially for the American "peasants."

These were identified as about 1½ million farmers who were said to be seeking jobs because "rich usurpers" have gradually seized lands of small owners.

Because of inflation, the great mass of Americans do not make enough to line on, Moscow asserted. It cited these "official" figures:

The minimum of existence for a family of four was already $3500 a year in 1947. But 29 million American families earned only $2000 a year. "Meanwhile the minimum of existence has increased further and the worker's situation therefore has worsened," said the Soviet radio.

(These figures contrast with a United States Federal Reserve Board survey, which showed that only 13,020,000 American families had an income of less than $2000 a year in 1947. The board said that of the 42 million American families, 69 per cent or 28,980,000 had incomes of more than $2000 last year.

(The board's survey showed that the "median" United States income was $2920 in 1947, an increase of $320 over 1946. By "median" it is meant that half had more, half had less.)

Moscow's description of the plight of the American "peasants" was detailed in a Turkish-language broadcast to the Middle East. Germany received a report on "the growing inflation in capitalist countries and the strengthening of Soviet currency."

Moscow has been hammering hard on farm life in the United States because of what it termed the "myth" spread by the State Department's "Voice of America" that farmers are prosperous.

"Counting refrigerators does not give a true picture," said one broadcast to North America. This quoted an American economist as reporting 82 per cent of American farm homes have been "condemned."

Family With 6 Who Had Polio Gives Thanks

Deerfield, Ill., Nov. 24 (AP).—The "unlucky" Huff family will be one of the most thankful American families this Thanksgiving Day.

Their six children, all stricken with infantile paralysis in early September, have recovered completely or are coming along fine. And they're all looking forward to a big turkey dinner at home.

Mrs. Luella Huff, the tiny, cheerful 39-year-old mother who nursed her children back to health, will prepare the dinner herself. She has invited another couple and their two children to share the meal.

Now that the doctors feel sure all the children will be entirely normal, Mrs. Huff confessed she had some dark moments. The baby, Elizabeth, 1, and Michael, 5, were her principal worries. Both were seriously ill.

The two eldest children, Joanna, 8, and Edgar, 7, have been attending school half time. After Thanksgiving, the doctors say they will be able to attend full time. The others, except the baby, are up and playing again. Even the baby plays with her dolls.

Charity Trust Defended by Sen. McGrath

Boston, Nov. 24 (AP).—Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath today defended a 4½-million-dollar charitable trust against a charge of tax-dodging and an "inference" that his trusteeship in it had anything o do wih any Washingon influence of his.

The Senate subcommittee which heard McGrath in an investigation of Textron, Inc., then announced it will subpena the United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue because he has not answered three requests to take the witness stand.

McGrath, United States Senator from Rhode Island, testified just before the close of the fourth session of an inquiry into the multimillion-dollar Textron Corp. by a committee headed by Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.).

Tobey has charged that charitable trusts connected with Textron are "schemes to avoid taxes" and that Textron President Royal Little has used them to obtain "risk capital" for business deals. Little, who has testified frequently, contended that his trusts were legal and charitable in purpose.

He said he has obtained "risk capital" from them because, he maintained, there is a great shortage of such money among the Nation's investors.

Tobey's subcommittee has argued that the trusts are not bona-fide charitable trusts and are not entitled to be exempt from income taxes. The subcommittee charged that the trust in which McGrath is one of three trustees—the Rhode Island Charities Trust—was informed by the Internal Revenue commissioner 14 months ago that it had to pay back taxes for 11 years.

McGrath testified that his trust is tax-exempt under a provision of the tax code. He said the provision was "pointed out" to the revenue commissoner in a conference after his letter.

The Democratic leader said there was nothing to hide in the business transactions of his trust during the three years he has served it.

"We would like the world to know just how we built this trust fund to $4,500,000," McGrath said. "Our purpose was to build up the trust to a point where it would contribute substantially to the Providence Community Fund (a community chest) at the time of Mr. Little's death."

Tobey interrupted sharply with —"and incidentally, to give Mr. Little use of those funds as risk capital while he is alive."

McGrath answered: "That is not so."

Tobey commented:

"That's what Little testified."

Tobey then charged that the charities trust contributed $75,000 to the community fund while paying "about $200,000" to the three trustees, including McGrath.

McGrath interrupted to say the trust has paid $135,000 to the community fund.

Concerning the $15,000 salaries of trustees, McGrath said:

"The compensation fixed in this trust is a very fair one. . . . There has been some inference that I was appointed a trustee for some influence I might bring to bear in these matters as they might affect our Government."

'Wrong' White House Aide Figures in Apartment Comedy

By The Associated Press

There was a case of mistaken identity yesterday about a presidential secretary putting the heat on for an apartment in Washington.

No, it wasn't Mr. Truman who was apartment hunting before the balloting. And, as it turned out, it wasn't Charles G. Ross, one of Mr. Truman's secretaries, either.

Ross had said it wasn't at his news conference at the White House yesterday. He described as "a complete lie" a columnist's assertion that Ross gave up his house because of a lack of confidence that Mr. Truman would win, then, after the election, had to seek an apartment.

The columnist, George Dixon, had said in a syndicated piece that Ross had been "quietly but desperately turning on the heat to get himself an apartment in Washington" because "Charlie had given up his house."

Dixon did some backchecking on his sources after Ross' denial.

Then Dixon came up with a statement saying "the strange explanation of this whole thing lies in the fact that there are still people who believe Dewey was elected President."

Further, Dixon said, "the facts, incredible as they may sound, are these:

"The owner of the apartment building mentioned in the column came to me and said:

"'This pressure to get apartments in Washington is killing me. I've just had to get one for Charlie Ross, the President's secretary. The heat was put on me so hard I couldn't say no. We're holding the apartment ready.'

"The building's books showed the apartment was being held for 'the President's secretary.' The owner amplified this by saying the name he had been given was Charles Ross.

"After Mr. Ross let loose his denial, I checked back with the building owner. He insisted he was certain of his facts but would double check with the individual who made the application.

"Later, the owner called me back.

"'The man who made the application, whom I know to be a big shot in politics,' he said, 'told me definitely it was for the President's secretary. I thought the only secretary the President has had was Charlie Ross. I'm afraid I may have leaped to a conclusion on that part.'

"But today I called this fellow and said: 'Tell me again, what was the name of the President's secretary you wanted that apartment for?'

"He said: 'Why, Paul Lockwood, Dewey's secretary!'"

Ross said he had lived in his present house in nearby Kenwood, Md., since 1939; that he had "not sought to sell or rent it," and expects to keep it.

He added that if anyone could produce one scintilla of evidence that he sought to give up his house he would donate $1000 to any charity that person named.

Thanksgiving

It is not pharisaical to say that the joy of feasting on this Day of Thanksgiving has never dimmed the duty of giving. That is as it should be, for both feasting and giving are blessed in the eyes of the Lord, and one justifies the other. In 1622, Jamestown was far from being in a happy or secure position; but when its inhabitants heard that other new Americans had landed at Plymouth and were in desperate need, they dispatched a vessel with food and seed corn to help the strangers who also were following the dream and engaging in the great adventure of America. The story of the two pioneer communities has an application which probably has never been more vivid than at present. We all have obligations to our neighbors, and we can express them today by sending a contribution to the lagging Community Chest, if we have not already done so. That is the way to testify to the benevolence that is the spirit of Thanksgiving. Americans today are among the few people on God's green earth who are not suffering real deprivation. Let our hearts be blended with our appetites on this great American festival!

Free Criticism

The discord between Marine Gen. Holland M. Smith and Army Gen. Ralph Smith that marred the battle for Saipan in June, 1944, is bustin' out all over. In a series of articles in the Saturday Evening Post the Marine officer, now retired, is rehashing the Pacific war as he saw it. And the Army, whose man got sacked in 1944, seems again to be behind the eight-ball in trying to present its side of the argument.

As between the services today the "trouble" lies in a difference of regulations applying to retired officers. Those of the Army who want to publish their reminiscences must submit the manuscript for Pentagon approval in advance of publication. Retired officers of the Navy and Marine Corps can go ahead damning the torpedoes and anything or anybody else they want without any sort of prior imprimatur.

In a supposedly unified defense system this discrimination is patently unfair to retired Army officers. All services, it seems only right, should come under the same rule. The question is, which rule? Under the Army's regulation the threat of censorship of anything displeasing to current wearers of the brass is plain. Under the Navy-Marine Corps rule the likelihood of public squabbles arising out of interservice or intraservice jealousies is obvious.

The proper answer seems to us clear. Whatever hazards to national safety may arise out of airing wartime controversies in time of peace are far less impressive than the risk of concealing from the public what it ought to know about incompetence in the high command. We see no good reason why retired officers of all the services should not enjoy as much freedom of speech as anyone else. Indeed, a full measure of criticism is likely to strengthen the foundations of defense by calling attention to weaknesses that might never be corrected if blanketed under censorship.

Communism In Church

Under the title "100 Things You Should Know About Communism and Religion" the House Committee on Un-American Activities has just issued the second brochure in its series exposing "the Communist conspiracy and its influence in this country." The pamphlet, in the form of 100 questions and answers, sets out to show "what will happen to you and your church if communism ever takes over the United States of America."

The first 60 Qs and As cover this pretty thoroughly. By describing what has happened in Russia, the committee draws a quite terrifying picture of what would happen to all religions under communism here. It is probably an accurate picture. No one denies—least of all the Marxists, to whom it is a basic dogma—that communism is antithetical to religion—or, at any rate, a kind of exclusive religion. And there can be no disputing the prediction that every church and churchgoer would suffer suppression and persecution if a Communist regime ever took over in this country.

And "if" is the biggest word here. Without belittling Communist ambitions, we would like to point out that the danger of their successful accomplishment is pretty remote. The presence of a slight amount of communism in some religious circles is a problem of which churchmen are fully cognizant. The fact proves, it seems to us, only that Communists are hypocrites, not that religion is in imminent danger. Indeed, on the committee's own evidence as displayed in this pamphlet, the threat is of almost negligible proportions and is being successfully handled already by the churches without the committee's martyr-making publicity.

Four things, not 100, we think the brochure demonstrates beyond cavil: (1) that religion has succumbed to communism in Russia; (2) that Communists yearn to see it happen here; (3) that they are not getting very far at it; and (4) that the committee would nevertheless like to blow up a big scare about it. The committee's habit of springing a sensation every time it is about to come up for a new appropriation and an extension of life suggests the real purpose of this brochure—and the value to be given it.

For The Record

Let us recall our astonishment and indignation in the midwinter of 1943 over the news that M. Marcel Peyrouton had been appointed Governor of Algeria on the advice of the American diplomatic and military officials in North Africa. Our opposition to this appointment was, of course, prompted by the knowledge of M. Peyrouton's intimate association with the Vichy government and by what seemed a calculated affront to the supporters of General de Gaulle. On January 15, 1943, the eve of the momentous Casablanca Conference, we observed that—

> The elevation of Peyrouton to a high place in the administrative apparatus of that liberated region in North Africa has all the dangerous potentialities of a lighted match in a powder barrel.

To be sure, as we read it now, the language of that observation seems a bit shopworn; nevertheless it was an accurate bit of prognostication. We were roundly scolded for it by various spokesmen of the Administration, including the then Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull. The implication of many of such persons was that any criticism of policy in wartime came close to the borderline of treason. In North Africa itself the answer to criticism was the imposition of a military censorship on the reporting of political events there.

In common with a large part of the American press we attributed the appointment of M. Peyrouton to the unfortunate influence of Mr. Robert Murphy, General Eisenhower's political adviser. However, in his book, Crusade in Europe, General Eisenhower appears to take full responsibility for it. He goes on to acknowledge that—

> Bringing Peyrouton to Algeria was a mistake, even though he was a vast improvement over his soft and vacillating predecessor, M. Yves Chatel. It was difficult indeed to find men who had any experience in French colonial administration and at the same time bore no trace of the Vichy trade mark . . . In this period I made another error, even though from a good motive. It was the application of censorship to political news from North Africa for a period of six weeks . . .

The "good motive" to which the general here alludes was that of concealing the war of abuse that the members of the Free French Committee in London and the North African Vichyites were then waging against each other. The censorship was removed when General de Gaulle agreed to a meeting with General Giraud at Casablanca. Out of that meeting, General Eisenhower and his advisers hoped would come some agreement that would settle everything. This hope, like almost everything else about the French policy in North Africa, was based on utterly false assumptions. Five months later M. Peyrouton was obliged to resign and General de Gaulle, as might have been foreseen, made himself master of the situation at Algiers.

Crossgrain

The list of members and former members of Congress to be haled before the courts grows more shocking with the indictment of former Representative Roger C. Slaughter for failure to register as a lobbyist for the grain trade. Mr. Slaughter has raised the customary refrain that his citation by a Federal grand jury in Washington was inspired by political motives. Superficially the case may seem to have such overtones, in that President Truman made a strong attempt to purge Slaughter in the 1946 congressional election. But it is a good bet that the grand jury would not have returned an indictment if it had not been convinced that more than political considerations were involved.

The charges accuse Mr. Slaughter of receiving more than $54,000 from the Kansas City, Chicago and Minneapolis grain exchanges and a New York grain export association in return for his efforts to influence legislation. The specific items of legislation were the international wheat agreement, a proposed increase in margin requirements on speculative trading and the renewal of the Commodity Credit Corporation charter. On all these the viewpoint of the grain trade prevailed—neither the wheat agreement nor the margin increase came to a vote, and the CCC charter was constricted to prevent the CCC from renewing or acquiring new grain storage facilities.

No secret has been made of the fact that the grain trade generally has been active in attempting to influence and block legislation. In this it is no different from similar groups in other fields. The present case hinges on whether Mr. Slaughter could legally represent the grain trade before Congress as an attorney without coming under the lobbying law. It is significant that a good many lawyers representing firms with legislative interests have felt it necessary to register. Mr. Slaughter, moreover, is no ordinary attorney, since in appearing before Congress he has enjoyed the prestige of a former member. Whatever the outcome, it is salutary that an effort is being made to enforce the lobbying law stringently. The pressures on Congress from special interests are so strong that it is imperative that those interests be identified.

In one aspect the Slaughter prosecution presents a curious political anomaly. Political appraisers generally agree that the limitation of Commodity Credit powers reacted heavily against the Republicans in farm areas where grain storage is a problem. In retrospect it may turn out that Mr. Slaughter was one of the best friends President Truman had.

Israel And Britain

The arrival of Manachem Beigin, leader of the Irgun Zvai Leumi (National Military Oroganization), did nothing to assuage animosities over Palestine. Mr. Beigin's greeting at the airfield reflected only Irgun's anti-Britishism. To Mr. Ben Hecht he said, "You're one of the men most hated by the British. That makes us two of a kind."

Mr. Beigin's group, which some years ago declared war on the British and started a series of outrages for which there was no excuse, is now disbanded, and has become a political party in Israel. Elections are slated for December 13, and Mr. Beigin, apparently, is trying to enlist help in a campaign which he hopes will give him the Prime Ministership. His appeal to Americans is as curious and reprehensible as his organization's move here a few years ago to set up a Hebrew embassy. Mr. Beigin's advent to power—the chances of which are in part dependent upon the discussions in Paris—would doubtless end the hope of any rapprochement with the Arabs and the Western nations, including the British, which the present government at Tel Aviv is dedicated to achieve.

Admittedly the British are making this rapprochement as difficult as possible. Nonrecognition, for example, has led them to such absurdities as the signing of a postal convention with 200-odd postoffices in Israel, instead of with the government at Tel Aviv to which the postoffices are responsible. Moreover, the British are stubbornly insisting on a truncation of already truncated Israel so as to facilitate a particular strategical complex in the Middle East. Hitherto the United States has tied itself to Britain's leading strings, though this week there has been a fresh disentanglement, with the new American effort in the United Nations to abide by the spirit of the Assembly resolution of last November 29. To be sure, the United States has accorded the new state de facto recognition, but this deprives our representative there of proper status and leaves the diplomatic field at Tel Aviv a Russian monopoly.

Yet amid these trials, both within and without, the government at Tel Aviv continues to reflect the best traditions of Western ideas of government, notably in the dispensation of even-handed justice. An illustration is afforded in the case of a Briton, Frederick William Sylvester, who had been sentenced by the Jerusalem District Court to seven years' imprisonment for espionage, possession of a radio transmitter, and the use of the transmitter for illicit purposes. The case was appealed, and the Israel Supreme Court has just announced the quashing of the conviction on the grounds of lack of proof of guilt.

It is such events and the compelling force of realities, rather than the vengefulness of the Irgun Zvai Leumi, that encourages the hope that eventually the hatchet will be buried, as it has been in Eire.

Fed Up

President Philip Murray of the CIO let loose Monday at the extreme Leftists who lead some CIO unions. The vigor of his remarks is reported to have surprised even the right-wing leaders and to have delighted the delegates on the floor of the convention in Portland, Oreg. In view of Murray's long attempt to keep peace, or at least to prevent an open breach between the two factions, it seems significant that he tried up to the last moment to leave ideology out of it.

At the convention's opening session in the morning he reported that certain unions had demonstrated themselves incapable of organizing the unorganized. "It is not a question of communism with me," he said, and one of the three recreant unions he mentioned by name is the right-wing Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees organization. In the morning calm, it appeared that Murray objected to Communist leadership only insofar as it had proved unfit to fulfill the organizing task in its particular field.

Then the storm broke. A minority report critical of CIO official support of the Marshall Plan, among other things, provoked Mr. Murray into a ringing denunciation of union leaders who follow the Communist line in all its curvatures. This was the afternoon attack that brought wild cheers from the delegates. Their reaction seems to us to indicate pretty clearly that most CIO leaders are as fed up with Murray's careful tightrope walking on the Communist issue as he himself would appear to be once he dropped his guard.

However that may be, the ousting of Communists from union office is not a simple matter—except in a dictatorship. Officers elected and reelected by democratic balloting of the membership cannot be arbitrarily removed by higher authority except for good reason and by proper procedures. Failure in organizing the unorganized and refusal to abide by agreed union policies are, it would seem, good reasons for removal. We think Mr. Murray is on the right track toward excising the cancer. A clean and careful operation, rigorously avoiding arbitrary intervention in affairs of affiliated unions, may be slow. But that is a small price to pay for the values of democracy, in organized labor as elsewhere.

Corcoran Exhibit

In The Washington Post of November 21, I was quoted in an article on the current exhibition by artists of Washington and vicinity at the Corcoran Gallery as saying, "I think the fact that only 20 (works) were selected indicates a very limited appreciation of art on the part of the jury. The exhibit is supposed to represent the local scene; surely, 20 pieces cannot do that."

I said this without bitterness, with no "sour-grapes" attitude. The Corcoran Gallery has hung one of my paintings where anyone and everyone can see and judge it for himself, which is much more satisfactory than for someone else to judge it by some mystic standard.

In a statement which falls short of presenting a standard of judgment or an adequate explanation of its aims and actions, the jury of the third annual exhibition professes to do a service to the artist by eliminating the mediocre and by throwing its weight on the side of honesty and knowledge. The jury failed, even in this, by its biased exclusion of sincere, worth-while works because its terms of judgment were not broad enough to appreciate them in a wise and humble manner.

I have heard the decision of the jury described as undemocratic, as an intended sensation produced to gain additional publicity for the jurors, as attempts to purposely confuse the public and in many unfair, derogatory ways. I deny this because, above all, I believe the jurors to be honest and sincere. It is my opinion that they were a little smug and forgetful about the great responsibility they had to all art, artists, the art public and the gallery.

Because of emotional bias and particularly individual backgrounds and experiences in all human beings, no art judgment is perfect, right and final in all ways. It can be liberal. The standards are high. Judging is a tough job; the jury should not be condemned. If damage has been done, it is only to themselves. The gallery should be commended for its action in presenting a larger picture for all to judge.

Housing Solution

To many of us housing was about the most important issue in the recent election. I believe that the results of the election indicated a more realistic housing program is in demand.

Every city I have ever seen has a ring of obsolescent or dilapidated housing which surrounds the vital core of the city. This ring of dilapidation results in reduced urban revenue, increased crime and a complicated communication problem. In Washington as in many other cities the problem of what to do about the above situation has been deemed to be pretty much unanswerable. At least a few cities have shown this is not to be the case.

The core of my housing plan would be units of modern 8 to 10-story apartment houses built high so as to accommodate a large population yet leave adequate park and recreation areas. (Buildings of three stories or less are very expensive luxuries when located in the central area of a large city.)

The sites for such a project could only be obtained by the use of eminent domain. Such is the need for a constructive housing program that I believe such a law would be justified. Title to the land could remain in the hands of the present owners. Construction could be financed by public sale of bonds or straight Federal financing.

Such a plan would require only a limited amount of legislation to set in motion. Some transportation problems would be solved; the appearance of the areas affected improved and the renters would get a full dollar's worth of housing out of each rental dollar. If extended far enough such a program might end the need for rent control.

Firemen's Feud

As the wife of a Washington fireman, I have kept quiet for many long months about this "Conroy to Murphy to Young to Mahar" episode in the department, but when the latest press report under the caption "Firemen End Feud" hit me in the face, my endurance ran out.

Nothing could be further from the truth than what the caption implies, and only by virtue of the firemen's pride, has the secret of their double betrayal been kept from the public.

As a housewife, I do not know all the answers to these questions, but there is one thing I do know as the wife of a fireman, that job pride has long since ceased to exist, and that qualities in men which distinguish them as leaders, such as honesty, moral courage, common decency and fairness to their fellow man, carry no merit toward promotion in the department.

Aid To North China

China must be helped because it is very important to offset the Soviet Union in order to avoid encouraging Stalin to start a third world war. If Asia should become Communist territory, then he could be confident of winning the war with this vast space and population which even atomic bombs cannot hurt.

Unless America promises to aid the north China economy by building dams to promote irrigation and control the Yellow River floods and unless she promises to help north China launch a voluntary organization to fight the Communists and restore order, there will be no way to defeat the Communists. If the people realized that America can help them to reconstruct a better nation than the Communists can, you can be sure they would drive away the Communists by themselves.

If America only pours more foolish money into south China, but neglects the north Chinese people, I believe there is very little hope of defeating the Communists. If the present central government does not allow the northwest Chinese people more democracy in order to let them govern themselves and does not encourage those brave people to fight the Communists voluntarily, there is little possibility that the government can defeat the Communists from the south.

Our general wish is that America will help the Chinese people out of war suffering. We hope they will act immediately and choose the most effective way to do it. America's hesitation and small help just prolongs the war and suffering of the people.

Liberalized DP Admissions

The admission of the first displaced persons under the meager quota granted by the last Congress is a cause for rejoicing among those acquainted with the history of their long travail. Many on this side of the ocean, and without a doubt, many of the DPs, despaired of ever seeing the door of freedom opened.

In the black days of 1946 when UNRRA itself, in collaboration with Soviet representatives, was bringing pressure on these miserable victims of Soviet and Nazi brutality to return to their former homelands (and to certain death or slavery), it seemed that the so-called "Crusade in Europe" had been a vast mockery. At the same time certain troglodytes in our House and Senate were successfully opposing this country's giving refuge to any DPs. Pressure became too great for the troglodytes but not great enough to prevent them from so amending the DP legislation as to make it well-nigh unworkable.

Surely Congress will now straightway pass a more generous bill admitting 400,000 DPs over a period four years and without hamstringing restrictions. After from three to eight years of waiting in slave labor camps, concentration camps, and DP cantonments, despair is setting in, as is illustrated by the request of the Dachau DPs that they be gassed in the death cells "to call the attention of the world to their miserable plight."

For those of our citizenry whose quality of mercy may be strained by fears of DP inroads on housing and employment, the knowledge may be reassuring that not more than half the number of quota immigrants are likely to enter the United States in the next few years. Since the quota is 154,000 per year, it is evident that should Congress revise upward the quota for DPs to 400,000 over a four-year period there would be only a small excess, if any over the immigration quota permitted under existing laws. Moreover, over half of the DPs are women and children and a large number are farm workers and domestics badly needed in this country. In connection with agricultural needs, the following statement of the executive committee of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference is worthy of note.

"The conference, on its part, promises support to all efforts in the resettlement of displaced families on the land. It has received pledges from various dioceses and individuals to assume out of a sense of charity and justice the responsibility for absorption of definite numbers of these agricultural workers.

"In many instances older farmers are eager to retire from active farming carried on during the war. In fact, the practice of importing farm laborers from neighboring countries and the West Indies is still followed, despite the passing of the war emergency. The conference feels that a much more satisfactory and permanent solution of the shortage of agricultural labor could be reached by the employment of displaced rural workers in dire need of resettlement and security.

"We reassert our statement that the absorption in our countryside of these displaced rural families will in no way aggravate the housing situation nor cause unemployment. We have this pledge and assurance from our own priests and bishops who are in daily contact with rural people and who are eager to solve the housing problem in cities, towns, and country. They tell us that the charitable spirit of their parishioners will find a way to give shelter to the unfortunate displaced people. This will be especially feasible in large rural homes located at a distance from towns and cities, where only two or three persons now occupy such residences."

New Emphasis On Children

By Malvina Lindsay

"First Table" Service

SOME ADULTS today are recalling how as children they hungrily waited to eat their holiday dinner at the second table. For the century of the child did not really get under way until the 1920s. Since then emphasis has swung back and forth from spinach to complexes; from "youth must be served" to present warnings of overindulgence; from tots to teen-agers; from rigid training schedules to mothering in rocking chairs. Now the eyes of the Nation and indeed of much of the world seem to be turning to the child under 6, especially those from 3 to 5.

Only in children of this age, of which the world and especially the United States has a tremendous supply, can be waged most effectively the battle against the forces of irresponsibility, fear, hate, which weaken nations and imperil peace. One of the studies being made by the recently organized World Federation For Mental Health is finding how young children are turned later into malcontents, revolutionaries, or aggressive warriors.

In this country a big mid-century drive to help the young child physically and emotionally is under way. Some of it will come to a head in the next Congress, which will be asked for aid to nursery schools, child care centers and guidance clinics, and for a program of research to look into the problems that set young children off on the wrong roads.

THE AMERICAN Parents Committee, holding conferences this week in Washington and New York, is now planning legislation it will present to the Eighty-first Congress. Included will be a bill for a National Child Research Institute to study such matters as feeding in the first year, sleep problems of young children, and their physical and emotional growth patterns. Arrangements also are under way by State and Federal agencies for the 1950 White House Conference held every 10 years to plan for the well being of American children.

A groundswell of interest in education for the 3-to-5 child is being felt throughout the country. State Legislatures as well as Congress will feel the impact of this. Parents who are sending their children to private nursery schools or to the rapidly developing cooperatives are asking why education for the child 3 to 5—on a voluntary basis—shouldn't be the foundation of the public school system. Now about 1 child in 10 is in nursery school. Only 1 in 5 has access to kindergarten. Yet habits and personality are formed to a large degree during the years before 6.

One hurdle in getting public support for under-6 education is that legislators generally are middle-aged or elderly men who have no firsthand knowledge of nursery schools—the movement is only about a quarter-century old—and who often regard them as a means for mothers to shirk responsibilities. Yet the modern nursery school aims at the edution of the mother as much as of the child.

PARENTS, however, are awakening in a big way to the importance of putting their chief investment of interest and money into the very young child. The old idea of saving money to put children through college is giving way to the plan of seeing above all that the child in his formative years is given the right guidance. It is reasoned that if he is made strong, responsible, self-reliant and adjusted to society, he will be able to take care of his own higher education.

A postwar legacy of new social problems has made it necessary that this country do more about the young child. War's upheavals disturbed many children emotionally, especially war babies that were carried from pillar to post. Broken families heightened children's insecurity, as has also the housing shortage and its attendant lack of privacy. Working mothers and an increase in fatherless homes make the child's lot harder. And the 100,000 children born out of wedlock annually in recent years especially need understanding and direction. Public guidance clinics throughout the country are now so crowded that parents have long waits to get help. Social workers report a growth of personality problems and habit disorders in children.

Significantly in the mid-nineteenth century there was a movement to dislodge patriarchal dominance in the home, to give more power to the mother, to emphasize the importance of training in early childhood, and to institute more "rule by love." Even then a few educators were warning that only control of the nursery would insure control of the future. This movement helped to rout "infant damnation," and weaken the patriarchal pattern. But it was yet to be a century before the child under 6 was to be graduated from being a pet, plaything, nuisance, or puppet into an embryo citizen.

Misleading Charts

P. C. C. was entirely right in his criticism of my chart and prices in the November 7 issue of The Washington Post. He might have gone further and criticized the preceding week's chart on cost of living and profits. The scales were not properly adjusted in each case. I don't think it will happen again.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Republican Thanksgiving

TO MOST devout Republicans this day of traditiona' feasting and giving thanks will seem a bleak mockery. The season of mists and mellow fruitfulness can call up for them only a sense of defeat bordering on despair.

Childs

Yet without straining too hard to see blessings in disguise, maybe even the Republicans can find something to be thankful for, now that the memory of the resounding defeat of November 2 is fading. They can, it should be added, if they will seize this opportunity to step out from under the shadow of the past.

Thanks to what happened on November 2, the party got rid of some of the most embarrassing mementoes of that past. When the voters singled out such old-line isolationists as Representative Harold Knutson of Minnesota for defeat, they gave unmistakable indication that they wanted no more of that brand of Republicanism.

So the party is rid of a surprising number of encumbrances, the furniture of another day which has now been retired to the attic. B. Carroll Reece in Tennessee and C. Wayland Brooks in Illinois, Henry Dworshak in Idaho, these and many others were swept out.

A clean start can be made and with no apologies. No apologies are necessary since there are Republican leaders in Senate and House and in many States who have understood that it was the middle of the twentieth century and that we could not live by the rules of the last century. These men have been handicapped by the old-timers who went on repeating the platitudes of 50 years ago.

THE NEW leadership, if it asserts itself, can expect sniping from the sidelines. Apparently nothing can change the Chicago Tribune.

But nothing was clearer in the recent election than that the Tribune itself was defeated. Senator Brooks and Gov. Dwight Green, the Tribune's personal proteges, were snowed under. It is possible, as Irving Dilliard indicates in an interesting analysis in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, that they pulled Governor Dewey down to defeat with them.

Or, to put it another way, Paul Douglas, running against Brooks, and Adlai Stevenson, who defeated Green, may take the credit for putting Illinois' 28 electoral votes in the Truman column. Stevenson, who was afraid he could not win against the largest expenditure of slush-fund money in the history of the State, was elected by a plurality of 565,000, getting more votes than any candidate since Illinois was admitted to the Union.

Douglas won by nearly 500,000. This compares with President Truman's lead in the State of only about 50,000. And it makes the Tribune's alibi—that Dewey's me-too, New Dealism lost the election—sound pretty foolish.

THE COMMON sense of the average voter rejected the stale past and we can all be thankful for that. So can the Republicans when they reflect a little on the significance of the outcome.

In the mood of bewilderment and doubt following the election, many Republicans have turned back to a most interesting document that was ignored at the time. On May 30, 1947, Senator Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut sent a memorandum to Carroll Reece, then chairman of the Republican National Committee. That memorandum began, "I am more than ever concerned about the Republican progress, and so, the Republican chances of success in 1948."

From that beginning Baldwin went on to review the record of the Eightieth Congress to that point. He showed how on housing, on taxes, on prices and in almost every other field, the Republican Congress was following the orders of the Old Guard. He concluded:

"This record seems far from encouraging. Unless the Republican Party can learn to take into account the desires, particularly of that independent-voter group, who are largely young people, I see little or no chance for a continued success. I think—as I have said before—the condition requires strong and bold leadership. To go along with the present leadership and the present program, I believe, is going to mean ending only as another member of a discarded, discredited group."

Baldwin is one of the leaders who can help to move the party out from under the dead weight of the past. The prophetic words he wrote in 1947 apply with even greater force. The GOP should be duly thankful for the Baldwins and what they can mean for the future.

China Aid Dilemma

By Mark Sullivan

Communists' Economic Aims

TO MAKE into definite news what Washington is going to do about China has baffled newsmen. The Administration has been reluctant to make definite statements, has been in fact indefinite in its own deliberations. The indefiniteness is likely to continue and any specific decision bearing on a course about China is likely to be fragmentary. We will probably take steps that will mitigate the China condition, and our steps may be effective, but we are not likely to announce an all-out course toward an end firmly decided upon.

Sullivan

Conceivably, we could decide to save China from communism in the same sense that we have decided to save the countries of western Europe, and by the same means, including aid to make those countries economically and militarily strong. But the cost of that course would be unthinkable, literally so, in the sense that no one can think accurately about what the cost would be. A figure current in Washington is five billion dollars. But the more accurate estimate is one which admits that it cannot be accurate at all. A phrase used by persons who earnestly desire to save China, but are also realistic and candid, is, "an indefinite amount for an indefinite number of years."

To add an indefinite commitment of such magnitude to commitments we are already under, definite and indefinite—aid to Europe under the Marshall Plan, increase in our own military strength, aid to European countries to enable them to increase their military strength for defense against communism and Russia, our own domestic needs—to add those together is to bring us face to face with the dilemma that underlies everything.

THAT dilemma facing us springs from the double strategy of the Russian purpose to communize the world. The purpose is pursued along two lines. One consists of infiltration into other countries, incitement of chaos and civil war within them, constant pressure, cold war and war of nerves, accompanied by some use of force and constant threat of it.

The other prong of Russian and Communist strategy is to bring about destruction of the existing economic system in the United States. We are the spearhead of world resistance to the Communist world purpose, and destruction of our economic system would be world victory for communism. It is this prong of her over-all strategy that Russia has always cherished most. She is as much advantaged by putting us to the expense of defense against her threat of world communism and of war as she would be by war itself.

The destruction of our economic system which Russia hopes for could result from violent inflation in the United States. And it is this danger we must take account of when we consider adding to our already dangerous sum of commitments an indefinite one for aid to China.

THE DILEMMA confronting us is tragic. For next to the destruction of our economic system, the principle hope of Russia lies in taking over China. The importance of China is to be found in sentences and phrases of a statement made three years ago by the head of the Communist Party in the United States, Mr. William Z. Foster:

"The war in China is the key to all problems of the international front and it is here, above all else, where we have to deal the hardest blow . . . On the international scale, the key task . . . is to stop American intervention in China . . . the question of China . . . is our key concentration."

This Communist head was emphasizing primarily the importance of China, and secondarily the importance of preventing us from aiding China. But it is not the American Communists who prevent us now from giving China as much aid as we would like to. What deters us is mainly consideration of the cost under existing conditions. We will do what we can, but what we can do is short of all-out dedication to the full extent of our aid to western Europe.

It is doubtful if Governor Dewey, had he been elected, could have done much more. He, in his campaign, was much stronger about aid to China than President Truman. So far as he emphasized the past, he had a case; three years ago the advance of communism into North China was slight compared to what it now is. But opposition by us at that time would have run counter to our then broad policy of getting along with Russia.

Text of Marshall Statement On Return of Ruhr Industry

Text of Secretary of State George C. Marshall's statement on the German Ruhr issued yesterday:

I BELIEVE that everyone recognizes that the great industrial region of the Ruhr is essential to the recovery of Europe as well as that of Germany itself. Also I believe the American people recognize the justifiable fears of the French that there should be built up a war potential that might again menace their peace and freedom.

The United States Government would never knowingly be involved in any procedure which in our opinion would reestablish a military menace through the industrial developments of Germany. I had a long discussion of this general subject last Friday afternoon with the French Foreign Minister, Dr. Schuman, and with Mr. Hector McNeil, the representative of the British, Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin.

Dr. Schuman expressed the concern of the French government regarding the recent announcement made at Frankfurt by the military governors of the British and American occupied zones in Germany regarding the Ruhr.

The decisions announced by the two military governors were in keeping with the decisions taken at the prevous London conference and had previously, at least so far as General Clay was concerned, been formally approved by this Government. Nevertheless there was a feeling of deep concern on the part of the French government as I have already stated.

THE whole Ruhr issue is one of extreme complexity. It carries in the minds of the French a threat to their peace and security. It involves the great problem that this government has been facing of providing the large appropriations to meet the deficiencies of the German economy, not only of the American zone but that of the British and now of the French.

There is another consideration which is somewhat lost sight of today. At the end of the First World War the treaty of peace was concluded within, I think, 10 months of the end of that war. We are now more than three past the conclusion of the European War and no treaty of peace is yet in sight. Meanwhile there is an urgent necessity for the restoration of the economy of Europe, of western Europe in particular, for reasons that anyone can understand and also for very special reasons with which you are familiar.

At the end of this last war ownership in the Ruhr industries was set aside because of its identification with large combines and the Nazis. Management was made responsible solely to the military government. It is thus impossible for these plants to secure loans for the purpose of rehabilitation and many of them have been operating at a financial loss which has been made up by subsidies indirectly borne by the United States. Hence, it was urgently necessary in the interest of Europe to reorganize the industry under a pattern which would permit responsible enterprises to be under at least a substantive or responsible ownership.

This is the basic purpose of the trustee plan announced by the military governments. Big combines and property forfeited under the Nuernberg decisions are to be regrouped into smaller self-sustaining units which would be capable of competing in the market place. These small enterprises would be placed under German trusteeship which would be responsible for their efficient and economic operation directly under allied supervision. Assets and liabilities would be determined and distributed among the enterprises thus formed so that they may be placed on a sound financial basis as rapidly as possible.

Procedure is much the same as that under bankruptcy proceedings except that it is being applied to a vast and complex coal and steel industry in one of the great production centers of the world. Obviously completion of this procedure will require several years and it is important that the trustees have a feeling of continuity of policy during this period.

THE United States Government believes that adequate security controls can be maintained and provisions are being made for this purpose by the establishment of a security commission which will be charged with continued inspection of the German industry. It is obvious that the final determination of the security measures against possible resurgence of German military power must be incorporated in the peace treaty. Security actually does not become a problem during the period of military occupation.

The United States Government has already expressed its willingness to consider further measures which may need to be take to insure security against possible future German aggression.

I stated to Dr. Schuman that this Government was ready now to welcome Franch participation in the control groups established over coal and steel without waiting for the final fusion arrangements. But the principal consideration is that the final determination of the security problem of Europe in relation to the future of the Ruhr must await the terms of the peace treaty, which will be conclusive in the matter.

I might add one more thought to this matter, which is that it must be very hard for our public to reach a full understanding of this complicated problem not only because it is complicated but also because in the political strife now occurring in France many things are said or claimed to have a definite political purpose quite apart from the future of the Ruhr. The present government has this additional difficulty to deal with.

Factory Wages Reach Record High in October

The Labor Department said yesterday that average weekly wages for 13,400,000 factory workers hit an all-time high of $54.64 last month.

Their wages increased nearly 50 cents a week during October, the department said. The average factory worker was at his job 40 hours a week during October. That was 12 minutes a week more than in September.

Marshall Holds Firm Stand On Return of Ruhr Plants

statement on the Ruhr at a press conference, the first since he returned from Paris, at which he

1. Refused to say whether he would stay in the Cabinet;

2. Described the Chinese situation as critical, and said the United States was considering what steps it might usefully take; and

3. Said all the nations at the United Nations Assembly except the Soviet bloc had shown a much clearer understanding of the American position than at the last assembly a year ago.

The Secretary's statement on the Ruhr amounted to a polite but firm rejection of the French memorandum of protest that he had received from Schuman on Saturday. This memorandum had said, among other things, that the American and British governments were not entitled to settle the future of Ruhr without French concurrence.

Without mentioning this point directly, the Marshall statement argued that the American and British decisions on the Ruhr were in keeping with decisions taken at the London conference of last spring, at which France had been represented. The London conference decided to set up an international body to control the distribution of coal, coke and steel from the Ruhr, but not to manage the industries.

Recognizes Fears

Marshall recognized as "justifiable" the French fears of a resurgent Germany, and said the United States would never knowingly do anything that would reestablish a military German menace.

He reminded the French, however, that American taxpayers have had to pay "large appropriations" to meet the deficits of the American, British and French zones. He also said that as long as Ruhr industries were being managed by the military governments, these industries could not get the loans they needed to get on their feet, and had been kept going by indirect subsidies from the United States.

Hence, he argued, it was "urgently necessary in the interest of Europe" to set up a pattern of responsible ownership for these industries, under safeguards.

He contended that only a peace treaty could settle the final safeguards to be taken against German military revival, and he told the French that "security actually does not become a problem during the period of military occupation."

Finally, in a passage that probably will be resented in Paris, he suggested that the outcry against the Ruhr decision was partly prompted by French politics. Not only was the Ruhr issue a complex one, he said, but "in the political strife now occurring in France many things are said or claimed to have a definite political purpose quite apart from the future of the Ruhr."

The Secretary's few remarks on China followed a visit to the White House yesterday by Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo. The Ambassador said he had emphasized "the urgency of the need, the gravity of the situation" caused by Communist victories in China, and told reporters the President was "very well informed about the situation, and has shown a most sympathetic view."

Secretary Marshall merely told his press conference, however, that the United States Government was well aware of the critical situation, and must consider it very carefully. The great problem, he said, was what could possibly be done to be of real assistance in the present crisis.

In considering the matter, he said, the Government here has to keep clearly in mind he availability of supplies in this country and the involvment of the United States that might result in China.

He disclosed that all but seven or eight million of the 125 million dollars appropriated for military help to China had already been committed.

As for the U. N. Assembly, which he had been attending since September 21, he said the confusion so evident at he previous Assembly had been largely wiped away. He thought all nations except the Soviet bloc of six now saw clearly the real cause of the frustrations encountered by American diplomacy.

He said the six so-called neutral members of the Security Council had been making a very earnest and intelligent effort to find some acceptable settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Rep. Eaton Says French View on Ruhr Justified

Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), outgoing chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said yesterday that France was "entirely justified" in fighting moves to turn back the Ruhr to German control. He thought the Ruhr should stay "in the hands of the Allied conquerers" for an indefinite period.

Another prominent Republican, Senator Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont, said after a visit to President Truman that the Ruhr should be "handled in trusteeship for western Europe" and that the President "seemed to be thinking much the same way." Flanders said the Ruhr must not be allowed to fall into the hands of "any special interest, whether Russian, German, or, for that matter, French."

Dean of Canterbury Defines Communism

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Nov. 24 (AP). The Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, dean of Canterbury, had a terse comment today on the newly expressed opinion of a United States congressional committee that one cannot be a Communist and believe in God.

"Nonsense!" said the 74-year-old English clergyman, nicknamed the "Red Dean" because of his views. "It all depends what you mean by communism. There are 50 definitions. Mine is this—from each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs."

racial problem and economic opportunity are closely bound together."

He told newsmen "a better understanding" of the problem was bound to emerge from such a study, along with more support for Federal aid to education, housing and other measures to alleviate conditions aimed at by FEPC and other equal rights measures.

As for antipoll tax and antilynching measures, Sparkman said Southern leaders already had agreed not to filibuster a constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax. He said Southerners might go along with antilynching legislation if it is not aimed exclusively at the South.

Senator Fulbright said he was convinced a "fair compromise" could be worked out on the last two measures—antilynching and antipoll tax—but knew of none in the works on FEPC, the real crux of the party split.

Like Sparkman, Fulbright pointed out that Southern Senators offered to call off their last filibuster on the antipoll tax bill if a constitutional amendment to end poll taxes was substituted.

To end differences on antilynching legislation, Fulbright said, Congress need only specifically exempt States that already have adequate laws against lynching.

He said Virginia is a good example—"They haven't had a lynching there in 20 years."

But while these two Southerners talked compromise, Senator Pepper broke completely with Dixie colleagues to declare for enactment of the President's full civil rights program, "without delaying tactics of any kind."

The Floridian said he did so knowing it would make reelection trouble for him when he runs again in 1950.

Pepper said the President's civil rights measures have been misrepresented in the South, "by Dixiecrats who get elected by fanning up the race issue."

He told newsmen he will support antipoll tax, antilynching and even FEPC legislation "though I want to scrutinize the last very closely." He said FEPC has been misrepresented as "meaning no segregation in the South, when it doesn't mean that at all."

A fourth Southern Democrat, meanwhile, came out of the White House still avowing his unchanged opposition to the President's civil rights program.

He was Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), but he said the question did not arise during his talk with Mr. Truman. "He knows where I stand," said Ellender.

Broad Study Proposed

Senator Sparkman said his proposed congressional study of racial problems in all sections of the country would encompass the condition of Negroes in Harlem, of Puerto Ricans in the New York district of Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP), of Mexicans and other racial groups in California, in addition to racial problems in the South and elsewhere.

Sparkman said he proposed to tie it into an economic study because "most of our race problems arise from a competitive struggle between whites and Negroes to get enough."

"There's something in the statement that Negroes are more concerned with economic segregation than they are with social segregation," said Sparkman.

"I'm not saying we haven't discriminated against them in the South. Of course, we have in the scramble. I'm asking Congress to give us the opportunity to give the Negro the opportunity he's entitled to."

In some Southern cities, Sparkman said, Negroes have received more than a proportionate break in educational facilities. He said Birmingham, Ala., with a 41 per cent Negro population, spends 43 per cent of its school funds on Negroes.

He said Federal aid to education and low-cost housing legislation would help end such economic discrimination as is now practiced.

J. J. Byrnes Advanced In State Department

James J. Byrnes, 30, of Philadelphia yesterday was named executive officer of the State Department's "executive secretariat."

Byrnes has been on the State Department staff since May 1, 1946. For the last five months he has been acting executive officer of the secretarial staff.

Thanks to you . . .

To you—whoever you are, who have contributed your small or great effort in making America the kind of country it has become!

Thanks to the Pilgrim Fathers, to the pioneers who opened the West, to the Presidents who graced the White House with wise leadership—and to the millions of people—farmers, weavers, miners—workers of all kinds who are an integral, vital factor in building the America we know and love.

We are thankful for the men and women in our own tiny circle of business life who have permitted us to serve them so that we could enjoy life in our country and especially in our beloved Washington.

Our sincerest thanks to all of you.

Cap. Airlines Out of Red in Third Period

By S. Oliver Goodman

Capital Airlines winged into black-ink territory for the first three-month period since 1945.

The Washington-based line yesterday reported net profit of $21,288 for the third quarter this year, the first time it has been able to get out of the red for a three-month period since the third quarter of 1945. This compared with a net loss of $75,710 for the same 1947 period.

The line showed an operating profit of $168,349 for the latest period, an increase of $36,475. Operating revenues for the three months aggregated $5,931,502, a gain of $604,000.

Passenger revenues of $4,553,000 compared with $4,148,000 in the third period last year. Express and freight revenues jumped 63 per cent to $460,611.

For the nine months ended September 30, Capital Airlines remained $1,399,413 in the red but could take consolation from the much higher deficit of $2,478,766 in the like 1947 period.

The line's cash funds totaled $3,759,000 on September 30, or $815,000 higher than on the same date last year.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Raymond E. Dorr, Washington branch sales manager of American Mutual Liability Insurance Co., was honored yesterday at a luncheon. Edward J. Norris, company vice president, presented him with the "President's Colors" for the second time this year for his branch's record of leading the company's 68 offices with a 261 per cent sales increase over last year. Cash bonuses also were presented to each member of Dorr's office. Dorr has been manager of the local office since December, 1946, coming here from Philadelphia.

FURNITURE: Sales of six Washington furniture stores advanced 5 per cent in the first nine months this year over the like period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reports. Regionally, furniture sales edged 6 per cent higher for the same period.

ODD LOTS: This week's auto output is estimated by Automotive News at 82,182 units, a drop of more than 31,000 from last week (due to Thanksgiving) . . . Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. is revealed as the firm negotiating for purchase of the American Broadcasting Co. . . . Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index this week rose slightly to $6.38 from last week's $6.37. The index stood at $7.06 at this time last year . . . McKesson & Robbins is negotiating to purchase the Oklahoma City wholesale of Alexander Drug Co. . . . Sinclair Prairie Oil Co. posted an increase of 35 cents a barrel for crude oil in the Oklahoma area, making the top price $3. Four smaller companies immediately followed suit.

MARKET VIEWS: Some of current stock selling is said to come from investors and speculators who bought in the May boomlet. Six months have elapsed since the May high and sales are now being made for tax purposes . . . A laugh is contained in a market letter under the heading, "A New Approach to the Market," which said, in part: "The averages may or may not hold within a range of . . ." That's real conservatism . . . Brake on investment demand is the promised congressional investigation of corporate profits . . . Increased costs of plant construction and need for more working capital have caused a number of large corporations to declare dividends in stock instead of cash.

SEEKS MORE FUNDS: Two new moves to increase capital of Tucker Corp., auto maker, were revealed by President Preston Tucker at a press conference here. He said an attempt is being made to form a financial syndicate to raise about 10 million dollars and also an application has been filed with the Reconstruction Finance Corp. for a 30-million-dollar credit. The Tucker plant in Chicago currently employs about 600, he said.

EARNINGS: Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Canadian distillers, reported for fiscal year ended August 31 net income (in Canadian dollars) was $24,870,572, equal to $8.62 a common share. This compared with $18,879,570 or $6.54 a share in preceding year. Other earnings reports:

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

1000 Forgotten DCE's Have Little Reason To Be Thankful Today

On this Thanksgiving Day there are 1000 or more Federal people who have little reason to be thankful. They are the DCE's; the displaced career employes who have been pounding the streets for weeks and months looking for jobs.

Yes; the forgotten DCE's are still a problem. The last count showed there were 1050 who still hadn't been placed. This compares with 1850 of a year ago.

The DCE's have a legitimate squawk. They make these charges: that the Civil Service Commission has let them down; that women in the group are discriminated against, and that there are thousands of temporary and war service people who still hold jobs they are qualified to fill.

In general, Civil Service officials say the DCE's have set their sights too high; they insist that the Grade 7s and 10s must accept Grade 4 and 5 jobs to get back into the service and begin to retrace their steps up the slow promotion ladder. Also, they point out, jobs some of the DCE's are qualified for are no longer available in Government.

Civil Service promises action soon for the 350 DCE's who are eligible for jobs for which no competitive registers have been established. The commission is now making a survey of all CAF-7 through CAF-14 jobs held by temporary and war service people for whom no registers have been set up. It will certify the DCE's to these jobs.

The DCE's are concerned that the President will issue an order to blanket in a big bloc of war service people under Civil Service. They are insisting—with justice—that they be placed before any such order is issued. Otherwise, they fear, they will be frozen out of jobs they are entitled to.

Incidentally, this is the latest Civil Service thinking on the proposed blanketing in order—that no such order be issued until after July 1 of next year. By that time Civil Service hopes to have the big bulk of its reconversion program completed and it would be more economical then to blanket in the few remaining war service people.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service is accepting applications for junior professional assistant, junior management assistant, and junior agricultural assistant. The jobs pay $2974 to start. College seniors may apply . . . VETERANS ADMINISTRATION has openings for graduate nurses in its hospitals at Perry Point, Md.; Oteen, N. C., and Martinsburg, W. Va. . . . At Mount Alto Hospital here, there are openings for attendants and bacteriologists.

The Army's Quartermaster General has openings here for tabulating equipment operators, military heraldic artists, handwear technologists, mechanical engineer and paint and petroleum chemists. Call Republic 6700, Branch 71767 for details . . . Any day now Civil Service will announce an exam for storekeeper to pay from $2086 to $3727 a year . . . About 750 veterans who applied for the messenger exam here will be given a written test on December 3 . . . St Elizabeths Hospital has openings for attendants, cooks, kitchen helpers, and waitresses.

TRAINEES: College sophomores and juniors will be eligible to compete in a new student aid exam to be announced soon by Civil Service. Successful participants will have the opportunity to enter the Government's professional service after they complete special training courses to be provided for them by Uncle Sam. It's hoped that several hundred undergraduates who are majoring in engineering, chemistry, mathematics, metallurgy, physics, meteorology and geology will take the test. The jobs pay from $2498 to $2724 to start.

New Hudson Policy Cuts Extras Off Half Its Cars

Nation-wide Action Is First to Come From Gouging Probe By Macy Committee

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A new sales policy on auto accessories, first national move sparked by the recent Capitol Hill auto investigation, has been adopted by the Hudson Car Co.

For Washington area buyers, it will mean in the new year a clear chance to buy Hudson cars without accessories that may not be wanted. It will mean that 50 per cent of all Hudson automobiles shipped into the area will come without any "extras" except bumper guards and heaters. The cars will arrive without factory-installed optional equipment of which a customary assortment can run up the price of a car $300 or more.

The new policy, effective January 1, affects Hudson dealers Nation-wide. It was made public yesterday by Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Investigating Subcommittee, that last week exposed gouging practices in some Washington automobile sales transactions.

Said "Extras" Cost 2½ Million

Macy estimated that in the first seven months of this year, Washington automobile purchasers had paid some $2,400,000 for "extras" that they did not want. He also called upon the automobile industry to police its own field. He applauded yesterday's policy declaration by the Hudson Co. and said:

"It might be advisable for other manufacturers to review their sales policies and make any changes necessary to insure fair trade practices in the retail sales of automobiles."

The Hudson policy statement was filed with the Macy subcommittee by N. K. VanDerzee, sales manager of the Hudson company.

Heart of the new policy statement was this declaration:

Cars May Have Air Cleaners

"Under these broadened sales policies dealers are to order 50 per cent of all Hudson super six and super eight models with no extras to be installed either at the factory or by dealers, and so offer the cars to the public."

It added that the only exceptions would be bumper guards and heaters—also oil bath air cleaners where dust conditions make them a necessity.

VanDerzee, by telephone, explained that among the extras which would be left off the 50 per cent group of cars were the drivemaster (automatic shift), overdrive, de luxe steering wheel, high compression head, electric clock, radio, wheel rims, large hub caps and white side-walled tires.

Kearney Firm's Tags To Be Invalidated

District Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said last night that 40 sets of dealer's tags issued to the Kearney Oldsmobile Co. here would become invalid after his office receives word in writing from General Motors that the Kearney franchise as an Oldsmobile dealer has been terminated.

It was announced last week that the franchise has not been renewed. In line with the announcement Keneipp's office called on the Police Department to pick up the dealer's tags. Police reported that the Kearney firm was still to deliver 11 cars to fill contracts.

Keneipp said the tags had not been picked up, but his office had requested official notification from General Motors about the franchise termination.

A spokesman for the Kearney firm said yesterday that on September 16 a used car dealer's license had been issued to Robert H. Kearney, jr., a partner in the firm.

Keneipp said that the 40 sets of tags issued to the Kearney firm would become invalid when the franchise which led to their issuance is ended.

He said new dealers' tags would have to be obtained for used car business undertaken by Robert Kearney as an individual.

District Police Riot Squad Ready for Duty

MASKED MOTORCYCLE CAVALRY OF THE RIOT SQUAD IS LED THROUGH PACES BY PVT. E. J. COUTRE (HAND UPRAISED)

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

By Al Lewis and Charles Davis
Post Reporters

Men from another planet?

Not at all. You were probably witnessing a drill of the police riot squad in battle helmets and gas masks on the grounds of the National Guard Armory yesterday.

And those 30-inch batons the men carry are not for appearance. Properly used, they can take all the enthusiasm out a rioter.

Officially known as the civil disturbance unit, this emergency corps of 176 men had its inception last January when Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett assigned Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly to organize such a squad. The unit is now ready for duty.

"I want this unit prepared to handle anything from a small parade disturbance to a full-fledged riot" were Barrett's orders.

Kelly was an Army colonel during World War II and the new riot squad's precision and spirit reflects his touch.

The new unit even has its own intelligence operatives—a detail of detectives assigned to act as undercover men and "smell out" riots and disturbances before they occur.

The unit consists of four platoons. Each platoon consists of three squads. Each squad has 10 man. Ten motorcycle men, in addition, are assigned to each platoon.

The motorcycle men function as "cavalry." They have been trained in dispersing crowds, surrounding crowds and in breaking up attacks by repulsing the leaders of mobs.

With four platoons, one is available each 8-hour trick of duty, with one more vailable as a reinforcement.

Most of the members of the unit are men with previous military service.

An alert system has been established whereby each precinct makes a weekly report on the tour of duty to be worked by men assigned to the unit. This information is sent to the Central Communications and Records Room. It shows which men are sick, which men are on leave, which men have days off.

Thus, at any moment, day or night, police officials can call the CC & R room and get a platoon of men immediately.

Each man is equipped with a battle helmet and gas mask. Each carries three gas hand grenades and a 30-inch baton. Each squad includes a man armed with a carbine and another equipped with a tear gas gun.

Phone Man Is Acquitted On Charge of Slaying Wife

Prince Georges Husband Cleared; Jury Deliberates Nearly 5 Hours

Anson Sloan, 40-year-old Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. employe, last night was found innocent of charges he slew his wife, Florence, 42, in their Prince Georges County home August 31.

An Upper Marlboro Circuit Court jury, which took the case at 4:15 p. m., returned a verdict of acquittal after four hours and 45 minutes deliberation.

Sloan was accused of so manhandling his wife as to cause her death after he returned home to find her drunk with no meal prepared for their 6-year-old daughter.

5 Verdicts Held Possible

The jury was instructed by Judge Charles C. Marbury, who presided at the trial, that under Maryland law it could return any of five verdicts: (1) First-degree murder, (2) first-degree murder without capital punishment, (3) second-degree murder, (4) manslaughter and (5) acquittal.

The trial was marked by a conflict in medical testimony. County medical examiners said the woman died of a brain hemorrhage, probably induced by a blow or a fall.

But a private physician, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, jr., Washington pathologist who performed an autopsy, said death could have been caused by an acute liver ailment brought on by excessive drinking. A chemical analysis of the woman's brain showed a .025 alcoholic content.

Prosecutor A. Gwynn Bowie questioned Sloan's testimony that he had loved his wife and had never struck her at any time. Bowie brought out that in the summer of 1943 Mrs. Sloan appeared at the home of a neighbor, who took her to Garfield Hospital for treatment of a broken nose. Sloan admitted he "vaguely remembered something" about a broken nose, "now that they brought it up."

Character Witnesses Testify

Two defense character witnesses later testified that Sloan was known as a quiet, peaceful and hard-working man.

Counsel for the defense, J. Dudley Digges, Frank Hall and Richard Earle, argued that the only evidence against Sloan was purely circumstantial.

Hall told the jury that to find Sloan guilty it first must determine that Mrs. Sloan's death was caused by something her husband did. He declared that "even Prosecutor Bowie admitted he didn't know what caused her death," and, to the jury, "You don't know what caused her death."

After the verdict was announced, friends and relatives, who remained composed while the jury was out, crowded around Sloan to shake hands and kiss him.

Kelley to Pay $30 a Month To Spouse

Mrs. Mozelle Wellborn Kelley, 42-year-old beautician here, was granted $30 a month maintenance yesterday from her 69-year-old husband with whom she lived as his wife for only two months.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts ordered the estranged spouse, Allen W. Kelley, real estate firm employe, of 700 Randolph st. nw. to pay the money.

Both husband and wife declared in the court that they did not wish to reside together because they "couldn't get along."

Mrs. Kelley asked for separate maintenance on the grounds that her husband threw a beer bottle at her, told her to leave home and sell newspapers for a living, forced her to eat with his housemaid and to dine on the leavings, and refused to support her.

Said She Wed for Money

Kelley lost his suit for an annulment based on the claim that his wife hurried him into the marriage and that she married him for his money. He contended he only makes $25.80 a week, but admitted he employes a chauffeur-handyman.

Judge Letts ruled that Mrs. Kelley was innocent of fraud in the marriage.

Under questioning by her attorney, James E. Shiflette, Mrs. Kelley denied refusing to sleep in the same room with her husband.

She said, "Mr. Kelley told me to keep to myself."

She Slept on Floor

"I slept on the floor," she said. "He would not let me sleep in the parlor, saying I would ruin the furniture."

Kelley claimed that he met his wife-to-be on a bench in Franklin Park in 1930. His wife said, however, that she met him at her house in 1932, and "we were introduced."

She testified that on the one hand he insisted they would be married and have a "country home" to live in. On the other, she said, he kept putting it off for "two weeks longer and two weeks longer."

They were married in Baltimore in April and separated in June.

Wallet Finder Gives Up 'Loan' When Idea Violates AA Code

Mrs. Jane Shepherd, who lives at 1830 K st. nw., lost her wallet last Saturday night and thereon hangs a tale.

Mrs. Shepherd, director of Washington Surveys, didn't miss the wallet until Sunday morning, when she received a phone call from a gruff-voiced man who immediately identified himself as:

"I'm the man who found your wallet."

Mrs. Shepherd, who had had $20 in the wallet and her identification cards, was pleased to get the news.

"But," said the man, "I'm going to borrow the money in it for awhile. You can have the wallet back."

Mrs. Shepherd was not happy at this news. She explained to the man that she needed the money worse than he did. He said that was too bad, he didn't agree with her—but that she could have the wallet back.

He hung up and that was that until yesterday noon, when a man, apparently in his 50's marched into her office at 724 9th st. nw., put her wallet on her desk, and said, again:

"I'm the man who found your wallet." Only this time, he added, "You can look, all the money is there."

She did and it was.

Seems that the wallet finder was, by his own admission "nothing but a drunken bum" until about six months ago when he joined Alcoholics Anonymous. In the old days, he told Mrs. Shepherd, if he'd found her wallet he would have stripped it of cash and thrown it away.

But when he found the wallet, he was stone broke, as the result of some bad guesses at the races. So he used the money until he could earn enough to repay it.

He couldn't keep the money, he explained, because he is living under the AA 12-point ethical code, which prohibits it.

Before he left her office, Mrs. Shepherd said, she gave him a $5 reward. Said he, "You needn't worry about my buying whisky with it, either. I know some people who need it worse than I do."

Judge Again Rejects Motions Challenging Legality of Arrest

Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn yesterday reiterated his previous ruling that Municipal Court judges holding preliminary hearings in felony cases cannot hear motions challenging legality of arrest.

In the case of Ellsworth L. Harris, 39, of 439 Temple ct. sw., charged with operating a lottery, Judge Quinn refused to allow questioning by Defense Attorney Denny Hughes pertinent to the legality of his client's arrest.

The judge said the questions would be proper in District Court after indictment.

Harris was held for action of the grand jury under $1000 bond.

Judge Quinn prevented similar questioning by Defense Attorney Curtis Mitchell in the case of John H. Coleman, 50, of 1493 Morris rd. se., charged with setting up a gaming table. Coleman was held for grand jury action under $1000 bond.

Found innocent of permitting gaming was James Allen McEaddy, 30, of 6476 L st. ne. Similar charges against Wyatt Moten, 60, of 1852 Le Droit ct. nw., also were dropped for lack of evidence.

Two persons forfeited $50 collateral each yesterday on charges of permitting gaming. They were Benjamin Harrison, 37, of 1915 9th st. nw. and Elizah Hardy, 63, of 204 R st. nw.

400-Car Parking Provided in New K St. Structure

A half-million-dollar parking structure offering facilities for 400 cars on eight decks will be opened Monday on the south side of K st., between 12th and 13th sts. nw.

The reinforced concrete structure, which is being completed this week, was built by the Cafritz Construction Co. and is owned by the K St. Garage Co. E. K. Burgess is manager.

Besides catering to public parking, the firm will handle cars of guests at the Ambassador Hotel, and offer service facilities.

Hospital Group Urged to Sign Indigent Pact

The Hospital Council of the National Capital Area yesterday urged participating members to sign contracts offered them by the District covering payment rates for care of the indigents.

At the same time the council suggested that District Commissioners be urged to change the contract word "indigent" to "medically indigent," and "be realistic . . . in the light of present economic conditions."

The contracts, with nine local hospitals, outline District financial responsibility for its tax-eligible residents who receive services at the nonprofit hospitals here. Repayment rates are set, admittedly below hospital costs, at $9 an adult patient day and $2 for clinic treatment.

Previously, only three local hospitals were under contract with the District for hospital care of the indigent. They were Emergency, Casualty and Children's Hospitals. Congress, last session, however appropriated $690,000 for the 1948-49 service year to reimburse these and the six other hospitals.

The new contracts provide that residents benefiting be approved by the District's Hospital Permit Bureau, or meet 1946 indigent requirements. Only total indigents may be treated at the voluntary hospitals, with semi-indigents directed to Gallinger Municipal Hospital.

Participating besides the original three are Episcopal, Garfield, Georgetown, George Washington University, Providence and Columbia Hospitals.

Free Concert Tonight From Royalty Fund

Local 161 of the American Federation of Musicians is giving Washington citizens a free Thanksgiving concert tonight.

At 8:30 in Washington Cathedral, Paul Callaway will direct a program of music for organ and string orchestra. The 40 musicians playing in the concert are being paid out of the record and transcription royalty fund of the union. Half the program will be by American composers. This is one of several free concerts being presented this season under the royalty fund.

7 Counts

Woman, 51, Is Convicted Of Pandering

A 51-year-old woman who, police said, admitted running brothels here over the last 20 years was convicted yesterday in District Court on seven pandering counts.

She is Mrs. Maxie Smith alias Ruby Smith, whose establishments were located last year at 1416 R st. nw., and 1317 Rhode Island ave. nw., police said.

Mrs. Smith was committed pending sentence by Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut. Two women testified that they gave her half their earnings amounting to between $20 and $60 a night on various occasions prior to a December, 1947, raid by police.

The prosecutor was Assistant United States Attorney Cecil Heflin.

In another vice case, Mrs. Margaret L. Seymour, 56, formerly of 1801 Calvert st. nw., was convicted of running a disorderly house for purposes of prostitution at that address. Police listened with stethoscopes from a neighboring apartment to gather evidence.

This case was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Arthur McLaughlin before Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Both the Seymour and the Smith women used their establishments also for call-house headquarters, it was said.

Montgomery Man Held For Jury in Murder Case

Lewis Watkins, 48, of Rockville was ordered held without bond yesterday for action of the Montgomery County grand jury on a charge of murder.

Police said Watkins fatally injured William George Diggs, 44, of Buckeystown with a .22-caliber rifle on November 13. Diggs died at Suburban Hospital on November 15.

Rainbow Division Dance

Girl Wounded Critically; District Employe Charged

William L. Johnson, 38, a clerk in the office of Commissioner John Russell Young, was arrested last night in connection with the shooting of Adele Herbert, 20, of 1003 New Jersey ave. nw.

The girl was taken to Freedmen's Hospital in critical condition after she had been shot in the abdomen with a .38-caliber revolver in her home about 7:30 p. m., according to police. Johnson and the girl both said the shooting was accidental and occurred while he was visiting her family.

Johnson, who lives at 1528 2d st. sw., is listed in the city directory as a clerk to the Board of Commissioners. Police said that in March, 1947, he was given a three-year commission as a special officer for duty at the Majestic Dance Studio, 1632 U st. nw.

He was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and freed in $1500 bond.

Auto 'Borrowed' From Wrong Man

You can "borrow" cars and cars, but, oh, brother, don't take the car of a town official that can be recognized by police.

Take the case of Clayton B. Morgan, 21, of 5209 Varnum st., Bladensburg, Md., a sailor home on leave from San Diego, Calif.

Early yesterday, Bladensburg Police Chief Henry J. Nebel and Policeman Albert W. Fierstien stopped Morgan because he was driving without lights and in an erratic manner.

"Whose car?" asked the officers.

"Mine," answered Morgan.

"Bill Morrison's," said Nebel and Fierstien with a knowing look.

The car belonged to Town Treasurer William C. Morrison and was taken from in front of his home, 5208 Tilden rd., Bladensburg. Morrison was unaware that it was missing until notified by police.

Morgan, held in $500 bond, was charged with larceny of an auto and ordered to appear in Hyattsville police court December 2.

$50,000 Will Upheld

The validity of the $50,000 will of the late Mrs. Anna McNew Lefas was upheld in District Court yesterday after a battle of handwriting experts.

Her will, executed in 1933, gave $1 to her husband, Stephen D. Lefas, 1625 Upshur st. nw., but appended to this provision were words indicating he could use her estate for his lifetime. Other heirs contended the "use" provision was appended after the will was signed.

Two handwriting experts, Ira Gullickson and Harold J. Gesell, testified that from examination of the ink, the provisior was later than the rest of the document, but expert William Barrow said he could not estimate the time it was appended within a 50-year period.

A jury decided for Lefas, who was represented by Attorney David G. Bress.

Man Falls 40 Feet

Alfonso Shorter, 50, of 2854 Connecticut ave. nw., suffered possible internal injuries yesterday when he lost his footing while cleaning a window and fell 40 feet to a paved alley adjacent to 1408 Girard st. nw. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital where he was reported in critical condition.

2 Held in Theft of Safe

Two youths accused of stealing a safe containing $700 from a Washington Post distribution center at 1109 Union Court nw. were ordered held for action of the grand jury, under $2000 bonds, by Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn yesterday.

The youths, Ernest Burgess, 20, of 1504 13th st. nw., and Arthur Williams, 18, of 2310 H st. nw., were charged with housebreaking.

The empty safe was recovered September 31, the day after the theft, in an alley in the neighborhood. Arrest of the youths followed questioning of Burgess in connection with a more recent burglary.

Stripper Convicted

Landlord Found Guilty

Mitchell Quick, 2413 Pennsylvania ave. nw., was convicted in Municipal Court yesterday of violating local rent-control regulations.

A jury before Judge Ellen K. Raedy found Quick had failed to obtain a required rent ceiling until last March 11 and had violated the ceiling after obtaining it.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph A. Lowther said Quick rented an apartment at 3020 Porter st. nw., to Francis Vittori for $1500 a year, although the ceiling was only $100 a month, or $1200 a year.

Ship Sale Rumor Spiked

A rumor that the damaged Washington-to-Norfolk steamer, District of Columbia, may be sold to the Old Bay Line of Baltimore was spiked last night by an official of the ship's owner.

J. Allen Riordan, vice president of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co., Inc., said flatly no such negotiations are under way.

The steamer, damaged in a collision three weeks ago with a tanker in Hampton Roads, has been out of service ever since. A woman was killed and three passengers were injured in the crash.

Bootlegger Convicted

Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy yesterday postponed until Monday sentencing of Douglas Davenport, 32, convicted on eight counts of bootlegging whisky at Union Station. The postponement was ordered so as not to interrupt a jury trial held over from the morning court session.

Give Bail in Whisky Theft

Two men were held under $3000 bond each for grand jury action in Municipal Court yesterday on charges they burglarized the apartment of Richard H. Jenkins, engineering firm executive, taking 22 cases of Scotch whisky, valued at $1492.

The two, Joseph Mack, 47, of 1413 Corcoran st. nw., and Parnell H. Smith, 30, of 1529 Q st. nw., were arrested Tuesday after Mack gave a policeman a bottle of the whisky while seeking his help in renting a site for a night club.

Police Pvt. Jesse Johnson of the Second Precinct made the arrests after Mack promised that his friend Smith would give Johnson more Scotch. Johnson's check on the whisky's serial number revealed it was part of the liquor reported stolen from Jenkins' apartment at 3808 Davis pl. nw.

Ace Pilot of War Dies as Jet Plane Hits House, Auto

Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., Nov. 24 (AP).—An ace fighter pilot of World War II was killed today when his jet fighter plane crashed into a house and automobile.

The public information office here identified the victim as Maj. Judge E. Wolfe, Coshocton, Ohio. Major Wolfe served with the Seventh Air Force from 1942-45 and was credited with nine confirmed aerial victories against the Japanese. He flew 43 missions.

Mr. and Mrs. David Thompson, who were in their car, were treated for minor injuries.

Occupants of the house had left for work and school a short time before the crash. The house was nearly demolished.

The Wraps Come Off the Kitty Hawk . . .

UNPACKED—Paul E. Garber, curator of the National Air Museum, assisted by museum personnel, lifts a wing of the Kitty Hawk from the crate in which it was shipped from London.

HISTORIC 'PROP'—Mrs. Elsie Showers, a Smithsonian Institution secretary, helps Curator Garber remove the propeller from a box containing parts of the Wright brothers' plane.

Kayaloff Dies After Concert Here

Yasha Kayaloff, 50, a first violinist of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, died yesterday in Gallinger Hospital after suffering a heart attack.

Although complaining of illness, he played with the orchestra in its concert at Constitution Hall Tuesday night. Later, he was stricken at his hotel and taken to the hospital, where he died at 5 a. m.

A native of Russia, Mr. Kayaloff had been a member of the symphony orchestra for 24 years. He served as soloist at many concerts in the Northern areas.

Mr. Kayaloff began playing the violin at the age of 6, and at the age of 10, following his father's death, he obtained a job playing in an orchestra.

Later he studied at the Leningrad Conservatory of Music, where Efrem Zimbalist, whom his parents knew in their home city of Rostov, was a teacher. Mischa Elman and Jascha Heifetz also were teaching there at the time.

Following the revolution, he fled to Turkey and came to New York in 1923.

After a year in vaudeville, he obtained a job with the Capitol Theater Orchestra in New York. At the time, Eugene Ormandy, present conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, was assistant conductor of the theater orchestra.

He joined the Philadelphia Orchestra while Leopold Stokowski was conductor. He was placed immediately in the first violin section.

The violinist, whose home is in Philadelphia, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Kayaloff; a son, Larry, and three brothers and two sisters.

Nellie Wallace

London, Nov. 24 (AP).—Nellie Wallace, 66, one of the top comediennes of the British music halls, died today in a London nursing home. She had been ill for nearly a month with bronchitis.

Kitty Hawk Plane Parts Uncrated at Smithsonian

With the care befitting a national relic, workmen yesterday removed from three crates the frail, box-kite assembly that launched the air age at Kitty Hawk, N. C., 45 years ago.

The Wright brothers' historic Flyer—more popularly known as the Kitty Hawk—had come home to the Smithsonian Institution after 20 years in England.

Delicate sections of the first powered plane to carry man, were gingerly removed from sturdy pine boxes, under supervision of Paul E. Garber National Air Museum curator. A score of cameramen recorded the event for history.

It will take two weeks to piece together the jig-saw puzzle parts, Garber expected. The crates, it was believed, as well as the plans for reassembly, were designed by Orville Wright, who died last January 30.

The 605-pound plane will be accorded the place of honor in the North Hall of the Arts and Industries Building, directly forward of Lindbergh's 2510-pound Spirit of St. Louis.

The Kitty Hawk, which was powered aloft four times in one historic day, December 17, 1903, for a total of 1¾ minutes off the ground—and was too damaged to fly again—will be presented officially to the Smithsonian this December 17 by the Wright brothers' estate.

Several early-day "birds" have volunteered assistance in assembling the Kitty Hawk, Garber said.

These include Mrs. Alys Bryant, aviatrix, of 2231 Ontario rd. nw., now employed at a department store here, who will help lace by hand some six fragile wing panels.

Also two Washington area men who flew the Wrights' model B planes, H. Roy Waite, material engineer at the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, of 803 Decatur st. nw., and George A. Gray, manufacturers' representative, of 5 Leland st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Anna M. Jarvis, Mother's Day Founder, Dies Penniless at 84

Philadelphia, Nov. 24 (AP).—Anna M. Jarvis, lonely spinster who founded Mother's Day and then fought vigorously but in vain against its commercialization, died today at 84—blind and penniless.

Partially deaf and unhappy in her last years, Miss Jarvis died of old age, doctors said. She had lived in a rest home since early 1944 when friends, learning of her impoverished plight, collected funds and placed her there.

Miss Jarvis started the Mother's Day observance in Grafton, W. Va., on the second anniversary of her own mother's death—May 9, 1907—by gathering a few friends at her home for a memorial service.

How It Came About

The movement spread. Miss Jarvis wrote to legislative and executive officers of nations and States urging adoption of the day legally.

Finally her prodding pen won over President Woodrow Wilson. In 1914 he proclaimed the second Sunday in May a "Flag holiday"—honoring the Nation's mothers.

The success of the movement led Miss Jarvis to give up her work as clerk for an insurance company. In time, her correspondence with churches, businessmen, governors and others overflowed the red brick house in which she lived with her blind sister, Elsinore. She bought the house next door for storage.

She channeled her every activity and her modest fortune into enshrining motherhood. Her own mother had once organized in West Virginia a Mothers' Friendly Day to weld families split by the Civil War.

Financial Bonanza

But Miss Jarvis soon had regrets. Mother's Day became a financial bonanza for florists, confectioners, jewelers and greeting card sellers.

Immediately she went to war against the money-makers and the publicity seekers.

Once she threatened to sue Gov. Al Smith of New York over plans for a gigantic Mother's Day meeting in 1923. Eight years later she tangled with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt over a rival Mother's Day committee.

Miss Jarvis incorporated herself as "the Mother's Day International Association" and, although no one ever learned of another member of the corporation, she always spoke of the group as "we."

Good Hope Hills Rent Boost Recommended

A 6.45 per cent increase on the rents of 412 units of the Good Hope Hills Apartments, 2400 block of Good Hope rd. se., was recommended yesterday by District Rent Examiner Denis K. Lane.

Waverly Taylor, Inc., owners, had asked for a 16.45 per cent rent boost. Present rents range from $62.23 for 3½ rooms and bath to $67.65 a month for four rooms and bath. Proposed rents are from $66.50 a month to $71.50.

Mrs. Taylor's Funeral Set For Friday

Mrs. Mary Louise Foster Taylor, 82, a District resident since 1928 and a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died yesterday at her home, 3228 Cleveland ave. nw.

An associate member of the Army and Navy Chapter of the D. A. R. here, Mrs. Taylor was a native of Norwalk, Ohio, and the widow of William O. Taylor, businessman of Columbus, Ohio, who died in 1923.

Mrs. Taylor is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Rex Hays Rhoades, with whom she made her home; two grandsons, Taylor Rhoades, 3108 Cathedral ave. nw., and Lieut. Col. John F. Rhoades of West Point, N. Y., and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 4 p. m., at Gawler's funeral parlor, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery, Norwalk, Ohio.

Frank H. Grabill

Gen. Cushing's Widow, 100, Laid to Rest

Graveside funeral services for 100-year-old Mrs. Kate Dewey Cushing, widow of Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Cushing, were held yesterday at Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Cushing, who lived here at the Woodley Park Towers, died Monday.

She leaves a daughter, Miss Sarah K. Cushing, of Washington; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Samuel D. Cushing of Stamford, Conn.; a grandson, John Dewey Cushing of New York and two great-grandsons.

Her only son, Samuel Dewey Cushing, a widely known electrical and ordnance engineer, died in 1933.

Basin Victim Is Identified as Ex-Chicagoan

The body of a man identified as Marvin R. Bennett, 41, formerly of Chicago, was pulled out of the Tidal Bason east of the Jefferson Memorial shortly before 8 a. m. yesterday.

Police found a pair of crutches floating in the water near the body and speculated that he might have walked into the water. His left leg was off just above the knee.

Homicide squad detectives identified the body through FBI fingerprints in civilian files. Washington police asked Chicago police to attempt to trace his identity.

Gen. Dalnoky-Miklos

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 24 (AP).—Gen. Bela Dalnoky-Miklos, 52, who served briefly as premier under the Russian occupation, died today. He surrendered the first Hungarian troops to yield to the advancing Russians in 1944.

Miss Brooks, Dunbar School Dean, Dies

Miss Julia E. Brooks, 66, assistant principal and dean of girls at Dunbar High School, died yesterday at her home, 654 Girard st. nw. Death was caused by a heart condition.

Miss Brooks had been assistant principal at Dunbar since the early 1920s, her brother, Albert N. D. Brooks, said. Before that, she taught in District elementary schools and high schools for many years.

A native of New Orleans, she moved to Washington with her family when she was about 3. Her father, the late Rev. Walter H. Brooks, was pastor of the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church, 19th and I sts. nw., for more than half a century, and she had been active in its work most of her life.

After graduating from the old M St. Elementary School, she studied two years at what is now Miner Teachers College and then went on to Howard University, where she got a bachelor of arts degree.

Her more than 45 years in the District school system began while she was a Howard student. While studying there, she taught in elementary school. Later, after taking her A.B. degree, she studied during several summers at Columbia University and eventually acquired a master's degree.

While at Howard, she was one of the founders of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, now a Nation-wide organization. She also belonged to the National Education Association and many other educational groups.

Besides her broher, who lives at 1256 Kearny st. ne., Miss Brooks leaves two sisters, Mrs. Alberta Brooks Terrell and Mrs. Antoinette Mitchell, both of 1260 Columbia rd. nw.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday from the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church, with burial in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

Symposium to Be Held

A symposium on lung and mediastinal tumors will be conducted Friday night at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., by the Naval Hospital medical staff.

The meeting is open to members of the local medical societies, faculty and students of local medical schools and medical officers of the Army, Navy, Public Health Service and Veterans' Administration.

Hayes Rites To Be Friday At St. Mary's

A requiem mass will be celebrated at 9 a. m. Friday at St. Mary's Church, 5th and G sts. nw., for Bernard (Ben) Hayes, 80, an uncle of Helen Hayes, the actress, who died Monday at his home, 219 3d st. nw.

Burial will be in the family plot in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

A native of Liverpool, England, Mr. Hayes had lived in Washington for 76 years. As a young man, he had a blacksmith shop at the old Brightwood Hotel, Concord ave. and Piney Branch rd. nw.

He subsequently worked on horse-drawn cars of the Wahsington Railway & Electric Co. Then he was employed by the Engineering and Water Departments of the District of Columbia, from which he retired 10 years ago.

Surviving are a son, James A. Hayes, of Hyattsville, Md.; a brother, Frank Hayes, Washington, and three sisters, Mrs. Mamie Fugitt, Washington; Mrs. Ann Freas, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Catherine Brown, mother of Helen Hayes of New York City.

Inaugural Parade Tickets Begin at $2

Economy is the watchword in planning for the inaugural, Melvin D. Hildreth, general chairman of the Inaugural Committee said last night.

"We are determined to have as many $2 tickets as possible available for the parade," he said, "and we intend to keep tickets for the gigantic and gala concert the evening before the inauguration at the lowest possible level."

Hildreth also announced at a meeting of committee members at Democratic Central Committee headquarters that bids for permanent-type grandstands near the White House will be requested Friday or Monday.

A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee, disclosed at the meeting that a victory banquet scheduled by the committee for December 13 had been canceled.

Proximity of the Christmas holidays and the burden of other duties in connection with the inaugural celebration prompted the cancellation, Wheeler said.

Senator Alben W. Barkley was scheduled to speak at the banquet. The committee will hold a Democratic rally instead, Wheeler said, if the Vice President-elect will consent to speak and if accommodations for the public can be arranged.

Barkley will be urged to speak on the question of District suffrage, Wheeler added.

Inquiry Sought In School Site Delay by D. C.

The Citizens Association of River Terrace will ask Senate and House District Committee heads to investigate the failure of District Commissioners to purchase a school site earmarked in 1944.

The group voted last night at a meeting in the River Terrace Church, Clay st. and Anacostia ave. ne., to seek appointments with the committees after Robert F. Tibbetts, association president, reported District heads had taken no action toward acquisition of the property.

The land in question, on 34th st. ne., between Benning rd. and Dix st., is now used for the Gonzaga High School athletic field.

Tibbetts told the group Commissioner Gord Young said in a conference yesterday that $50,000 allocated for the purpose is still unexpended, and must be used only for the specific purchase.

More than 800 children of elementary school age live in the River Terrace section, Tibbetts said.

Beer License Seeker Loses For 6th Time

John D. Stancliff yesterday was still without a beer and wine license for his restaurant at Lanham, Md., despite six hearings that began in 1947.

The Prince Georges County Board of License Commissioners yesterday refused Stancliff's sixth petition on ground he had used the wrong form and had not listed 10 nearby residents who are familiar with the premises and consider them suitable for use by a dealer in alcoholic beverages.

The board granted an on-sale beer and wine license to the Maryland Newsstand, 3014 Hamilton st., Queens Chapel Shopping Center, but with the understanding that no beer would be sold for consumption on the premises. The on-sale license was necessary to permit sale for off-the-premises use on Sunday.

The board also granted an off-sale beer, wine and liquor license to the Gwynn Park Service Station, near TB junction in Brandywine; an off-sale beer, wine and liquor license to the 51 Club, formerly Club. Cabana, 3105 Naylor rd., near Silver Hill. The board approved transfers of licenses for Detta's Musical Bar, 6254 Marlboro Pike, Oakland, and for Rhodes' Liquor Store, Canary Trailer Camp, Baltimore blvd., Berwyn, Md.

Beltsville Line's End Approved by Court Decision

Capital Transit Co. has been upheld by the Baltimore Circuit Court in a request for authority to abandon its Beltsville-Branchville trolley line, it was learned last night.

Judge W. Conwell Smith on Tuesday held invalid the Maryland Public Service Commission's denial of the request for abandonment.

Judge Smith ruled that it is neither in the public interest nor a public necessity to continue operation of the 3.2-mile shuttle.

He said there was no doubt Capital Transit operated the line at a loss and therefore, the commission's action amounted, in effect, to confiscation of company property.

The transit firm said its annual loss amounted to almost $35,000 on the line which served some 300 passengers daily.

Citizens' Group Backs Civilian Police Plan

Indorsement of the recently authorized auxiliary police force and an offer to help obtain recruits for it came last night from the Sixteenth St. Highlands Citizens Association.

The group met at Brightwood School, 13th and Nicholson sts. nw.

It also approved antihorn-blow campaigns of the District Police Department and Traffic Bureau.

Prison System Changes Urged in Maryland

Baltimore, Nov. 24 (AP). — The judiciary committee of the Legislative Council indorsed proposals today for sweeping changes in Maryland's prison administration and parole system.

It authorized preparation of bills for the 1949 session of the General Assembly that would:

1. Provide for a full-time, $12,500-a-year commissioner of correction, who would be in charge of the prison system's administrative program.

2. Set up an unpaid advisory board of correction.

3. Create the office of a full-time commissioner of parole, who would be paid $12,500 annually.

Both the commissioner of correction and the commissioner of parole would be appointed to 15-year terms.

The judiciary committee's recommendations will be passed on to the Legislative Council—interim committee of the Legislature—for its consideration.

The proposals were contained in a report by the Maryland Commission on Parole, Rehabilitation and Education, of which Willis R. Jones is chairman.

Jones told the judiciary committee today that Maryland does not have an effective prison labor program because of conflicting personal interests of the members of the State Board of Commission.

Traffic Is Snarled By Fire at D. C. Line

Traffic was snarled at Eastern and Kenilworth aves. last night at about 10 o'clock when District and Maryland firemen responded to a fire just across the District line.

On fire was a former clubhouse, recently abandoned and now ebing demolished. Firemen brought the blaze under control within 30 minutes.

Thanks to many people for many things

THIS IS THE SEASON OF THANKSGIVING . . .

And there is much for which we can all be thankful in this great country of ours.

Certainly we are thankful for a bountiful harvest of grain and corn, for a high level of production and employment, for a standard of living that is the envy of the world.

Most of all, perhaps, we are grateful for our American heritage . . . freedom of opportunity, freedom of choice, freedom to think and worship according to our own beliefs.

We Feel as a Chevrolet dealer it is an appropriate time to convey our sincere appreciation to the people of this community for their loyalty, patience and understanding during this difficult period when the demand for new Chevrolets so far exceeds the supply.

The Fact Remains that despite Chevrolet's production of more cars and trucks during 1948 than any other manufacturer—despite the production of half a million more vehicles than any other make since peacetime production was resumed—there is still a long "waiting list" for America's most-wanted cars and trucks.

We Can Assure You that Chevrolet is doing everything within its power to maintain and increase production of Chevrolet cars and trucks. In the meantime, we would like to express our thanks . . .

Thanks to Buyers and Prospective Buyers of New Chevrolets for your generous recognition of the honest value built into this first-choice car in the low-priced field. We feel that, year in and year out, we have been able to offer you an outstanding motor car for the money. And facts support our belief: More people have bought Chevrolet cars and trucks, during the eighteen-year period from 1931 to date, than have bought the cars and trucks of any other manufacturer.

Thanks to Those Who Are Waiting for Orders to be Filled for your patience and your understanding of the situation. We realize how anxious you are to get delivery on your new Chevrolet, and how trying it is to wait, week after week. All we can promise is that we are doing our best to treat all customers fairly and impartially . . . doing our best to speed the day when we can phone you with the good news, "Your waiting days are over—your new Chevrolet is here!"

Thanks to Our Service Customers for the opportunity you have given us to keep your present cars in safe driving condition. We have done quite a lot to improve our service facilities so that we might serve you better, and we appreciate your patronage.

To all whose friendship and favor have helped maintain Chevrolet's leadership, we extend our grateful thanks . .

Mrs. Henry B. duPont Obtains Reno Divorce

Reno, Nev., Nov. 24 (AP).—A divorce was obtained here today by Margaret Lewis du Pont from Henry B. du Pont, vice president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. of Wilmington, Del.

The decree was granted in a closed hearing on grounds of desertion and extreme cruelty.

Tuck-SCC Dispute Headed Into Court

Richmond, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—The question of Governor Tuck's authority over the State Corporation Commissibn appeared headed for the State Supreme Court today in a legal test that will bring high-powered outside counsel to the support of the commission.

Informed sources disclosed that the commission was readying a showdown on whether it has authority to hire employes independent of the Governor's approval, and would send a payroll including one or more new employes directly to the comptroller.

State Comptroller Henry G. Gilmer has already advised the SCC he will refuse to approve such a payroll unless it has first been sanctioned by the Governor. The court test may come when the commission names a successor to Chief Counsel Blake T. Newton, jr., who leaves the employ of the State on December 1.

The position taken by the commission—that the Virginia constitution implies that it is a branch of the judiciary and that its powers as a court of record are an accepted fact—was upheld by Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., in a recent opinion.

This opinion had been requested by the Governor who didn't see eye to eye with the SCC on their claims of independence.

A New Field

Validity Test Of Patterson Trust Asked

A new field of litigation growing out of the Patterson will contest was sought yesterday as Mrs. Felicia Gizycka urged a court test of validity of the McCormick-Patterson trust.

Mrs. Gizycka, daughter of the late Mrs. Patterson, through her attorneys asked Riggs National Bank—the court-appointed collector for the estimated $16,586,571 Patterson estate—to institute such a test in which Mrs. Gizycka would join.

Mrs. Patterson's interest in the McCormick-Patterson trust—about one fourth of it—is described as the largest item in the Patterson estate. The trust controls the Chicago Tribune, the New York Daily News, "and other corporations."

Present value of the trust was not disclosed.

Under Mrs. Patterson's will which Mrs. Gizycka is challenging in District Court here, the share of the McCormick-Patterson trust which Mrs. Patterson owned goes into a fund from which Mrs. Gizycka is to be paid $25,000 a year for life. The bulk of the fund goes to charity.

Mrs. Gizycka also receives some property under the will, but does not share in the Washington Times-Herald, which her mother owned and published and bequeathed to seven executives. If she breaks the will, she will be sole heir.

Put Tribune Stock in Trust

In 1932, the shares of stock they inherited in the Chicago Tribune Corp. were deposited in the McCormick-Patterson trust by Mrs. Patterson; her brother, the late Capt. John M. Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Tribune.

William A. Roberts, local counsel for Mrs. Gizcka, sent to Riggs Bank an opinion from a Chicago law firm stating there is "a very serious doubt" that the McCormick-Patterson trust is valid under Illinois law, which limits voting to 10 years, although that trust went into effect before the law was passed.

Roberts noted that the bank, as collector, 'has sold most of the liquid assets of the estate" to accumulate funds for various estate charges, and that "a substantial part or all of the interest of the estate under the McCormick-Patterson trust will have to be liquidated in order to meet such charges."

"Silly," Says L. G. Caldwell

The trust's value, he said, "will be largely affected" by any doubts of the validity of the trust," and it is to the interest of the estate to have this cleared up."

The request to test legality of the trust brought the immediate response from Louis G. Caldwell, who represents the will's executors, that it "is perfectly silly."

Mrs. Gizycka, said Caldwell, "herself gave her written recognition and assent to this trust a number of years ago. The four law firms known to be employed by her so far seem to have plenty of time for everything except the steps needed to bring the will contest to an early trial."

Riggs bank officials said they had no immediate comment on the request.

Mrs. Rodgers' Estate Goes to Grandchildren

The late Mrs. Virginia Cameron Rodgers, a long-time Washington resident, left an estate of more than $500,000, it was learned yesterday when her will was filed for probate in District Court.

The widow of Col. Alexander Rodgers, she died November 9 in Donegal, Mount Joy, Pa. She outlived her children.

Almost here entire fortune was divided equally among three grandchildren, Mrs. Alicia R. Sweeney, 3107 Garfield st. nw.; Mrs. Virginia R. Stoney of Aptos, Calif., and Christopher R. P. Rodgers of Princeton, N. J.

A pair of antique Dresden vases, originally the property of President Monroe, was bequeathed to Lawrence G. Hoes, a descendant of the fifth President.

Turkey Day Is Chock Full of Good Snapshot Material

By Ollie Atkins

NOT many of us will be out behind the barn today chopping the head off the holiday turkey, so that's out as a picture possibility. But do not overlook the many other scenes Thanksgiving offers to fatten up that family scrapbook.

Mother will be in the kitchen preparing the feast and dad will be slouched behind the morning paper in his favorite chair. Well timed exposures will capture these scenes or your flash picture will certainly be good. When everyone is seated at the dinner table you can get another good family picture but have your gear all ready for action once the dinner bell has sounded, for even the best natured folks hate to delay the turkey carving too long while you monkey around with your camera.

This afternoon when everyone is dressed n church-going clothes would be a swell time to make family group and individual pictures of out-of-doors. At this writing the weather man would not commit himself as to prevailing light conditions for today but if it's an average day you can make out very well.

Did you forget to get film? The drug stores have plenty in all sizes.

While the family is in good spirits and in fancy clothes would be a good time to make a few pictures suitable for your Christmas photo greetings, too.

REMEMBER that Speed Graphic camera the White House Photographers gave President Truman last year? Well, looks like Margaret has taken it over. The local news photogs who covered the President's trip to Key West tell me Margaret had the camera right with her. On duty with their cameras at Key West from Washington were Charlie Corte, Bill Allen and Al Muto.

Dr. S. S. Jaffee walked away with grand honors in the black and white portion of the National Photographic Society's annual salon exhibition prints and top honors in the color section went to P. F. Lambert, T. P. Mitchell, Reuben Scolnik, O. K. Hine and R. E. Lawrence. Judges picked a host of other good pictures to be included in the society's annual exhibition in the National Museum during the month of December.

Winners in the local Sears Roebuck Snapshot Contest have been announced. J. R. Lord, 764 Atlantic st. se., took first honors at the Wisconsin ave. store. Top place at the Bladensburg Store went to Jack M. Kleiman, 3653 Minnesota ave. se. The awards were $50 in merchandise. Other winners include: Nathaniel Field, 715 Quincy st., Arlington; Luello F. Penfold, 4408 Faraday pl. nw.; J. Johnson, 3800 Porter st. nw.; Walter J. Reck, 3315 12th st. ne.; Jaul J. Corona, 4313 28th pl. Mount Rainier; Lillian DeHart, 1900 C st. ne.

H. K. Duffield, group manager of Sears Washington stores reports that now these eight local winners are being entered in the national contest and eligible for one of the seven cash prizes totaling $1000.

That new camera invention by Edwin H. Land of the Polaroid Corp. in Massachusetts which takes, develops and prints a picture in 60 seconds is out of the laboratory stage and ready for production. The camera desembles a folding Kodak and makes a picture 3¼ by 4¼ inches with border. It will sell for less than $100. Film will sell for $2 a roll. Camera dealers may have them in stock before Christmas.

Monochrome prints of children were exhibited at a meeting of the Old Dominion Camera Club last night. Following showing of the exhibit, problem pictures were discussed in a "print clinic." Old Dominion Camera Clubbers taking an active part in the International Salon Committee include Lee Beiser, who has been nominated secretary of the committee, and Arthur Kliesrath, chairman of the publicity subcommittee.

Two new booklets are just out which I think would be valuable collections to the amateur's photographic library. One is the Kodak data book "Kodak Lenses, Shutters and Portra Lencses" which for 35 cents tells you all you need to know about this subject if you happen to use an Eastman-made lens or shutter. Another swell booklet is entitled "Picture Taking With Still Cameras Indoors." This handy little volume sells for 25 cents and is the best condensed version on this subject I have ever seen. Henry Lester of the Morgan & Lester Co. advises me that the second of Ansel Adams series titled "The Negative and Its Development" should be on sale in December.

This picture by Dr. S. S. Jaffee, 1314 18th st. nw., took highest honors in prints selected for the annual salon of the National Photographic Society. It and other prize work of the society will be on display in the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution during December

Imagine making a 100-foot movie film showing the life of a rose from the time it is a mere bud until the full bloom is destroyed as time withers its leaves. Publisher and High Speed Movie Expert Henry Lester recently showed a color film here which I saw encompassing the life of the rose described. It took six days and six nights with one exposure every two minutes. A total of 3000 single frames were exposed with high speed strob illumination—all this was mechanically controlled. The film consumed three minutes on the screen and is one of the most dramatic and educational things I have ever seen.

One on the Aisle—

If Dumas Could Only Lamp Lana

By Richard L. Coe

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS," or "The Rover Boys at the Court of Louis XIII," is as juicy a chunk of juvenilia as the season is likely to bring. The Metro hijinks at the Palace has capers by Kelly, lust by Lana and chunes by Tschaikowsky.

So lush, indeed, is this treatment of the old Dumas favorite, it's doubtful whether that imaginative man ever imagined anything so fancy. It's got such Metro names, apart from Gene Kelly and Lana Turner, as Van Heflin, June Allyson, Angela Lansbury, Frank Morgan and Keenan Wynn, all swathed under bolts of as magnificent materials as ever hit Technicolor. Even the script is by a onetime fancy writer, "Thunder Rock's" Robert Ardrey, a chap who has mastered well the art of working for the teen-age trade.

This is the picture which raised a minor tempest during its early stages by taking the red hat of the cardinalate from Richelieu, at the behest of Mr. Breen's church-conscious office. After seeing the gee-whiz picture that resulted, you can't much blame the Breen stand. Nothing is taken too seriously is this romp through French history, so making the conniving cardinal a purely secular individual matters only in that it illustrates the power of the church in Hollywood.

Actually, the fandango is so wildly preposterous, it's goodish, if lengthy fun. Certainly Lana Turner sashaying around as the wicked Lady de Winter is one of the great comedy performances of the year. Lana's idea of the conniving milady is never to smile. The story is told that Director George Sidney was so impressed with the actress' "dirty look," that he asked her how she did it.

Lana's Acting Lesson

"Very easy," replied Lana. "I simply imagined that I was looking at the man who ran over my pet dog and left him to die without even stopping his car. I was 10 years old at the time, but I never forgot him."

Which ought to give you an idea of the quality of Miss Lana's performance.

Running Lana a close second for the most comic performance is Angela Lansbury's Queen Anne. Angela's hair-do trembles like a grape arbor every time she rushes to the arms of her illicit beloved, the Duke of Buckingham (John Sutton), or denies that she's given him those diamond studs that send the musketeers to Britain.

Gene Kelly makes a swell D'Artagnan, leaping about the landscape with an elan that might well have made Doug Fairbanks, sr., pant, and rushing into a duel at the drop of an insult. Though his gallant Gascon has a touch of the New York hillbilly, who's to say it's inappropriate? Though Kelly doesn't dance, those duels, fights and roof-clamberings pass for manly grace of the finest sort.

Symphonie Pathetique

Frisking around with fun-loving assurance in the royal intrigues are Keenan Wynn, as Planchet, D'Artagnan's man of all work; Van Heflin, Gig Young and Robert Coote, as Athos, Porthos and Aramis; Frank Morgan as the giggling Louis, and Vincent Price as that sinister Richelieu.

As if the cast and costumes weren't enough, Metro's hardworking music man, Herbert Stothart, has latched onto the theme of Tschaikowsky's Sixth Symphony as romantic throbbings for Kelly's scenes with June Allyson, the queen's maid whose heart is as pure as her face is vapid. The combination is guaranteed to set Dr. Gallup's marvelous machines awhirring.

For all the demented fun you're likely to have with this latest Metronalia, by the time it's half over you may be ready to crawl under a bed just for the sheer, magnificent luxury of being alone in the stilly night.

THE CAST:

Lady de Winter ..... Lana Turner
D'Artagnan ..... Gene Kelly
Constance ..... June Allyson
Athos ..... Van Heflin
Queen Anne ..... Angela Lansbury
King Louis XIII ..... Frank Morgan
Richelieu ..... Vincent Price
Planchet ..... Keenan Wynn
The Duke of Buckingham ..... John Sutton
Porthos ..... Gig Young
Aramis ..... Robert Coote
Treville ..... Reginald Owen
Rochefort ..... Ian Keith
Kitty ..... Patricia Medina
Albert ..... Richard Stapley

UNSULLIED BY COURT LIFE: June Allyson and Gene Kelly, as Constance, the frivolous Queen Anne's proper maid, and D'Artagnan, the livliest of the heroes in Dumas' "The Three Musketeers," currently drenching the Palace screen in lively Technicolor

Pedro Armendariz and Harry Carey, jr., three badmen playing sponsors to an orphaned infant.

SPECIAL MATINEES at many of the neighborhoods this afternoon, with the National adding a 5:30 showing of "The Red Shoes." The engagement of the ballet film from Britain has been extended through Saturday, December 4, making a total of eight weeks on the E st. screen . . . Over at the Hippodrome, the revival of "My Man Godfrey" opens a run with Carole Lombard and William Powell in the starring roles

NEW YORK'S reception of the Frances Starr play, "The Young and Fair," brought great applause for Miss Starr and her supporting players, less for the N. Richard Nash play about a girls' school . . . But the Times' Brooks Atkinson and the Post's Richard Watts both were enthusiastic enough to suggest the drama may make a run of it in the real-estate-minded New York theater . . . Just as Miss Starr predicted, whatever the reviewers said about it, none used the word "dull" . . . I hope to see it in a few weeks and will relay more when I do.

TRYOUTS are announced for the Columbia Opera Association's drama department play, "First Lady," the George S. Kaufman-Katharine Dayton comedy of Washington life . . . This is the group's first offering, with Jane Plummer Rice as chairman . . . Tryouts will be held Monday night from 8 until 10 at the group's headquarters, 819 13th st. nw. All welcome.

"POP-CORN" is the word Bob Keefe has thought up for "two of the corniest hillbilly entertainers," Homer and Jethro, who come up from Knoxville, Tenn., to headline Gay Time, Friday night at the Turner Arena . . . The boys promise screwball versions of "Donkey Serenade," "Glow Worm" and "Sentimental Reasons."

THE REDSKINS' Sammy Baugh is featured in Columbia's new full-length football feature, "Triple Threat," with Steve Van Buren, Charlie Trippi and Bob Waterfield . . . "Triple Threat" will have its first local showings Sunday and Monday at the Hiser Theater, Bethesda.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

HOLD YOUR SYMPATHY for Navy's coach, George Sauer, until Saturday. The Midshipmen haven't won a football game all year, but it isn't a disastrous season for them yet. Another school losing 13 in a row would already be writing it off as a sorry campaign, but coaching Navy has its compensations. A Navy team need only win the last one and the coach becomes the toast of the service, the season goes into the records as glorious.

POVICH

Navy's task is to beat Army, of course. That could be slightly difficult. Nobody else has beaten Army this year. It must be emphasized also that this year's Navy team has beaten nobody. In the cold eye of the betting commissioners, Army is a three-touchdown favorite to stay unbeaten on Saturday at Franklin Field, but Army has learned to be wary of desperate Navy teams with 1946 still of vivid memory.

That was the year when an Army team favored even more over Navy than this year's unbeaten brigade finished up in a cold sweat with a mere 21-18 victory, and Navy pounding within 3 yards of the winning touchdown when the last gun barked. Navy threw that fright into an Army team that had Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis going for it, and actually outplayed the Cadets most of the afternoon.

THE MIDSHIPMEN have no Davis or Blanchard to contend with on Saturday but it isn't a pleasant task they face nevertheless. Coach Earl Blaik has publicly acknowledged that his current team is an even more devastating outfit than the 1946 Army club. He likes his line better, especially the tackles, and he has come up with a pair of tremendous replacements for Blanchard and Davis in Sophomore Gil Stephenson and Senior Bobby Stuart.

Army has been belting down all opposition with the Stephenson-Stuart one-two punch. Stephenson's charges at the line have tightened up the defenses and set up Stuart's sorties at the flanks. The Navy ends will be subjected to the fiercest onslaughts on Saturday. When Stuart isn't trying to turn the flanks, Jim Cain is and there's little disparity in the speed of that pair.

Even with Dan Foldberg injured, Army is still well fortified with ends and Blaik's end play this season has been superior to that of his 1945-46-47 teams. Indications are that Navy will be driven into the air if it hopes to pick up yardage against the Cadets.

ARMY-NAVY GAMES always qualify for one superlative. They can't always be held up as the best caliber of football, but they are invariably the roughest football games of the season. On both sides, they're nice boys, but for this one they're always wound up, and an Army-Navy game produces more vicious wacking and piling on than the run of other college contests.

They've both had two weeks of rest for this one. Navy is hopeful that Coach Sauer can put his big guy, Bill Hawkins, on the field. After being hospitalized for more than a month, Hawkins went into the Columbia game and was out with an injured shoulder after only four plays. If he has recovered, Navy will regain some oomph for its running game. Without Hawkins, the Navy attack doesn't move much except through the air.

Happily for Navy the only item in the season's statistics in which they can show a bulge over West Point is in air defense. The Cadets have been vulnerable all year through the air and a Navy team that hasn't won a game has yielded less aerial yardage. It is presumed that Sauer won't waste too many precious minutes probing at that Army line of which Coach Blaik is justifiably proud.

IN REAVES BAYSINGER, Navy has a hot-and-cold performer. There are days when he doesn't belong on the varsity team, but he can be downright sensational on other afternoons. Army remembers Baysinger as the guy who quarterbacked Navy to its near victory in that '46 game, calling plays with more poise and better execution than Army's famed Arnold Tucker that afternoon.

In one 60-minute stroke Saturday, Navy could wipe out the sour memory of what has gone before this season. It isn't logical that Navy can beat Army, but Navy has been an illogical club in other years, particularly in Army games. They're a more seasoned team than the Middies who were taking those beatings earlier in the year.

It's wonderful to have Navy's kind of will to win, but the Middies have no exclusive title to that asset. West Point would like to win this game, too, just as fervently. The weapons help also, and they seem to be on Army's side at least until Saturday's final test at the Municipal Stadium proving grounds.

Body Still Unclaimed

National League Sends Money For Burial of Hack Wilson

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Funeral services for Lewis (Hack) Wilson, former National League home run king, were tentatively set for Saturday today after Funeral Director John O. Mitchell announced that the National League was sending money to pay for burial expenses.

Mitchell, however, said he still needed authority from a member of Wilson's family to release the body from City Hospital.

Wilson died here yesterday at 48, bitter and almost destitute. None of his relatives has come forward to claim his body, which lies in the morgue at City Hospital.

Mitchell said he would ask for the body if no one else claims it in the 72-hour waiting period prescribed by law.

In Chicago, Philip K. Wrigley, president of the Cubs, said that Wilson, former Cub star, will have "a proper funeral."

"A group from the East is making all funeral arrangements," said Wrigley. "Nobody wants to take credit for it, but he will have a proper funeral."

Wilson has a son by his first marriage who is a student at Miami University in Florida. Efforts to locate his second wife in West Virginia have been fruitless.

Officials at City Hospital said they would like to perform an autopsy because of the unusual illness of which Wilson died, persistent hemorrhages complicated by lung trouble.

They must get permission of the nearest of kin or wait until Friday morning. Mitchell said there isn't much doube they will turn the body over to him after the post-morten examination unless a relative claims it.

Wilson died the holder of two major league slugging records, both set in his peak season, 1930. He homered 56 times that year, tops in the National League, and drove in 190 runs, the record for both leagues.

Mize Signs With Giants

Sanford, Fla., Nov. 24 (AP).—First Baseman Johnny Mize and President Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants came to terms here tonight on a 1949 contract.

Stoneham made the announcement after talking with the slugging first baseman at the Mayfair Inn, purchased by the Giants last summer. The lakefront hotel, formally opened tonight, will house two Giants farm clubs during the coming spring training season.

Stoneham did not disclose the terms of the agreement with Mize.

In 1947, the 35-year-old first baseman tied with Ralph Kiner of the Pittsburgh Pirates with 51 home runs and during the past season the pair tied again, this time with 40.

Also here with Stoneham for the opening of the Inn are Carl Hubbell, director of the Giants farm system; Mel Ott, former manager; and Eddie Brannick, secretary of the club.

15-Year-Old Tuve Shares Grid Contest With 1st Woman Winner

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Trygve Tuve, phenonomenal teen-age pigskin prognosticator, waited until the last week of The Washington Post's Pick-the-Winners contest to become its all-time champion.

Trygve, winner of two contests last season, turned in an entry listing 20 winners, missing the Georgetown-GW score by only a point. It was good enough to make him a three-time victor.

At that, the 15-year-old Bethesda-Chevy Chase High sophomore, had to share top honors with the first woman to win this year, Mrs. Cora Fisher.

Mrs. Fisher, 709 S. Arlington Mill dr., Arlington, matched young Tuve's 20 perfect predictions and also missed that GW score by a mere point.

Both Mrs. Fisher and Trygve, and their guests, join the 16 others in The Post's Army-Navy party for its contest winners. Each weekly winner received two tickets to Saturday's service classic and an all-expense first-class trip to Philadelphia for two.

Winning should be old stuff to Trygve, son of Dr. and Mrs. Merle Tuve, 135 Hesketh st., but he was quite happy to learn that he hadn't lost the touch. Young Tuve confessed that he had been "too busy" to enter the contest all year.

Last week he read of William M. Kaiser, 6003 3d st. ne., becoming a two-time winner in the contest's two-year history. So Trygve promptly went into action.

Trygve's a good boy to know. Johnny Skilling, 15, of 136 Hesketh st., can attest to that. Johnny again will accompany his best friend to the Army-Navy game. Last year, when Trygve won the fifth and last contests, he took along two wounded servicemen, too. They were Army Corpl. Bernard Martin of Walter Reed Hospital, and Marine Corpl. Lewis Auriccihio of Bethesda Hospital.

Mrs. Fisher, attractive mother of a 16-year-old daughter, Barbara, was more than a little excited over her victory.

She's the wife of Army Maj. William Fisher, a dentist at the Army War College. Mrs. Fisher kept entering the contest although her husband kept telling her she was "silly because she had no chance."

Yesterday, Mrs. Fisher had the last laugh and Major Fisher admitted that he was going to be "silly enough" to go with her to help root Army home.

In addition to picking all 20 winners, Mrs. Fisher thought George Washington would defeat Georgetown, 14-7. Trygve Tuve thought it would be, 13-6. GW actually won, 13-7.

Seven runnersup who picked all 20 games but missed out on the tie-breaking twenty-first included:

Henry W. Bury, 1423 Chapin st. nw.; T/Sergt. Howard C. Greenia, USMC, Marine Corps Air Station, Quantico, Va.; Mrs. Audrey C. Purnell, 7750 Emerson rd., West Lanham Hills, Md.; O. M. Crosby, 4308 Second rd., Arlington; Carroll R. Campbell, 5428 55th pl., East Riverdale, Md.; M/Sergt. M. L. Sholley, 2483 S. Scott st., Arlington; Spencer H. Newsome, Storer College, Harpers Ferry, W. Va.

Howard Meets Lincoln Today At Stadium

Lincoln and Howard Universities meet for the forty-third time today at 1:30 p. m. at Griffith Stadium with Lincoln favored to win and take over first place in the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

A crowd of 20,000 is expected for the kickoff.

Both teams carry four-game winning streaks into the game, but Lincoln with a 7-2 record, has played a tougher schedule. Howard has won six out of eight.

Most of the games in the 55-year-old series have been decided by close scores. Howard has won 18 and lost 17 with seven games resulting in ties.

Last week Howard went on a 40-0 spree against Delaware State College, while Lincoln whipped Winston-Salem Teachers, 21-0.

Howard, coached by Eddie Jackson, operates out of a snappy T-formation, with Chuck Ross and Ernie Davis alternating in the quarterback spot. Both pass very well.

Sandy Green, 200-pound fullback from New York, is the workhorse of the Howard backfield, having pickedup most of its ground gains.

Fullback Joe Harris, a Cardozo High of Washington alumnus, has accounted for most of Lincoln's scoring. He's fast and deceptive in the open field.

The invaders have a unique passing combination in Halfbacks Bob Smith and Jim Cook. Both are stars of the basketball team, and are adept at handling the football, too.

Navy's Hamilton Reported Sought For Pitt Post

Pittsburgh, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette said tonight it had learned Capt. Tom Hamilton, twice football coach of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, is a leading candidate for the job of Pitt athletic director.

Frank Carver, Pitt sports publicist, has been serving as acting director since the resignation under fire of James Hagan last July.

Pitt officials declined comment on the report. Hamilton, reached at Annapolis, said:

"Very interesting news, but at the present my only interest is in beating Army."

For Joe Tipton

Chisox Trade Joe Haynes To Indians

Pitcher Joe Haynes, who seldom beat the Cleveland Indians, yesterday joined them.

The Chicago White Sox traded the 31-year-old righthander to the world's champions for Joe Tipton, 25-year-old rookie catcher.

"I feel just like anyone else would feel who had been traded from an eighth-place club to a championship team — great," Haynes said here last night.

Joe Tipton Joe Haynes

Joe is a son-in-law of Clark Griffith, Nat president, and winters in Silver Spring. He came up to the Nats in 1940 and was sold to the Hose in 1941.

He experienced his best year with Chicago in 1947 when he won 14 and lost six for a sixth place team. Bothered by a sore arm last year, he finished with nine victories and 10 defeats.

Haynes will undergo an operation for bursitis next week, he said.

Catcher Tipton appeared in only 47 games with the Indians last season and batted .289. In 1947 he led the Class A Eastern League, batting .375 for Wilkes-Barre.

The Haynes-Tipton deal, a straight swap with no cash involved, was the second trade the Sox have made in two weeks. Last week they sent Catcher Aaron Robinson to Detroit for Rookie Pitcher Billy Pierce.

Howard Soccermen Face Falcon Today

The Falcon Athletic Club from New York City will meet Howard University's undefeated soccer team this morning at 10 o'clock on the Howard athletic field.

Penn-Cornell Tops Major Games Today

By Jack Hand

New York, Nov. 24 (AP).—A Cornell-Pennsylvania clash for the Ivy League title is the main dish on a slim Thanksgiving Day football menu.

Turkey Day, once the focal point of the grid season, brings only 13 games involving major college teams. In many cities, high school teams will monopolize the attention of the fans.

Texas and Texas Aggies, usually waiting for a bowl invitation, will fight for little more than the championship of Texas and Texas Aggies at Austin's Memorial stadium.

It's still possible for Texas to tie Southern Methodist for the Southwest Conference crown if SMU should lose Saturday to Texas Christian. In any event, SMU would go to the Cotton Bowl as it thumped Texas, 21-6.

Southern Conference Games

Kansas and Missouri, both of whom were practically decapitated by the powerful Oklahoma Sooners meet at Columbia, Mo., to decide second place in the Big Seven.

Utah can sew up the Big Six Conference championship by downing Utah State at Salt Lake City. Wyoming plays at Denver in the other Rocky Mountain district tilt.

The South, which has several top-notch pairings Saturday, has four Southern Conference games tomorrow. Perhaps the best is Wake Forest, which has lost only three in rugged competition, meeting South Carolina. Virginia Military plays at Virginia Tech, a traditional contest; Washington and Lee invades Richmond and Furman faces Davidson in a game to be played at Charlotte, N. C.

In addition to Kansas-Missouri, the West has only Kansas State at St. Louis and Nevada at Wichita.

Colgate faces Brown in the usual morning contest at Providence, and San Francisco journeys to Olean, N. Y., to test the strong St. Bonaventure team.

Cornell, underrated in early fall, closed with a rush. After a disappointing loss to Army, the Big Red bounced back with three straight wins, including a one-point squeaker over Dartmouth.

Penn, beaten by Army, 26-20, in the last 30 seconds, handled Dartmouth and Navy with more ease than Cornell. Each beat Columbia by a touchdown in the closing minutes. Army, however, smashed Cornell, 27-6.

17-Year Old Jock Halted But Scores 2 Seconds

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 24.—Apprentice Jockey Clarence Picou, who rode five winners here yesterday, went 0 for eight today.

The 17-year-old Texan set the racing world buzzing with 22 victories in the first nine days at this oval in the pines. Until today, there were many who thought the kid couldn't lose. At that, he had two mounts second.

Mrs. Otts Nyberg's Irisen, only filly in a nine-horse field, was a galloping winner in the $5000 added W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap, featuring the Thanksgiving Eve program.

Making the muddy track look fast when she turned the 6 furlongs in 1:11 4/5, Irisen won by five lengths from Maine Chance Farm's Royal Blood, the favorite, who had no excuse to offer after getting to the front in the back stretch. Brookmeade Stable's Dart By was third about four lengths in back of Royal Blood and two lengths to the fore of Dion K. Kerr, jr.'s, Flying Weather.

No Luck For Picou.

Young Picou seemed to be the same hustling, scuffling youngster as on other days but he just couldn't get himself a winner. He was second with Jouett Shouse's East in the third race and also came into the place position with Louis Hurwitz's Broad Daylight in the seventh but that was as close as he could get all afternoon.

Picou kept trying, had some tough luck in close quarters and probably broke a lot of bettors. However, he's still a good rider.

Although Irisen always has displayed an affection for an off track, she was not rated among the short-priced choices for the W. P. Burch Memorial and the payoff was a handsome $13.0 for $2. Her time was only 1 1/5. seconds off the track record which was established over a fast oval.

Robertson Aboard Irisen

The second winner of the day for Jockey Jackie Robertson, Irisen was close to the pace in the opening furlongs, took command at the head of the stretch and pulled away with her pilot sitting still at the reins. It appeared to be one of the easiest wins of the meeting.

While some of the best sprinters in training appeared in the W. P. Burch, the 7000 racegoers composed one of the smallest gatherings thus far of the 13-day meeting, which will be brought to a close on Saturday with a renewal of the $20,000 added Bryan and O'Hara Memorial Handicap.

Irisen, purchased by Baltimorean Otts Nyberg for $3500 and later given to Mrs. Nyberg as a birthday present, stepped to her sixth win in 20 starts this year and the lion's share of $7800 increased her total earnings to $26,725.

Robertson got Irisen away to a flying start, but took hold of his willing mount when Royal Blood rushed up to take the early lead, was being closely followed by Little Harp, who was hemmed in along the inside rail. When Robertson asked Irisen for top speed on the turn, she responded willingly and had little or no trouble drawing away in the lane.

Tall Tales Are True About Central Five

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

COACH GABE FERAZZI 'LOOKS UP' TO BOB MEYER

Bob Meyer, 6-Foot 9-Inch Center, Tops the Vikings' Skyscrapers

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The opening of the Interhigh League season is still six weeks away, but already some pretty tall tales are seeping out of Central's basketball inner sanctum.

One is about a 6-foot 9-inch giant, who is being groomed to guard the backboards for the champion Vikings. Another is that Central will field one of the tallest teams in interhigh basketball history.

Both tales are true.

We watched Coach Gabe Ferazzi and his Central squad of 40 work out yesterday, and saw Bob Meyer, the 17-year-old giant, dribble across the foul line, jump and actually drop the ball through the cords.

"He'll be a valuable man to us as soon as he gains a lot of weight an' experience," said Ferazzi of Meyer yesterday.

Despite a voracious appetite which enables him to devour, among other things, two steaks and a quart and a half of milk per day, Bob weighs a scant 165 pounds. He's only been playing basketball for two years, and is a willing student of the game.

He's a junior but wasn't on the Vikings' championship squad last season. Ferazzi presented Bob with a basketball last summer, and Bob practiced with it on the playground until the first practice was called two weeks ago.

Bob comes from a family of tall people, but he towers over them all. His brother, 28-year-old Louis, Jr., stands 6 feet 3½ inches, and his dad is 6 foot 1.

Although 5-foot, 10-inch Jimmy Pantos will probably pace Central's pointmakers again, Meyer will be at home among the Vikings' tall-timber.

Skyscraping veterans are Bill Dunker, 6 feet, 4 inches, Franny Gleason, 6 feet, 3 inches, and Jack Stringer, Ivan Shefferman and George Berman, 6 feet, 2 inches each.

Other newcomers who'll fit into the picture are Allen (Boo) Dunker, brother of Bill, and Warren Gage, both 6 feet 2 inches. Smaller lads who are pressing for varsity berths are Terry Gregory, Lew Glickfield and Barry Holt, all 5 feet, 10 inches, all lettermen last year.

3 Cocaptains

Villanova, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP).—Three players will share the game captaincy of a Villanova college football team for the first time in the game against North Carolina State at Raleigh, N. C., Saturday, Halfback Al Schmid, Trenton, N. J.; End Frank Kane and Center Syl Yannelli, Philadelphia.

Fox O. K., Quits Hospital

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Examining physicians at Sisters Hospital tonight released Blackjack Billy Fox, youthful light heavyweight boxer, after tests failed to disclose that he was suffering from any serious injuries.

Fox, who twice tried unsuccessfully to wrest the light heavyweight championship from former titlist Gus Lesnevich, collapsed in his dressing room last night after dropping a split decision to Tiger Ted Lowry, New Bedford, Mass., battler.

$10,000 'Cap Tops Bowie's Card Today

Young turkeys will be featured on many tables this afternoon and young horses will hold the spotlight at nearby Bowie. Eleven good 2-year-olds have been gathered for the $10,000-added Endurance Handicap and a crowd of 20,000 is expected to be on hand to see the fun and try to better the bankroll.

Favoritism in the juvenile test of a mile and 70 yards is expected to settle on Isadore Bieber's Palestinian, a winner previously at the meeting and assigned top weight of 122 pounds. Brookmeade Stable, leading outfit at the session, will send Gnu after the major portion of the 10 grand and this one will have Clarence Picou, thee apprentice ace, aboard.

Also in the line-up are G. M. Cohen's Eddie Leonard and H. L. Straus' Cock of the Walk, coupled as an entry; Mrs. B. S. Campbell's Third Division, Gustave Ring's Galloping Gus and other youngsters of note.

For those who will wait until after dark for their light and dark meat, the program is a stellar one. Lovers of distance races will have their innings for the eight events are from a mile and 70 yards to a mile and a half.

The day's secondary feature is the Thanksgiving Day purse, a $3000 affair for 2-year-olds. With 16 youngsters named overnight a full field seems assured. Brookmeade may have the favorite in this event with Picou scheduled to ride going away.

BETWEEN RACES

Picou will leave early next week for New Orleans, where he rode his first winner. The youngster loses his apprentice allowance January 15, a year after visiting the winner's circle for the initial time . . . Gene Ford, Loew's Theater official, visited the track yesterday for the first time since his illness . . . Pilaster has been assigned top weight of 126 pounds for the $20,000-added Bryan and O'Hara Handicap on Saturday . . . Freddie Burton, racing secretary at Charles Town, opening on Monday, visited the press box yesterday. He says the West Virginia track has the best horses in its history.

St. Paul's Vs. St. John's

St. Paul's Academy will meet St. John DeMatha High in the opening basketball game of the season for both schools at the Merrick Boys Club on Saturday at 8 p. m.

Close Game Expected by 12,000 Fans

The Ol' Oaken Bucket, Northern Virginia championship, and possibly even the State-wide football title hang in the balance this morning at 11 o'clock when George Washington High of Alexandria and Washington-Lee of Arlington clash for the twenty-fifth time at the GW Stadium.

A sellout crowd of 12,000 will be on hand for the annual game and the color and pageantry which surround it.

Harry Gilmer and Al DeMao, Redskins' stars, will appear at halftime to crown "Miss GW High of 1948." The 75-piece bands of both schools will provide music.

Washington-Lee has won 12 games; George Washington has won nine, three games ended in ties. W.-L. has scored 293 points to 254 for G. W.

A personal scoring duel between G. W.'s Bobby Via and W.-L.'s Jack Gilfillan is anticipated. Via, a plunging halfback, has 11 touchdowns to 12 for Gilfillan, a broken-field runner, who also throws a good pass.

G. W. will provide the game's most versatile performer in 165-pound Fullback Teddy Potts, who has scored six touchdowns, passed for nine more and maintained a 40-yards per try punting average.

Last night, 4000 G. W. rooters turned out for a giant pep rally and bonfire at the school terrace. A parade of 200 cars drove through Alexandria after the rally.

Wild Opening Night Due at Bike Races

A wild opening night is predicted for the first international six-day bike race, which opens at the National Guard Armory, 19th and East Capitol sts., Sunday.

A bitter friction among factions within the field of riders has been carried over from their October grind in New York. There the Italian stars earned the enmity of some of the others because they had brought with them extra-fine tires for their sleek racing bikes.

The other cyclists, who rode standard racing tires, felt that the Italians had an unfair advantage in using the lightweight tubes. The refusal of the Romans to remove their tires caused a number of sharp disputes, which eventually led to several exchanges of blows on the track.

Now, with the race only a few hours away, Franco Georgetti, Severino Rigoni and Primo Bergomi, the objects of this common antipathy, are calmly awaiting the storm. They know they are in for some rough going. The other riders, all rough customers, are out to ride them off the boards.

However, Franco, Severino and Primo are three boys who can take care of themselves. Georgetti, one of the greatest six-day stars of all time knows every trick of the trade. Rigoni a husky blond from Milano, dominated the last hour of the New York race in October with some of the most fantastic sprinting attacks seen in many years. Bergomi, holder of two world's speed records, does not frighten easily, either.

There will be three Americans in the field: George Shipman of Long Island City, N. Y., Howard Rupprecht of Maplewood, N. J. and Mike Abt of Chicago, Ill. Altogether 12 teams are entered in the race, representing the United States, Canada, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Luxembourg and Italy. The New York winners, Louis Saen and Emile Bruneau of Belgium, will be among the starters.

St. Cecilia's Beats St. Patrick's, 33 to 18

St. Cecilia's, unbeaten in two years, opened its CYO Girls High basketball season yesterday with a 33-18 victory over St. Patrick's in the losers' gymn.

St. Mary's of Alexandria defeated Holy Trinity, 32-28, in another varsity game. In jayvee contests, St. Cecilia's won, 13-11, and Holy Trinity won, 30-22.

AT FAIR GROUNDS
1—Temporary, Court Flash, Queen Jody.
2—Cadet Carl, Cee Style, Ilovebridge.
3—Snatched, Sun Jay, Prince Flor.

Oregon Now Mentioned as Cotton Bowl Possibility

Abe Tells 'Em

Harlem Boys Gather Tales But No Moss

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Abe Saperstein is a roundish, untaciturn little man out of Chicago who is owner-manager-coach of and a former substitute player with the Harlem Globetrotters. The Harlem Globetrotters are a Negro basketball team whose members, as the name indicates, do not come from Harlem and never trot when they can avoid it.

They do not trot, jog, canter or sprint unless necessary because, in 22 years of touring this and other nations, they have played about 3400 basketball games. And when a guy knows he must play another game tomorrow evening and another the next and still another the night after that, why, he feels practically no urge to go dashing around at top speed for 40 solid minutes tonight.

"When we started touring," Mr. Saperstein explains, "we had six players, including me. We realized we couldn't keep running every night, so we had to figure a way to play basketball standing still. The solution was a fast passing game, a lot of sleight-of-hand with the ball.

"The way this all started, in 1926 there was a place in Chicago, the Savoy Ballroom, that had some open dates and they put in this colored basketball team under the name of the Savoy Big Five. I was the advisory coach. Basketball was a little expensive to run, though, and the next year Savoy put in roller skating instead, so I took the team on the road.

"WE'VE BEEN AT it ever since. You take the average college team, it plays maybe 25 games over a whole winter. In 10 years, the college will have 250 games. At that rate, how long would it take a team to play 3400 games? It comes to 136 years, don't it?

"We've played for a gate of $5 and we've taken a check for $15,000 for one game. One night in Wheatland, Iowa, we're playing in a hayloft upstairs in a barn. The big door at the end, where they load the hay through, was boarded up. There was some pretty fair body-contact in those days, and somebody hit one of our boys, Lester Johnson, and Lester crashed right through the boards and disappeared into the night.

"We thought he was killed sure. We all ran outside. He wasn't hurt, but he wasn't happy. It seemed the farmer had his fertilizer heap right under that door.

"In our early days, professional basketball was dying of its own volition. Teams like the Celtics got old on themselves, and every game was a wrestling match. Do you know, the Celts and Fort Wayne once played for the championship and the score was 16 to 15? We had to go wherever we could and take what we could get.

"One time, driving through Montana from Miles City to Glasgow, where we had a game booked, we ran into a terrific blizzard and had to hole up three days in a sheepherder's cabin. There were some other guys along iwth us then; counting the sheepherder, there were 17 guys in a room and a half.

"Probably

"PROBABLY WE never would have been found except that a fellow from Glasgow was along and after three days his wife got worried and sent out a search party that found us. They got us into Glasgow about noon and the superintendent of schools, who was promoting the game, said we'd play that night. The town's telephone operator called everybody in the district to tell 'em about it, and we must've had 1500 at the game.

"Remember Shelby, Mont., where Dempsey fought Gibbons? We got in there and it's a tiny town crawling with money and gambling. Every cigar store was a gambling house—"mints," they called 'em—with mountains of silver dollars stacked up instead of chips.

"A guy came around to me and said he was representing the mayor. He took me to another man who said, 'Mr. Saperstein, we've checked your record through Minnesota and the Dakotas and it's very good but our town has spent a lot of money getting us a good basketball team, too. Would you consider an inducement to make sure our team wins?'

"Well, I said I couldn't make any such arrangement and I went back to the hotel and in a little while here comes another guy says he's the sheriff. He says, 'Mr. Saperstein, you were seen with so and so today,' he named the first guy that had called on me, 'and the odds on the game have changed in all the mints. I warn you, if you don't win you'll all sleep in jail.'

THAT AFTERNOON there were 3200 people in a gym built for 2000, and so many people outside we hade to make it a double-header to quiet 'em. Our first 11 shots went in and after that we couldn't do anything wrong. We walloped 'em twice and lammed for the city limits.'

"One night we got into Atlanta late and I went to a hotel on Auburn st., in the colored section, along with the players. I'm just dropping off to sleep when a couple detectives crash in and tell me I gotta get out, I don't belong in that section."

"I guess," Mr. Saperstein said, "those cops were anti-Semitic."

Texans Feel N. C. Risks Bid by Delay

Dallas, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Dallas Times Herald sports editor, Jere R. Hayes, said today that "should North Carolina stall too long there is a keen possibility that Oregon will be invited to the Cotton Bowl."

Hayes said he had learned such was the case as another day passed without any sign of a decision from any team to accept an invitation to play Southern Methodist in the Dallas New Year's Day gridiron classic.

Oregon entered the picture after the Webfoots were voted out of the Rose Bowl, although finishing in a tie with California for the Pacific Coast championship.

Cotton Bowl officials think Oregon could obtain premission from its conference to play in the game here.

North Carolina has been reported the choice of the Southern Methodist squad and it has been generally expected that the Tar Heels would agree to come here. While Hayes takes the view that North Carolina is stalling for time, hopeful of coming up with an invitation to the Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl officials discount this. They declined, however, to advance any reason for the holdup, Hayes said.

Sugar Bowl Teams Due by Sunday

New Orleans, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Sugar Bowl executive committee talked about football teams today, but what they said is top secret.

"We didn't do anything," said Sugar Bowl President Frank Schaub after the conference.

He said there was no announcement to make, not even as to possible time for disclosing the New Year's Day opponents.

"It looks to me like it'll be Saturday night before we can say anything," he said. "Or maybe Sunday."

Orange Bowl Invites Carolina, Oklahoma

Norman, Okla., Nov. 24 (AP).—The University of Oklahoma football team voted unanimously today to "c"consider any bowl invitation" if they wil the final game of the season Saturday.

Coach Bud Wilkinson said after a squad meeting this afternoon that the Sooners decided their decision would hinge on defeating Oklahoma A. and M.

Dr. George L. Cross, the university president, said Oklahoma has already received an Orange Bowl bid, but that the team's first choice of a bowl opponent is North Carolina.

He said the team is more interested in who it plays rather than where, and that the bowl revenue is not the consideration.

Oregon Willing To Play in Bowl

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 24 (AP).—Oregon Coach Jim Aiken said today his Webfoots would like a bid to any of the major bowls, such as the Cotton Bowl, Orange Bowl, or Sugar Bowl.

His own choice, said Aiken, is the Sugar Bowl. "We would like to be invited to the New Orleans classic," he said, "and we think we could put up a good game there."

Red Hot Evansville In Refrigerator Bowl

Hopkins Rejects Tangerine Bowl

Baltimore, Nov. 24 (AP).—Johns Hopkins University today turned down an invitation to play football in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., on New Year's Day.

Head Coach Howdy Myers said the decision is in line with a standing policy against postseason athletic contests.

Johns Hopkins closed out its regular season last Saturday with a 7-to-6 win over Western Maryland University that gave the Bluejays a Mason-Dixon Conference championship.

Operation Upset

Statistics Tossed Into Drink As Middies Sail After Army

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 24 (AP).—Statistics, those burdensome and worrisome things, have been tossed into the drink as Navy hoists sail for its football cruise against Army Saturday.

Capt. Tom Hamilton, who knows more than a little about Middie-Cadet warfare tells why:

The captain has had first hand experience. He's now athletic director at Annapolis, but back in 1926 he was a triple threat back whose dropkick deadlocked a favored Army team.

Exactly 20 years later he returned to the Severn shores to coach the lightly regarded midshipmen. They stunned another great Army eleven and fell short of deadlock by just three extra points.

That 21-18 hair-raiser, which ended with Navy a breath away from another touchdown, makes it easier for the defeat-dogged Tars to scorn the exceedingly cold facts.

Sauer Sweet on Tars

Not only have Army's platoons mowed down eight foes while Navy was losing to the same number, the West Pointers have run far ahead of the Middies in virtually every department.

"We know Army has a great team," says Coach George Sauer. "They're fast, strong and opportunists. But we're going to extend them to the limit. Army is in for a long afternoon."

The young man who came out of the Midwest to take charge of Navy football and bumped into a brutal schedule has a great passion for speed among his personnel.

He's introduced a few new offensive wrinkles just for the service squabble, trying to keep alive an overland threat while Reaves Baysinger and Bob Horne fire aerials.

Hawkins Injured

Navy has no one to match Bobby Jack Stuart's speed or slickness and may have to attack with its power man, Fullback Bill Hawkins, on limited duty. The 200-pound line smasher hurt a shoulder against Columbia two Saturdays ago and has avoided contact work ever since.

Tackle Ken Knoizen and Sub End Ronnie Andresen are also hobbled with injuries.

They've taken gaudy war paint to the scowling features of Tecumseh, the bronze Indian who sits on a pedestal before Bancraft Hall. Victory slogans are splashed over cannon and dormitory windows.

| ARMY | | OPPONENTS |
|---|---|---|
| 273 | Total points | 68 |
| 123 | First downs | 78 |
| 2688 | Net yards rushing | 786 |
| 103 | Forward passes attempted | 162 |
| 51 | Forward passes completed | 56 |
| 691 | Yards by forward passes | 562 |
| NAVY | | OPPONENTS |
| 56 | Total points | 206 |
| 99 | First downs | 124 |
| 887 | Net yards rushing | 2012 |
| 170 | Forward passes attempted | 114 |
| 69 | Forward passes completed | 52 |

Sauer, Staff TD Club Guests

Head Coach George Sauer and members of his Naval Academy football staff will be guests of honor at the Touchdown Club's luncheon Monday at 12:30 p. m.

Sauer, who came to Navy this past season after a brilliant coaching career at the University of Kansas, will be main speaker and will review Saturday's Army-Navy football classic in Philadelphia.

Columbus Gets 1950 PGA Meet

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 24 (AP).—A purse of $40,000, largest in the event's history, was put up for grabs today as Columbus was awarded the 1950 PGA golf championship.

The seven-day event will be held at the Scioto Country Club probably the last week in June. The sprawling Scioto Course, a par 72 layout of 7041 yards, was host to the National Open in 1926.

Games Wanted

Football opposition is being sought by the 90-pound class Cherrydale Insects and the 135-pound Wolverines. Call Jesse Ward at Glebe 9066.

Lions Play In New Haven

Veteran Goal Tender Paul Gauthier will be back in the nets for the Washington Lions tonight when they invade New Haven, Conn., for an American Hockey League match with the Ramblers, a recent 9-0 conqueror here.

The local pros return to Uline ice against the champion Cleveland Barons tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock.

Two Washington players may be sidelined tonight. Dan Porteous, rangy center, continues to limp on a lame ankle while Dave Maguire, fleet winger, is suffering from a heavy cold.

Metro Teams Play Benefit for Injured Tawney

Fullback Eddie Tawney, who broke his back in a Metro Football League game October 26, will receive all proceeds of Sunday's Brookland-Woodridge vs. Southwest Merchants grid contest at 2 p. m. at Gonzaga High Field.

Eddie had scored all six of Southwest Merchants' touchdowns this season before injuring himself against Brookland. He spent three weeks at Emergency Hospital.

Tickets are priced at $1 each, and are on sale at: Andy Farkas' Sport Shop, 714 14th st. nw.; Tommy Whelan's, 3903 12th st. ne.; Judd's Pharmacy, 524 7th st. sw.; Arrow Liner Service Co., 1306 H st. ne.; Billy's Mercury Grill, 615 7th st. sw.; Jack's Department Store, 605 7th st. sw.

Stonewall Requests Rematch With West

Promoter Goldie Ahearn of the Liberty Athletic Club reported last night that Stonewall Jackson has asked for another match with Sonny Boy West, his local lightweight rivla, on a winner-take-all basis.

West knocked out Jackson in the eighth round of their scheduled 12-round bout for the District's lightweight title at Uline Arena last week, but Stonewall, who upset Sonny Boy in Baltimore last September, claimed that he was fouled and is demanding a third match.

Laverne Baxter Pins Kamaroff

Laverne Baxter pinned Ivan Kamaroff with a body press in 27 minutes of the main wrestling match last night at Turner's Arena.

In the preliminaries, Herman Rubenstein of Washington made Harry Finklestein surrender after 12 minutes with a leg lock, Superman disposed of Hans Kampfer in 20 minutes with a body press, and the team of Marvin Mercer and Jack Kelley defeated Michele Leone and Jim Wallis in 29 minutes.

Jailed for Taxes

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—William G. Lias, president of the Wheeling Downs race track and night club owner, was sentenced to five years in a Federal penitentiary and fined $10,000 today on an income tax evasion charge.

Table Tennis Tourney

The tenth annual Government employes table tennis tournament will be played at the District table tennis courts, 403 11th s. nw., on December 10, 11, 12.

Events scheduled are men's and women's singles and men's doubles.

Jack Toomay Expected With Caps Tonight

Jack Toomay, 6-foot 7-inch center, and Fred Scolari, veteran guard, are expected to represent the Washington Capitols tonight when they seek their eleventh straight Basketball Association of America victory against the Philadelphia Warriors in Philadelphia.

On Saturday night the local pros are to return to Uline Arena to play host to the high scoring Indianapolis Jets at 8:45 o'clock.

Toomay, 25, originally of the College of the Pacific and a resident of Pomona, Calif., was entered on the Caps' negotiation list last Saturday, and was scheduled to report here last night. The Baltimore Bullets originally had announced they had signed the player, but Washington's action in placing him on its negotiation list first earned it the right to bid for his services first.

The newest Cap had accepted terms yesterday, and a hotel reservation was being held for him here. He originally played with the Chicago Stags and Providence Steamrollers, and scored 153 points in 14 games with Providence late last season.

Scolari returned here from Rochester following last Sunday night's game to undergo treatment for a sprained left ankle. He reported that the swelling had subsided yesterday, and believes he will be available for part time service against Philadelphia tonight.

Meanwhile, considerable interest is being shown locally in the Capitols return to Uline's against the Jets Saturday night. Indianapolis recently teamed with Providence in setting a new BAA scoring mark by defeating the Steamrollers, 110 to 107.

John Mahnken, swapped by the Caps to Baltimore for Kleggie Hermsen in off season and more recently traded to Indianapolis by the Bullets in exchange for Fred Lewis and Hal Tidrick, will jump center for the Jets here Saturday. Hermsen, Washington's big gun of early season, will oppose him.

Minneapolis Romps, 117-89

Minneapolis, Nov. 24 (AP).—Breaking the all-time Basketball Association of America scoring record, and at least two other marks, the Minneapolis Lakers tonight smothered Providence, 117 to 89, before 4124 fans.

George Mikan, the league's leading scorer, failed to live up to his 29-point scoring average, making a mere 20, but he and his mates poured in 54 field goals for another record and their 28-point margin over Providence was the greatest victory edge as well.

The Lakers breezed to a 59-38 count at the half and Coach Johnny Kundla used his reserves most of the rest of the way. Mikan saw only 31 minutes of action in the record-breaking contest.

It was the fourth straight win for the Lakers and their seventh in 11 games. The visitors meanwhile suffered their seventh defeat in eight starts.

Chicago Rockets Meet 1st Place Buffalo Bills

Chicago, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Chicago Rockets plan to take to the air in quest of a possible upset over the Buffalo Bills in their All-America Conference football game at Soldier Field tomorrow morning.

Texas Mines Host

West Virginia, Next Terp Foe, Accepts Sun Bowl Invitation

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—West Virginia University has accepted an invitation to meet Texas Mines in the Sun Bowl football game at El Paso, Tex., New Years Day, Mountaineer Athletic Director Roy M. Hawley said tonight.

The announcement came a few hours after Chairman G. Ott Romney of the WVU Athletic Council assured newsmen that Mountaineer chances of getting such a bid still were "very much alive." WVU has won seven games and lost three to date this season. They are coached by Dud DeGroot, former Redskin coach.

It also followed an announcement late yesterday by LaFayette College officials at Easton, Pa., that they had refused an invitation to meet Texas Mines, champions of the Border Conference, in the New Years Day clash.

(Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Lafayette, earlier said that a bid to play Texas Mines in the annual game was turned down by his school because Sun Bowl officials made it plain that Negro halfback Dave Showell would not be welcome, according to the United Press.)

Before the acceptance was made final, the coaches put the matter to a vote on the Mountaineer grid squad this afternoon while the players were on the field preparing for Saturday's game with Maryland. The response, Hawley said, was "enthusiastic."

2 Terp Wingmen Hurt in Practice

You can't tell the Maryland football coaches that lightning doesn't strike in the same place twice.

They saw it happen in a scrimmage yesterday.

First, Fred Davis, regular right end, banged his knee and will probably be out of Saturday's finale with West Virginia. On the very next play, Stan Karnash, Davis' sub, twisted his ankle and is another doubtful contestant.

This leaves the Terp right end situation in a bad state of affairs. The other flankman, Fran Evans, wears a grotesque mask to protect a crushed cheek bone he received in the GW game. Evans hasn't been able to go full speed since his injury.

Good Players Help, Too

Oklahoma Success Due to High Morale, Coach Says

Norman, Okla., Nov. 24 (AP).—What makes the University of Oklahoma's football team tick?

Sooner Coach Bud Wilkinson says there's only one answer:

"It's squad morale. Everyone of our players, straight down to the last scrub, is always working and playing for the good of the team. I sincerely believe that every victory is a squad victory."

The young coach modestly declines to mention that his success in combining the split T formation with the power plays of the single wing has much to do with Oklahoma winning eight straight games this season.

Oklahoma capped its Big Seven Conference season last Saturday by defeating Kansas, 60-7, for the crown.

Mitchell Natural Leader

The personable Wilkinson is quick to point with pride to his star quarterback, Jack Mitchell, as the basis for his claim that it's teamwork that wins games.

"Mitchell is one of the greatest natural leaders I have seen. When he goes into the game, he is a terrific inspiration to the team. The play he calls is going to click because the boys know he is calling the right play, and they make it work."

Mitchell is the key to Wilkinson's winged-T formation. The 165-pounder handles the ball on every play and the addition of the wingman gives Oklahoma a chance to use all the power of the single wing as well as the trickery of the T. Straight power plays, spinners reverses and an assortment of pass plays are used devastatingly by the Sooners.

Wilkinson was a member of the Minnesota team which won the national college championship for three years starting in 1934. He learned the single wing there under one of its chief exponents, Bernie Bierman. After playing two years at guard, he switched to quarterback in 1936 for the Gophers.

Wilkinson Uses Blend

It was the war that introduced Wilkinson to Don Faurot's split-T formation. Wilkinson was an assistant coach under the Missouri mentor at Iowa Preflight in 1943.

After being grounded on both varieties of attack from the masters, Wilkinson has combined the two.

The Sooners are primarily a running team, but have completed almost 50 per cent of their passes. While the opposition plays close for Oklahoma's rushing game, the Sooners have been able to do almost as they please with an overhead attack.

Oklahoma lost its first game of the season to Santa Clara, 17-20, but its steady improvement since then has been one of the surprises of the season.

One reason is a fine assortment of sophomore material, which has developed faster than Wilkinson expected.

Appeals Court Upholds Sentences In Grid Bribery

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The sentences of two gamblers, convicted of attempting to "fix" the National Football League's championship game between the Chicago Bears and New York Giants in 1946, were confirmed unanimously today by the New York State Court of Appeals.

The high court issued no opinion in affirming the 5 to 10-year sentences imposed by a lower court on Harvey Stemmer and David Krakower, both of New York, for attempting to bribe two Giant players to "throw" the game.

The players, Quarterback Frank Filchock and Halfback Merle Hapes, almost immediately were suspended from the National Professional League by Commissioner Bert Bell.

Ben Chapman Buys Class B Ball Club

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 24 (AP).—Bearcat Ben Chapman, who rose twice to fame in the big leagues, came back to the minors today—with a team of his own.

Directors of the Class B Southeastern League awarded the ousted manager of the Philadelphia Phillies the franchise for the Gadsden club. Chapman said he will manage the team himself, taking an occasional turn on the mound.

His Fish Business Is Better

British 'White Hope' Search Leaves Solomons Blue

London, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Promoter Jack Solomons was ready to admit today that his latest hunt for a British "white hope" heavyweight boxer has flopped badly despite the lure of a $4000 purse for amateurs willing to enter professional ranks.

Solomons' search has a bit of urgency about it for on December 6 British and Empire Heavyweight Champion Bruce Woodcock will meet Lee Savold over 10 rounds. The fish and fist tycoon tried to keep a poker face while watching Savold in his first British workout yesterday.

But later he admitted that the Paterson (N. J.) heavyweight looked good and added that he doubted if he would visit the United States this year. This was almost an admission that he expects Savold to win for Solomons has no reason to visit the United States if his only good heavyweight is belted out.

Big Jack was at the fish market at 6 a. m. today to inspect another shipment of carp from Yugoslavia. His fish business is so lucrative that even sellout boxing shows are a sideline. He denied that the smell at Billingsgate helps him stand some of the bouts displayed recently in British rings.

"But those fights in my gym yesterday . . ." he sighed.

Solomons managed to find 16 novice heavyweights and matched them before a selected audience of 200 in West End gymnasium. The eight winners were to fight it out as Harringay Arena on the Savold-Woodcock card for a total purse of $4000. The fights were so bad that British Comedians Bud Flanagan and Sid Field complained from the ringside against unfair competition.

"Tell them to stick to fighting or get vaudeville cards," Field shouted.

The only one of the eight winners who seemed to have even the faintest idea of how to box was former Amateur Heavyweight Champion Jack Gardner, who was a disappointment in the Olympic boxing competition last summer.

"There's 46 million people in this country," Solomons groaned. "Somewhere there must be one good heavyweight."

Pitt Tackle Cited in Upset Of Penn State

Pittsburgh, Nov. 24 (AP).—Pitt soberly denied today that Ace Tackle Nick Bolkovac is seeking hand-to-horn combat with a moose during his Thanksgiving hunting trip in Canada.

But the rumor was worth running down. This amazing Youngstown, Ohio, youth has a habit of turning a football tub-thumper's flights of fancy into solid fact.

Big Nick, named the Associated Press lineman of the week, capped a brilliant defensive day by intercepting a pass for a touchdown Saturday which stunned previously unbeaten Penn State.

Then the 210-pounder led the Pitt surge which threw back State's last bid for a tie from the Pitt one.

Nick broke into the Pitt lineup at the start—a rarity for a sophomore—and nobody has been able to get him out since. Even the opposition quit trying.

"He's liable to be the best of the all-time tackles at Pitt—which is a lot of tackle," said acting Athletic Director Frank Carver.

Bolkovac's arrival at Pitt is a fantastic story in itself.

Born in nearby McKees Rocks, Pa., but schooled at Youngstown, Ohio, tow-headed Nick always wanted to play at Pitt.

Their sorry days didn't deter him. Neither did flattering overtures from other schools afer he twice made All-Ohio scholastic honors.

"We almost swooned from schock when Bolkovac identified himself," Carver chuckled. "We certainly had heard about him but we never expected to see him—except glaring across an opposing line at us."

CU Five Loses Scoring Star

Catholic University has lost Scotty Cranston, high-scoring forward of last year's team, for the basketball season, but Coach Abe Rosenfield expects to put a winning combination on the floor just the same. Cranston, who topped the Cardinals with 195 points last winter, has given up basketball to hit the books.

Rosenfield, however, has six holdovers from last year's varsity and a half dozen promising newcomers who have shown up well in practice. It is a group that figures to better last year's record of nine victories against nine defeats.

For a starting line-up Monday night when the Cards open against Towson at Brookland, the coach can use Capt. Gene Szklarz and Fred (Ox) Connor at forwards, George (Spike) Laubacher at center, Jack and Bill Walsh at guards. The first three and Cranston did the bulk of scoring last winter and are expected to carry on this season.

Rosenfield also has a couple of newcomers in Jim Kennedy and Bill Sondericker who have been impressive, plus Vic Visnauskas, up from the jayvee squad, who is making overtures for a starting assignment.

Mode of Thanksgiving Changes With Times, Old Post Stories Show

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IN 1621, after their first harvest, the Pilgrims set apart a day of Thanksgiving. Connecticut followed a decade later. The Dutch in New Netherlands trailed along. None made it an annual event but rather an occasion celebrating good times after bad, joyous deliverance after crisis. Washington proclaimed two annual Thanksgivings. Madison, when war was done in 1812, made holiday throughout our 25 States. Less than a century ago some Southern States, terming it a relic of Puritanical bigotry, stubbornly ignored the whole affair. But after Lincoln officially designated the last Thursday in November, even these standpatters succumbed to turkey, fixin's and pleasant recounting of blessings.

Fashions in Thanksgiving celebration change with the times, and with a new presidential term approaching, flashbacks, via Washington Post files, show just how good were the good old days, how earlier Administrations gave thanks.

Life Was Rosy in Hayes' Time

IN 1878, when Rutherford B. Hayes was President, life was rosy. To quote a Washington Post story of the day: "For many years Thanksgiving day has not been so generally observed as it was in this city yesterday. The weather was cold and bleak and conducive to stay-at-home inclinations but our reporters found that religious services, which were held in nearly all the churches, were well attended. The streets exhibited a holiday appearance, being thronged with people, and a majority of stores closed after 10 o'clock in the morning. The matinee performance of the theater received a fair patronage.

"At the White House Mr. and Mrs. Hayes entertained at a Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. Col. W. K. Rogers and Maj. O. L. Pruden, with their families, together with the doorkeepers and their families, making altogether quite a large party. The dinner was abundant in good things to eat and most heartily relished by all guests."

Social Notes Were Informal

SOCIAL NOTEES were written in a genial tone: "Hon. Samuel F. Phillips, Solicitor General of the U. S., had an 18-pound turkey on his table, and though it is his candid belief that only two should be present on such occasion—himself and the turkey—he had at his sumptuous board a choice circle of friends. There was no pleasanter home in the District yesterday than that of Mr. Phillips."

Gastronomy and terpsichore were daintily mixed back in 1878: "The friends of Mrs. Rines and Mrs. Lockwood, 810-812 12th st., were invited to one of the most superb Thanksgiving dinners appreciative eaters with good digestion ever sat down to. The dinner was supplemented by a musical entertainment in which the company was treated to some beautiful pianoforte playing by Miss Keith and songs by the ladies present. After that a band of harpists furnished the dancing music which the guests put to legitimate use."

Around town behavior was on the up-and-up. A heading in largish type reads: "But little intoxication was noticed in the streets and almost entire absence of gross exhibitions of drunkenness was noticed." Only 14, it seems, were arrested for making too merry.

A Fair Was Held in 1881

IN 1881, a year after President Garfield's assassination, a Garfield Fair was in full swing at Thanksgiving: "There were over 3000 railroad coupons alone received at the gates and the local attendance was far ahead of previous days. A member of the executive committee said to a Post reporter last night that while he had been despondent before, he now felt confident that they would come out with a surplus." Washington evidently was filled with wolves: "An unfortunate incident at the bazaar marred the evening somewhat. Miss Gypsie Gilbert, who has been very energetic in her efforts to sell a souvenir for the benefit of the fair and has attracted considerable attention thereby was yesterday insulted by a crowd of low fellows. It is not known exactly what took place but it is understood that they stood and stared impudently at her and when remonstrated with remarked, 'Well, you're on exhibition like the pictures, ain't you?' This was too much and the little lady broke down, and, bursting into tears, appealed to the ladies in the adjoining booths for protection. Miss Gilbert was selected by the Graphic as a type of American beauty while in charge of a booth at the Seventh Regiment Fair in

Ignore Family's Cutting Advice In Carving Thanksgiving Fowl

By Lucia Brown

TURKEY all roasted? Browned to a turn? Garnished with parsley and bright red cranberries?

Now comes the big moment, when father rises from his chair and goes to work with carving knife and carborundum.

Carving, some mutter, is a lost art. But there's no use talking that way, just because today's head of the house doesn't slash up a bird two or three nights a week for 10 at table.

The mid-Victorians did have more experience at these things, but the current edition of paterfamilias is a man of talent and initiative. Besides, there's been a lot of research on the subject of carving since the old hit-or-miss days.

Several methods of tackling a turkey, worked out carefully by poultry experts, are outlined by the National Poultry and Egg Board. Especially recommended this year is the modern, easy, side method, where the bird rests peacefully on one wing instead of kicking its drumsticks in the air.

The job, they say, is a lot simpler if the turkey turns its back on you. To get him in this position, grasp the end of the nearest drumstick and flip him over so that he faces the audience—the family, that is. Then carve the top side in the following orderly manner:

(1) REMOVE PART OF THE WING: Grasp the wing tip firmly between thumb and fingers, lift up, and cut between the first and second joints. The second joint is left attached to the bird for later carving. Leave this wingtip and first-joint portion on the platter. This piece, with its scanty covering of meat, is not to be served.

(2) CUT OFF DRUMSTICK: Grasp the end of the drumstick and lift it up and away from the turkey, disjointing drumstick from thigh with the aid of carving knife. Transfer the drumstick to the side platter for slicing the meat. The thigh is left attached to the bird.

(3) SLICE DRUMSTICK MEAT: Hold the drumstick at an angle or upright and cut down, parallel with the bone, turning the leg to get uniform slices.

(4) SLICE THIGH MEAT: Anchoring the fork where it is most convenient to steady the bird, cut slices parallel to the body until the bone is reached. Remove the slices to the side platter. Run the point of the knife around the thigh bone, lift up with the fork, and use either fork or fingers to remove the bone to the side platter. Then slice the remaining thigh meat down to the body.

(5) REMOVE THE "OYSTER": The choice dark meat above the thigh and adjoining backbone is called the "oyster." It lies in the spoon-shaped section of backbone. Use the point of the knife to lift it out of the backbone.

(6) CUT SHORT BREAST SLICES until the wing socket is exposed. Cut the second joint of the wing and transfer it to the side platter. Slice the wing meat in the same manner as drumstick meat. If the bird is small, this piece may be served as a portion without slicing the meat.

(7) CONTINUE SLICING BREAST: Steady the bird with a fork. Cut thin slices of breast meat until enough slices have been provided, or until the breastbone is reached.

(8) REMOVE THE DRESSING: Slit the thin tissues in the thigh region with the tip of the knife and make an opening large enough to insert a serving spoon. The dressing in the breast end may be served by cutting through the skin and laying it back onto the platter with the dressing uppermost.

(9) SERVE EACH PLATE with dressing, topped with dark and light meat. Hot dressing helps keep the meat warm. Add a service of any garnish that is provided. Complement the meat and dressing with hot gravy.

(10) WHEN HALF THE BIRD IS SERVED, turn it around on the platter and then over, with the carved side down. Carve the second side in the same manner as the first.

Last, but not least, remember while you're working that the prime quality of a good carver is nonchalance. Pay no attention to the critical eyes that cluster about your Thanksgiving board. Watching someone carve a turkey brings out all the helpful and horrible impulses of the backseat driver. Turn a deaf ear to suggestions and quips, a blind eye to lifted brows. Continue calmly with the job the way YOU'VE planned it and everything is bound to come out all right, including the dressing.

Man Desperately Feels Need of Advice To Help Save His Marriage, Since Wife Grows Moody and Talks of Divorcing Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a desperate problem relating to my marriage. Is divorce the right solution? Or should I find other employment that would give me more time for my family?

I am a musician, 30, working in a night club; therefore I am out every night; but I am willing to make any sacrifice or adjustment to keep my marriage together. I have a sweet wife 6 years younger than I; we have been married five years and have one child, a daughter, 26 months old.

Last February my wife told me of a sweetheart she had in high school, and said that she was still madly in love with him, an admission that nearly drove me crazy. For three months thereafter she wrote to the fellow—Tom, I'll call him—and meanwhile quarreled with and bitterly disparaged me.

In August she spent a week's vacation in Tom's vicinity, from which she returned very disappointed, saying that Tom had changed and looked twice his age, due to dissipated living. For some time thereafter she seemed to think better of me, but now she is moody and hostile again and wants to divorce me.

Marriage Devoid of Sexual Rapport

WE OWN our home and our friends admire and respect us as a socially progressive, ideal couple. Our personal attachment began years ago, when Anna was about 14, and our families were close friends. But that same year her mother moved (with Anna) to another part of the country, where they remained until Anna had graduated from high school.

However, in her junior year we started a correspondence that continued until she returned here at the age of 18, when our close friendship was renewed. We recognized that we were still much attracted and the following year we decided to marry, although my parents strongly objected. I was just then graduated from music

How to Make Ruffles for the Drumsticks

How can I make white ruffles for the drumsticks of our Thanksgiving turkey? C. Q.

Cut a piece of plain white paper about 4 by 4 inches. Fold in the middle and cut inch-long gashes about ⅛ inch apart along the folded side of the paper. Turn up the other side about ½ inch to make a sort of cuff. Fold around turkey's leg and fasten with pin.

I have an old, old griddle that is probably close to 100 years old and has been in my family for generations. It is deeply corroded with rust—top, bottom and handle. Is there anything I could use that would remove this rust so it could be used again? Or could you give me the name of a company or firm that would be able to do it? L. R.

You could apply one of the rust removal products sold at paint stores to the griddle. Some of these are painted on, allowed to stand and then wiped away, taking the rust with them. Others are made into a solution for soaking the article. Follow the directions which come with the product you buy.

Some of the firms listed under "Machinists and Machine Works" in the yellow pages of the phone book have the equipment to remove this corrosion and smooth the surface by machine. One such firm can be reached by calling Republic 2419. It has been suggested that a metal article so old would probably be pitted and need the surface smoothed to be made usuable. The process is fairly expensive and so would not be practical except to restore an heirloom piece.

My bathing suit has a black lining. To get all the salt water out and to prepare it for packing, I put it into the washing machine with other clothes. When I took the clothes out, I found it had faded onto a pink cotton dress. I soaked this dress for about two hours in a solution of hydrogen peroxide, but to no avail. Could you tell me what I can do now to remove this stain? S. H.

Dye stains are very difficult to remove because anything which will remove them will also remove the color from the material. How-

Capital Clubs Plan Holiday Activities

A new toy will be part of the admission to the luncheon meeting of the Virginia Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity at the Collingwood Tea House, Mount Vernon Memorial hwy., Alexandria, on Wednesday, December 1, at 1 p. m.

The toys are for the toy shop which the association is sponsoring this year as its Christmas philanthropy project. The toy shop, located in the Municipal Pool Building, Cameron and North Harvard sts., Alexandria, will have available for distribution new and used toys for children ranging in age from babies through the teenage group. Families who apply to the various local agencies will be directed to the Kappa Toy Shop, where they may select toys for their children's Christmas gifts.

The shop will be open daily until Christmas and anyone having toys to contribute may bring them to the shop or telephone Mrs. Hirst Sutton, Chestnut 1655, to have the toys picked up.

Mrs. Gilbert E. Goodman is the general chairman. Others on the committee are Mrs. N. Sidney Nyhus, Mrs. Arthur Meushaw, Mrs. Donald C. Thompson, Mrs. Herbert V. Ladley and Mrs. John Holst.

Mrs. Frederick N. Curley, president, will preside at the luncheon meeting on Wednesday to which members of the District of Columbia Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae Association have been invited. Mrs. Fred Youngblood is in charge of reservations.

Writers to Feature Gay Nineties Program

A Gay Nineties Program will be the feature of the Writers League banquet on Saturday at the Fairfax Hotel at 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Elizabeth Collister, judge of the love pulp stories contest of the league, announced Ralph M. J. Worth as the first-prize winner; Mrs. Sara B. Daniel, second prize, and Mrs. Annie L. Smith, third prize.

The winners of the juvenile feature articles were: Miss Hilda Marsden, first prize; Mrs. Mary Forbes Smith, second prize, and Mrs. Ida Lewis Glazier, third prize.

The next meeting of the Writers League will be on Thursday, December 2, at the studio, 1851 Columbia rd.

Hadassah to Hold Children's Theater Party

Women Voters, Husbands In 'Talk It Over' Forum

For the first time in its history the District League of Women Voters included husbands in a "Talk It Over" session at 4801 Connecticut ave. at 8 p. m. Monday evening.

Thomas C. Blaisdell, jr., acting Assistant Secretary of Commerce, led the participating group of nearly 60 persons in a short discussion on "Democracy—What Is It?" Mr. Blaisdell, who has had long service in Government administration as well as considerable teaching experience in history and economics in universities in India, China and the United States, warned the group that citizens must stop frequently to examine and define for themselves the values of freedom and democracy.

Calling upon Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's recent inaugural address at Columbia University and a statement of rights and duties of citizenship by the National Resources Planning Board, Mr. Blaisdell emphasized the continuing responsibility of education of free men to understand their role in a free society.

Wine Wassailing Week

Truman Tea Climaxes FAO Delegates' Welcome

AS A BRILLIANT climax to two weeks of constant entertaining, FAO delegates yesterday were feted by the President and Mrs. Truman. The delegates have tasted at various parties wines of every country represented at the conference and yesterday they were invited to tea by the President and Mrs. Truman. Later the delegates were invited to taste wines of Italy and Canada at the respective embassies.

The President and the First Lady received in the Terrace Banquet Room of the Shoreham Hotel at 5 o'clock. They were assisted through the receiving hours by the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Franklin Brannan.

Music was furnished by the red coated Marine Band Orchestra and fall flowers filled the room. "Hail to the Chief" greeted the President as he came to the reception following an address made before a plenary session of the FAO.

All the delegates to the conference were present at this important function, as well as chiefs of foreign missions and their wives and members of official society.

Wines at the Italian Embassy were served in the large drawing room on the court. The vermouth party, as it was called, was stag, and the Ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, received alone.

The Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Wrong received their guests at the embassy residence on Rock Creek Drive. Canadian delegates to the FAO who were guests of honor included G. S. H. Barton, Deputy Minister of the Department of Agriculture, and J. G. Bouchard, Assistant Deputy Minister of the Department of Agriculture.

Other guests included the Director General of FAO, Norris Dodd; the Deputy Director General of FAO, Sir Herbert Broadley; the chairman of the FAO Council, Viscount Bruce, and Viscountess Bruce; the Secretary of the FAO Council, M. V. A. Veillet-Lavalle, and Mrs. Veillet-Lavalle; the Right Hon. Tom Williams, Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, and the Hon. T. R. Viljoen, High Commissioner of South Africa to Canada.

Gen., Mrs. Cates Entertain For Visitor From Texas

CHRYSANTHEMUMS in fall colors decorated the commandant's house at Marine Barracks for the reception held yesterday by Gen. and Mrs. Clifton B. Cates. About 200 guests, including diplomats and top officials, dropped by between 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. John W. Thomason of Dallas, Tex., house guest of Gen. and Mrs. Cates, was guest of honor. She is the widow of Col. Thomason, well-remembered as a Marine officer, as well as fiction writer.

The Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet were among those invited, as well as the Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Franks and the Ambassador of the Netherlands and Mme. van Kleffens. Others included the Secretary of Defense and Mrs. James Forrestal, the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan and the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington.

Also, the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. W. John Kenney, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Mark Edwin Andrews, the Assistant Secretary of Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Senator and Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, Senator and Mrs. Tom Stewart, Representative and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Representative and Mrs. Herbert C. Bonner, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling, Mrs. Arthur McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Johnson and Mrs. George Barnett.

Arthur Saul Host At Cocktail Party

PLEASANT prelude to Thanksgiving Day festivities was the cocktail party yesterday given by Arthur Saul, who entertained at the United Nations Club. Among the 100 or more guests were members of the Diplomatic Corps, official and resident society.

Abellos Honored At Philippine Party

THE Financial Attache of the Philippine Embassy and Mrs. Juan A. Barretto entertained at cocktails yesterday at their home in Chevy Chase for the Philippine Charge d'Affaires and Mrs. Emilio Abello. Members of the embassy staff and their wives were invited.

Another embassy party was the dinner given Tuesday evening by the Commercial Attache and Mrs. Teodore, jr., at their new home at 3614 Fulton st., honoring the Philippine delegates to the FAO conference, Congressman Dominador B. Paguirigan and Dr. Manuel Sumulong.

M. Pierre Pflimlin Host at Reception

THE French Minister of Agriculture, Pierre Pflimlin, was host at a reception Monday afternoon at 6 o'clock at the French Chancery. Delegates attending the FAO conference this week have been treated to wines of various countries and on this occasion they sampled the wines and liqueurs of La Belle France.

Among the guests who attended were the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet. Many other members of diplomatic society were there, as well as members of official and residential society. Different foods were served with different wines, such as nuts with red Medoc and sweet biscuits with white Chablis.

Miss Lelia Dickey Is Party Hostess

AN enterprising and smart young lady of Washington is Miss Lelia Gorden Dickey, daughter of Mrs. Newbold Noyes. She is opening a junior division of her mother's dress shop on Connecticut ave., and in celebration of the occasion, she entertained yesterday at cocktails.

Miss Eleanor Bellinger

First Debutante of the Season

Eleanor Bellinger Bows at Tea

FIRST debutante to be presented to society this season was Miss Eleanor Bellinger, whose parents, Vice Admiral and Mrs. Patrick N. L. Bellinger, entertained at tea yesterday at their home.

Miss Bellinger, who is a student at Georgetown Visitation Convent, stood with her mother to greet the guests, wearing a bouffant gown of ivory and gold lame with an off-shoulder decolletage edged in a bertha of Chantilly lace. She held a cluster of yellow roses tinged with pink.

Mrs. Bellinger's gown was of navy blue chiffon made with a full gathered skirt and a purple orchid was pinned to her shoulder.

Assisting Mrs. Bellinger at the tea table were Mrs. A. C. Read, wife of Admiral Read; Mrs. John H. Magruder, wife of Commodore Magruder; Mrs. Philip O. Coffin and Miss Carolyn Nash.

Admiral and Mrs. Bellinger had invited, for the most part, only their own friends to the party. There was a sprinkling of young people, close friends of the debutante.

Here from St. Louis for the party were Mrs. Bellinger's nieces, Miss Tam Benoist and Miss Barbara Benoist.

Today's debutante will be Miss Betsie Bassett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edward Bassett, who will be presented at a tea at home.

Miss Bassett will go to Philadelphia on Saturday for the Army-Navy game and will stay for a gala party that night. She will be entertained at an egg-nog party on December 26 to be given by Miss Mary Elizabeth Blakeney, who will entertain at the Officers' Club at Fort McNair. The party is an anniversary for Miss Blakeney of her debut on that date last year.

De Kauffmans, Mrs. Wrong Give Luncheon Parties

TWO embassy luncheons were given Tuesday. The Danish Ambassador and Mme. de Kauffmann entertained for a small group and Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador, gave a luncheon for women golfers of the Chevy Chase Club. Guests at the Danish Embassy were Gilbert Jackson, Canadian economist; the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila, and Hoegsbro Holm.

Mrs. Wrong had as her guests Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, Mrs. Edward Foley, Mrs. S. W. Du Bois, Mrs. Woodlief Thomas, Mrs. Preston Delano, Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mrs. Henry Ravenel, Mrs. William Flather, Mrs. George Sloane, Mrs. W. John Kenney, Mrs. Albert Walker and Mrs. A. M. Houghton.

Also, Mrs. Kurtz Hanson, Mrs. J. W. Herron, Mrs. Philip Israel, Mrs. Allen Walker, Mrs. Richard Johnson, Mrs. Hugh Nicolson, Mrs. L. D. Nicolson, Mrs. A. G. Wenley, Mrs. Henry Eaton, Mrs. James Platt, Mrs. Arthur Phelan, Mrs. Daniel Moffat, Mrs. Garrett White, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. Landra Platt, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, Mrs. Roy Adams, Mrs. Frank Babcock.

Mrs. Pryor, Col. Lee To Marry Dec. 23

Mrs. Bess Caudill Pryor of Alexandria, Va., has chosen December 23 as the date for her wedding to Col. Clifford Talbert Lee of Birmingham, Ala.

The couple will be married at the bride's home in the presence of a few close friends and relatives. A reception will follow at the Statler Hotel. On return from a honeymoon in the South the couple will be at home in Alexandria.

Mrs. Pryor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Millard Caudill of Crewe, Va.

Mrs. Dunford, Sister Return From California

Mrs. Donald Dunford, wife of Colonel Dunford, and her sister, Mrs. C. P. Cabell, have returned from California, where they spent about two months visiting in Pasadena.

Colonel and Mrs. Dunford will have as weekend guests for the Army-Navy game, Col. Allan R. Sewall of Fort Bragg, N. C., and their daughter, Miss Lila Jane Sewall.

If on Fashion Her Way Varies, –Blame Aries

By Sonia Stein

IF YOU have a yen to wear red, even though you're a redhead and have been told it's not becoming, it may not be just perverseness on your part. It may be that you are a Scorpio or an Aries.

While all dress designers take height, weight, age and general undulations into consideration when dreaming up a dress, a new group of six young designers are going to consider your birthdate, too.

With the day of your birth as well as the heft of your hip to guide them, they hope to design a gown that will answer your subconscious heart's desire and be becoming at the same time.

According to astrologers, the individual's taste in color and style of costume depends on the sign under which she was born, although neither the full-fledged astrologers nor the six members of rojges coutouriers, inc., suggest that you wear something that is unbecoming. However, Carroll Righter, Hollywood astrologer who spoke at the opening of Rojges' Wednesday, thinks a discreet red garter might satisfy the craving for red that Scorpio and Aries people are supposed to have.

Rojges had a number of dramatic gowns already made up for the premiere showing, and indicated which ones were calculated to appeal to which members of the Zodiac family: Rich colors to the Saggitarius people, autumn colors to those born under Virgo, etc.

The name rojges, French as it sounds, comes from the first initials of the six American-trained designers who own it: Robert Fishman, Olga Bachus, Jane Rice, Gordon Shannonhouse, Electra Mousmoules and Selma Newman. There is actually a Mr. rojges on the premises, but he's a highly polished bronze angel who perches on the mantel of the showroom at 1612 20th st. nw. and admires the red velvet drapes. Evidently an Aries angel.

Hadassah Benefit To Be November 30

Mary Haworth's Mail

school and have tried to advance my education since, meanwhile coping with financial reverses.

We seem to lack the sexual harmony necessary to happy marriage, but whether this is my fault or due to Anna's confused state of mind, I don't know. I only know that I love my wife, my home and child and that I desperately need advice, so please help me if you can. E. B.

Wife Seems More at Fault Than Man

DEAR E. B.: Your present job and all that goes with it isn't conducive of ideal marriage—which consists in considerate dovetailing of activities and interests,—and of course you know this quite well, doubtless with some guilt about it.

Moreover, a man's unconscious inclinations have much to do with his choice of work or the terms of employment he accepts; thus back of your talk of hard times you rightly sense that you can't honestly plead with full justification that you are "out every night" against your wishes.

Indeed, your contrite willingness to find other employment; or, as you significantly say, to "make any sacrifice" or adjustment that would allow "more time" for the family and thus possibly save the marriage—now that Anna is dealing in spades—shows that you have a bad conscience, in retrospect, about your quasi-playboy means of livelihood. In short, you're not guiltless of blame for the widening rift.

However, in comparison, Anna is obviously the problem-child in the relationship. Her neurotic unstable personality is the fruitiest factor contributing to marital ruin, and unless she is willing to face this truth and get down to fundamentals in reshaping her own responses to life, "outside" advice aimed at saving the marriage is wasted breath.

Wife Needs Insight, Not Legal Redress

IT APPEARS that Anna fell back on you, via correspondence, in her third year of high school, when in mid-crisis of shabby treatment from Tom; and that she was activated by compulsive-neurotic need of sentimental reassurance to assuage her hysteric reaction to a rejection experience.

Further activated by this chronic need, always latent if not always dynamic, she enticed you into marriage,—and she brought to marriage, more or less unawarely, an emotional dowry of morbid immaturity that has consistently blocked the development of a healthy real relationship, which you might have engineered (by trial-and-error) had she been ready for it.

Thus Anna needs help; but you can't help her except as she takes the lead in helping herself, as she must do if you are to supplement and reward her redemptive efforts. Divorce won't help her; although if she doesn't change, divorce would be a boon and deliverance for you. Now, for advice to both of you, read F. Alexander Magoun's book, "Love and Marriage," (Harper & Brothers), which is crammed with wisdom, truth and quiet humor. M. H.

ever, if the dress isn't wearable as it is, you might try applying a household bleach to the spots. Stretch the stained area over a bowl of water and pour a solution of 1 cup bleach to 1 cup water onto it. When the stain is gone, dip the fabric immediately into the water. Or, if the stains are in spots all over the dress, soak the dress in the above solution for 30 minutes. This will probably lighten and might remove the dress color entirely, in which case it could be redyed. If this treatment doesn't remove the stain, try a color remover sold where dyes are sold.

I would not recommend placing clothes to soak at any time in a bowl of exposed metal. An enameled utensil which has no broken places on the surface to leave metal exposed would be best for this purpose.

I'd like to know if there is any way of softening wool sweaters so that they are not prickly when worn without a blouse. I know that expensive cashmere is soft, but is there anything that will soften the cheaper, springier woolen ones? V. R. M.

Soaking the sweaters in a mild solution of sodium perborate will soften the wool somewhat. Use two tablespoons of perborate to each pint of soapy water for the solution and allow to soak for 30 minutes.

Animated Reading

How children do enjoy being read to! Over and over again, they will listen to favorite stories. Sometimes parents get a little "fed up" and wish the enthusiasm wasn't quite so great. But the fact will remain that new generations coming up will probably—in spite of radio and television—still be eager listeners to stories read from old and new favorites.

Since we parents are almost certain to be the main readers, it seems sensible to enjoy the process as much as possible. No one who has watched the glow in a youngster's eyes or heard the breathless, "and then, what?" can help but get a good deal of satisfaction.

Here's a suggestion that may add to the enjoyment for both parent and child. Instead of reading the story "straight," let yourself go and develop voices for the different characters. Perhaps you have started this but felt foolish and gave it up. Almost all of us have tried out the method with the "Three Bears" but there is a challenging opportunity in almost every child's story. The lusty roaring voice of the sea pirate, the thin piping of a fairy queen or the quaking tones of the old grandmother may not come with equal facility from the lips of one person but children will enjoy the effort and the grown-up may get more enjoyment out of his attempt than he had anticipated.

In the Nursery

The walls in the playroom or nursery should be painted to be thoroughly practical. Then little fingerprints can be washed off easily and the room will always look clean. If you do not care for the plain appearance of painted walls have a design stenciled around the top as a border, using designs appropriate for children.

PETUNIA!

Life is most confusing
My artist's soul despairs

At matching up my curtains
To my newly painted chairs.

Then remember, Petunia! Whenever you paint furniture, paint a small piece of wood at the same time, to tuck in your purse. Then matching draperies and chair covers will be a cinch.

For Snowy Clothes

Never expect to get snowy clothes from dirty wash water. As soon as the sudsy water has a grayish tint, empty the tub or machine and fill with clean water and fresh suds. When hot water is scarce, launder table linens and fine cottons first and use the same suds for bed linens and towels. Water that has washed two loads is seldom clean enough for a third.

Historic Thanksgiving Celebrations in Washington

New York and has since been published as a professional beauty in the papers." Sales, incidentally, ranged from $30 at the Kansas booth to over $100 at the Arkansas stand.

Clevelands Carved a Turkey

IN 1887, the Grover Clevelands carved a turkey gifted by Albe T. Hillard from North Stonington, Conn. It was described as a "beauty of exceedingly large proportions and finely moulded with a skin of purest tint." On one side was the monogram of the President, on the other side the initials of both raiser and shipper. This work was done by pricking the flesh with hot needles, an idea which originated in the head of a North Stonington schoolmarm."

In 1891, while the McKinleys dined simply on turkey and potatoes presented by an Idaho friend, Mr. E. K. Sanborn, the manager of Chamberlin's, supplied the following menus which he "thinks is ideal from the standpoint of an American." Here goes: "Lynn Haven oysters, olives, celery, caviar, Johannis burger Schloss 1865, green turtle soup, sherry, dry Soleras 1870, potato croquettes, Chesapeake diamondback terrapin, Saratoga potatoes, saddle of venison, currant jelly, Madeira, Amory Dom Pedro 1791-1792; orange Romaine salad, roast turkey stuffed with truffles, cranberry sauce, French baked potatoes, boiled onions, stuffed green peppers, champagne, vintage 1894; tomato and artichoke salade, mince pie, cheese, nuts, raisins, liqueurs." Who-o-o-o.

In 1901 President Theodore Roosevelt scarcely bothered to gulp his turkey. He had what The Post termed "A busy day." T. R. in 24 hours accomplished the following: "Appointed a consul general and an assistant surgeon; announced he'd reduce duty of Cuban sugar; conferred with the following heads of the National Retail Liquor, the National Irrigation Association, the Maimed Veterans Association, the past commander of the New York GAR, the Reform League of Baltimore, the pastor of the New York Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church (to discuss "religious work in the Army"), the head of the Gold Standard Committee, a Senator from Indiana, two Senators from Wisconsin, while Sir Henry Wrenfordsley, described as a "member of the Carlton Club" and Bishop John Walden—dropped in for a chat!

First Pan-American Feast Day

IN 1910, President and Mrs. Taft went to mass in St. Patrick's, where Cardinal Gibbons celebrated the first Pan-American feast day. The Post waxed lyrical: "Like an incense that fills a temple with its sweetness, the spirit of peace rested over Washington yesterday and gave to the nations of Latin and Anglo-Saxon Americas additional reason for the remembrance of Thanksgiving Day. Unmindful of internal strife which threatens two South American republics, the representatives of 16 countries carried out the pact implied in the phrase, "Pan-American Feast Day," and joined in the services of thankfulness that were held in St. Patrick's Church and became part of the services held everywhere." Said Cardinal Gibbons: "I shall hope to see the day when the sword will give way to the pen and the sword." Answered Secretary of War Knox, cautiously: "I hope that warfare at least among the nations of the West would never become a reality."

In 1916, five months before we entered the First World War, President and Mrs. Wilson attended the annual Navy Relief Fund Ball in the Navy Yard sail loft. "The sail loft was wonderfully beautiful," observed The Post reporter, "the ceiling made into a canopy of stars and stripes, the huge flags draped over the side walls where they met another festoon of flags." Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was "charming in a gown of black tulle of modish fashion worn over black satin. It was trimmed with jet and rhinestones, the shoulder straps being broad bands of brilliants. The whole costume was wonderfully set off by the large flame-colored fan which Mrs. Wilson handled with much grace." The President and Mrs. Wilson sat quietly in their box until nearly midnight when they returned to the White House. Many acquaintances stopped at their box to greet the Chief Executive and his wife who chatted gaily and happily with all, frequently leaning over the side of the box to greet a friend."

Don't Freeze-Wear These

You don't have to freeze to death in a strapless gown to be glamorous. Cardigans are being worn over low cut evening gowns by women who know that a man intrigued by bare, white shoulders on Monday can be lost by a wet, red nose on Tuesday.

A pale taupe brocade cardigan with three-quarter length sleeves and buttons of multicolored brilliants is worn by Actress Joan Bennett over a cocktail gown of burnt sienna satin. Marian Jordan (Mrs. Fibber McGee to you) wears a "lumber jacket" over a forest green velvet dinner gown. This woodsman's style cardigan couldn't venture out in a northwood's storm, however, as it's made of gold lame and fastens at the waistband with an antique gold buckle set with turquoise and tiny diamonds.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

A Mother's Thoughts on Thanksgiving Day

A donor to the Dorothy Kilmer Fund, who wishes to remain anonymous, accompanies her dollar with this note:

"This is the season of Thanksgiving. It reminds me of the many things for which I am truly thankful:

"For the God-given health which permits me to make a living for my fatherless daughter;

"For the legs which let me romp and play with her, the eyes with which I see her;

"For the Divine Providence which watches over us in adversity, and brings us safely through to better days;

"For the great Nation in which we live, and the heart and mind with which to know and cherish it.

"For these things and countless more, I give thanks. And what better token of my gratitude can I find than to participate in this small way in the rehabilitation of a young girl's shattered life?

"What better way to say: 'Thank you, dear God, for making it my lot to give help —rather than ask it.'"

RISING GENERATION GETS STANDING ORDERS

District Liners definitely do not agree with Mrs. M. G. D., who said that tired mothers should be permitted to seat their non-paying offspring on crowded streetcars.

Should seat their kids and hang on straps.

Mrs. Walter Hamann of 129 Maple ave., Takoma Park, Md., has two lively youngsters, and taking them on a crowded streetcar or bus is "a major operation," as she puts it. But when paying passengers have to stand, the kids occupy no seats.

"It's not only a matter of being fair, but a question of basic courtesy," says Mrs. Hamann. "I want my young 'uns to learn to be courteous, and they're starting now."

At least two District Liners have the courage of their convictions. Mrs. John Persson of 1324 Irving st. nw., and Mrs. C. G. of 1408 31st st. nw., confront seat moochers with a polite:

"Pardon me, but have you paid a fare for those bundles (or children)? If you haven't I'd like to use that seat."

Mrs. Persson reports that looks definitely cannot kill. She has survived the glares, and gotten many a seat.

T. D. Tidibo has even more extreme ideas about children who beat him out of a seat. He says:

Those mothers out shopping all day
Should hold children too young to pay.
The poor little tykes
Should wear pants with spikes
And jump up and down all the way.

Mrs. Leonard Mitchel of 3986 Pennsylvania ave. se., gets to the heart of the matter, of course, when she points out that women should do their shopping between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m., whenever possible. That would minimize the competition for seats.

And Verona Z. Ruhl of 6916 New Hampshire ave., Takoma Park, Md., has an even better suggestion:

"Do some of your shopping by phone; and for the remainder, get a husband like mine, who'll do it for you. But you can't have mine because that would break the Ruhls."

ADD SIGNS

The snapshot below was taken a few miles south of Baltimore by R. E. Doughty of 1238 W st. se. He says:

"I knew that I'd need proof that a three-word message could contain two misspelled words."

PERSONAL NOTES

Stanley Finestone, 1034 Barnaby ter. se.: The newscaster swears he said "indigent" patients, not "indignant," and suggests that there must be something wrong with your radio. A likely story, eh?

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

Dan Cleary of 3930 Langley court nw. was walking along 18th st. nw., between H and I, when a fellow got out of a cab and said:

"I'm supposed to be at the Cosmos Club for luncheon, but I don't know where it is, and the cab driver didn't know either. Can you direct me?"

He got the proper directions for reaching the swank Cosmos Club (Madison pl. and H st. nw.) and went happily on his way.

It was only then that Dan noticed that the spot where the hacker had dropped his fare was in front of 816 18th st. nw.—the Kosmos Delicatessen.

OVERHEARD

Bernice W. Freundel of 4206 Kaywood dr., Mount Rainier, Md., reports having overheard this engaging bit of conversation:

". . . So every time I burn myself, it reminds me to lead a better life."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Gertrude Lawrence, who is caricatured by Virginia Field in Moss Hart's "Light Up The Sky," sent the playwright an opening-night cablegram from London: "Dear Hideous, All My Love".

The material used by night-club comedians these days is so risque that Joe E. Lewis confesses to his Copacabana audiences: "Nowadays you don't have to know how to entertain; you just have to be brave" . . . Vice President-elect Barkley will be in Los Angeles December 6 to help raise $150,000 for the Democratic Party's deficit. At the dinner in his honor, film stars will be allowed to make speeches in return for their $1000 contributions.

Georges Schley telephoned Arthur H. Sulzberger at the N. Y. Times and asked, "Well, how do you like the new President?" Sulzberger said: "The NEW President? We still have the same one—Truman." Schley reminded him: "Oh, no. In September and October, Dewey was President" . . . Adolf Zukor tells of the day when he was head of Paramount and all studios were worried about the advent of talking pictures. An agent offered him the Marx Bros. at $80,000 per movie. "$80,000 for the Marx Bros?" Zukor gasped. "And one of them doesn't even talk."

The cabinets of Sweden, Canada and Norway have the recognition-of-Israel documents ready, to be released as soon as the UN's General Assembly ends debate and finds an acceptable armistice formula . . . George Jessel leaves for Berlin shortly . . . Ferenc Molnar revealed last week that the movie rights to many of his old plays were bought by the film studios years ago for less than $1000 each. "If it was long ago, then you at least still have the television rights," one of his friends consoled him. The playwright shook his head and sighed: "To show you how movie-lawyers work—even though the contracts were made before Bell invented the telephone, they included clauses covering television rights."

Mrs. Earl Warren's Inaugural gown was to have been a blue one. It was ordered from a 5th ave. store . . . Former Representative Charles LaFollette, liberal Republican from Indiana, is General Clay's new chief counsel in Berlin.

No. Gus is no bother at all, is he? I wonder why Mr. Merrie wants to get rid of him?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall Sees Russians Worried

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of State Marshall, now pushing 69 and inclined to worry, has come back to Washington reasonably encouraged about the Russian situation.

Geo. Marshall

He has reported to the White House and others that the Berlin airlift has been a tremendous defeat for the Soviet and that the Russians are worried over the way public opinion has turned against them at the Paris sessions of the United Nations.

In general, Marshall believes that come next spring, when the Russians see the airlift can be carried on the year round, they will find their own way of lifting the Berlin blockade.

Marshall reports a disturbed state of mind inside Soviet councils, for two reasons:

1. ERP is making far greater progress than generally realized.

2. The General Assembly has consistently voted the Russians down. In contrast to the New York U. N. meeting last year, where Russian propaganda was much more successful, the Paris meeting has lined up almost solidly against Moscow. The Russians pretend not to care about this, but they do. It has a bad propaganda reaction in the rest of Europe.

Russians Regret ERP

The success of the ERP can be measured by the intensity of Russian attempts to stir up trouble, the Secretary of State has reported. The greater the Marshall Plan's progress, the more the strikes and riots to sabotage it.

The Iron Curtain countries even have a hard time concealing the fact that they would like to be in on the Marshall Plan. Poland, for instance, sent its Foreign Minister to see Secretary Marshall some time ago and told him that he had made a great mistake in not discussing the Marshall Plan with Molotov before he talked it over with Foreign Ministers Bevin and Bidault. Then he would have had Russia's cooperation.

Marshall replied that he had not discussed it with Bevin and Bidault in advance, which obviously the Pole did not believe.

The Secretary of State still feels frustrated by the one-sidedness of negotiations with Russia. Moscow operates in a vacuum. No criticism is allowed. If the Soviet makes a mistake, no one in Russia knows about it except the privileged few inside the Kremlin. There is no pressure of public opinion inside Russia to force the Soviet government into a peaceful role.

The United States, on the other hand, operates with the entire world looking over its shoulder. If a bad move is made, every newspaper front-pages it.

Marshall wouldn't change the American system. But when he was in the Army, he operated under much greater secrecy. That's one reason he gets tired and discouraged and would really like to quit in the reasonably near future and go back to his colonial estate at Leesburg, Va.

Truman and Forrestal

Betting odds have increased a bit that James V. Forrestal will win his backstage lobbying game to stay on as Secretary of National Defense.

In contrast to his early statement that he didn't plan to remain in the Cabinet, the dapper Wall Streeter is now frantically contacting friends to help him keep his job.

White House insiders say that if he succeeds it will be a definite reverse of Truman's earlier attitude. They remember during the campaign how they drafted an order for the President to sign, commanding Forrestal to increase Army, Navy and Marine Corps reserves.

As he signed it, Truman dryly remarked:

"If Forrestal recognizes my signature on this one, it will be the first time this year."

Business Report

Attention Wall Street: President Truman has received a private analysis of the economic situation from his top economic advisers. Truman asked for the report himself after disclosures that department-store sales were down, that the stock market is shaky, and that some businessmen are getting jittery.

The analysis that the economists gave him shows not only that prosperity should continue for some time, but that employment, savings, credit and wages are still climbing. So is demand for heavy industrial goods. White House advisers actually are more concerned about continuing inflation than about an early recession.

Note—President Truman also telephoned Chairman Edwin C. Nourse of the Council of Economic Advisers before he returned from Key West and asked him to hold a series of White House conferences to prepare the Truman Administration's economic program for Congress. These conferences have already begun. They will draw the economic blueprint that the Truman Administration will follow during the next four years.

The Diplomatic Pouch

Western Allied intelligence reports that Andrei Gromyko, former Soviet representative at the United Nations, appears to have been placed in oblivion. (Even he wasn't anti-American enough.) . . . There is more than meets the eye behind the visit of the Italian chief of staff, Gen. Efisizo Marras, to the United States. Real purpose of the trip is to train Italian troops along the lines of the American Army . . . Secretary of Commerce Sawyer has ordered a halt to shipment of American oil machinery to Communist Romania. (It's about time.) . . . Russia has suddenly stepped up its war of nerves against neighboring Iran. For two weeks, northern Iranian tribesmen—armed with Russian weapons—have repeatedly clashed with government troops.
